Navy Ordered To Help Clear Pacific Coast Of Rum Ships

President Starts Drive After Smugglers Ask Compromise.

Program Reverses Dry Era's Policy

French Quota Raised; House Whisky Trust Inquiry Urged.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Taking the attitude the Government can not compromise with liquor smugglers, President Roosevelt has ordered the Navy to assist the Coast Guard in wiping out rum running on the Pacific Coast, it was revealed yesterday at the Treasury and Navy Departments.

This constituted a change of policy, since under prohibition the Navy was never used to enforce the liquor laws. The President's action, however, was taken in the face of what Herbert E. Gaston, assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, described as "a challenge" to the Government from smugglers.

Mr. Gaston referred to a telegram from Palo Alto, Calif., under date of December 3 to Dr. James M. Doran, then commissioner of industrial alcohol, which sought to obtain for purported smugglers immunity from the law to land a 40,000-case cargo of Canadian and European liquor in exchange for a promise to cease their illegal activities.

French Win Quota Increase.

This was the highlight in several developments having to do with liquor in official quarters. The Federal Alcohol Control Administration announced in return for trade concessions made to this country, the French vintners would have their quota substantially increased, perhaps by as much as four times the original 784,000-gallon quota announced for the initial four-month period.

The French, it was understood, have reached an agreement with State Department officials to increase by 50 per cent that country's quota on salt pork and ham from the United States. A further agreement modifying French restrictions on American apple imports also was in prospect, it was said.

Michael MacWhite, Minister of the Irish Free State, leaving the State Department, said that his country had secured an increased quota here for its whiskies in exchange for trade concessions but that he was not at liberty to reveal the details of the agreement.

"Purchaser Equally Guilty."

Meanwhile on Capitol Hill, where the question of liquor taxes was temporarily laid aside, Senator James Couzens (Rep.), Michigan, proposed that the purchaser of illegal liquor be made equally guilty with the seller under the revenue laws. On this proposal he immediately won support from Senator Harrison (Dem.) Mississippi, chairman of the Finance Committee and Representative Doughton, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Solicitor General James C. Biggs moved on behalf of the Government to have the Supreme Court repeal a decision by a North Carolina Federal Court that all

Rep. J. S. Parker Suffers Stroke

Republican Veteran Is Seriously Ill in Capital Home.

(Associated Press.)

Representative James S. Parker, of the Twenty-ninth New York District has suffered a paralytic stroke, and at his Washington home last night it was said he was "very seriously ill."

Parker, a Republican veteran of 20 years' service, was formerly chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. His home is Salem, N. Y.

Huey Spurns Capital Elite Who Can't Dunk

Senator Long preparing for a dunking function.

New Orleans, Dec. 15 (AP).—Senator Huey P. Long today requested the withdrawal of his name from the Washington Social Register because, he said, Washington society had never learned to dunk corn pone properly in pot likker and had othewise disappointed him.

In a lengthy letter to the Washington Register and the Social Register Association of New York, handed out here with an elaborately serious face, Long declined the honor with a resume of some of his "social experiences" in the National Capital.

In one of these he said he found Washington had just recently taken up drinking soup out of cup-shaped plates, with handles, "whereas in the country where I had come from, I had been drinking the soup out of the plate 20 years before I ever heard of Washington and without having any handles on the plate either."

"The news articles of the public press," his letter said, "reflect a tone of bewilderment and startled outrage that persons with high

N. Y. Appellate Court Upholds Post on Comics

Chicago Tribune Required to Continue Supply of Features.

By a decision of the appellate court in New York yesterday, the Chicago Tribune is required to continue furnishing The Washington Post with "The Gumps," "Dick Tracy," "Winnie Winkle," "Gasoline Alley" and other features.

The Chicago Tribune took an appeal from the decision of Mr. Justice Schmuck, of the New York Supreme Court, who held that the Chicago Tribune must continue to furnish these features to The Washington Post. The appeal was argued on December 15, 1933, and the appellate division, which is composed of five judges, yesterday unanimously affirmed the decision of Mr. Justice Schmuck.

The appellate division had before it the opinion of Mr. Justice Bailey, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in the suit between The Washington Post Publishing Co. and the Washington Times Co., which publishes the Times and the Herald.

Contract Assignable.

Although Mr. Justice Bailey had held that the contract upon which The Washington Post Publishing Co. was suing was not assignable, the appellate court in New York affirmed the decision of Mr. Justice Schmuck, which held that the contract was assignable.

In his decision Mr. Justice Schmuck said:

"On this application, therefore, the court is required to decide whether the agreement between these parties was a mere license, personal and nonassignable, whether a breach thereof, if assignable, will result in irreparable harm requiring the relief hereby demanded, and finally, whether it is within the power of the court to restrain the defendants from discontinuing the service so long as it is granted to other subscribers.

"It is suggested that the contract calls for personal service and provides for extension of credit and in consequense precludes assignability. This conception of the contract is baseless and ignores a basic element of the agreement which is best illustrated by considering the difference existing in the arrangement had with the artists and authors and that obtaining with the plaintiff and other subscribers. There can be no doubt that the arrangement with the artists and authors is personal in character and by the same logic that the contract with the sub-

Pirates Raid Oyster Beds, Rout Police

By Clyde H. DuBose.

A fleet of oyster pirate boats from the Eastern Shore, manned by modern buccaneers armed with rifles, yesterday raided the rich beds of the Potomac near Morgantown, Md., and fired shots at deputy sheriffs who tried to protect the preserves.

Hopelessly outnumbered by the 70 pirates in 30 boats, three deputy sheriffs of St. Charles County were forced to put into shore and abandon their boat, which was disabled by the Eastern Shoremen, who are rebelling against the law which prohibits "scraping" of oysters.

The pirates, who are believed to be from Smiths Island, fled down the river to a haven near Swann Point when reinforceemnts of State police, sheriffs and enraged oyster tongers came to the aid of the routed deputies.

Prepare For Battle.

Oyster tongers and farmers along the Western Shore were preparing last night to resist with force the incursions of the pirates and the La Plata Fire Department is being organized to aid in the fight.

The controversy between the "tongers" and the "scrapers" has raged for three years, since the Maryland and Virginia Legislatures passed similar laws prohibiting the "scraping" operations, which greatly curtails oyster reproduction.

"Scraping" has been practiced on the Eastern Shore to such an extent that the beds are practically exhausted and the Eastern Shoremen have been conducting forays on the prolific beds on the Western Shore, where the "tonging" operation, which does not destroy seed oysters, is practiced.

"Scraping" Bill Defeated.

The conflict yesterday is an echo of the recent defeat in the Maryland Legislature of a bill of Senator J. Allan Coad, of St. Mary's County, which would legalize "scraping."

3 Trapped Children Perish in Blazing Home

Wrangell, Alaska, Dec. 15 (AP).—Imprisoned in their blazing home, three children of Tony Herhandez, a Mexican, burned to death here while their parents were away.

The dead were Juanita, 4; Julia, 2, and Tony, a baby.

Architect's Act of Kindness Costs Him $200 in Swindle

Alfred Hoyt Granger, prominent philanthropist-architect, of Washington and Chicago, yesterday was swindled out of $200 by three confidence men, he reported to Chief of Detectives Frank S. W. Burke.

Approached by a young man, who said he was an unemployed artist, Mr. Granger told police he listened sympathetically. The man's story was convincing and the architect—who was known for his generosity to struggling men of talent—said he decided to help him.

The pair had met at Fifteenth and I streets northwest. Sauntering along they discussed the plight of the young "artist." At Eighteenth and I streets they halted.

At this point two other strangers accosted them. They said they were policemen.

They asserted they had observed the "artist" soliciting alms from the architect. This was a "severe" offense, they declared, and an arrest should be made.

They were even undecided, Mr. Granger told Chief of Detectives Burke, as to whether the architect should be taken into "custody."

Finally it was decided that one of the "policemen" would take the "artist" to a police station house, while the other remained with Mr. Granger.

After a wait the other man returned and said he had "booked and fingerprinted" the "artist." He was in "hot water," they told Mr. Granger. The latter was concerned, not only for himself, but for the man he had sought to befriend.

There was considerable parley. Then the two "policemen" said they would accept $200 to free the "artist" and save Mr. Granger from further embarrassment. He gave them four $50 bills.

Police were ordered to watch out for the men and the $50 bills. Mr. Granger, who is 66 years old, resides at 2824 O street northwest.

Test of NRA Welcomed In Steel Case

Johnson Hails "Certain" Fight on Weir's Labor Vote.

But Administrator Will Give Labor Board Right of Way.

A court test of the recovery act, with a $200,000,000 corporation the challenger, was held inevitable last night by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, as the Government mapped its plans for proceeding against the Weirton Steel Co.

Johnson said he would welcome the test resulting from refusal of E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Co. subsidiary, to permit the National Labor Board to conduct an election to determine whether a company union or the American Federation of Labor should represent employes in collective bargaining negotiations, and the company's subsequent sponsoring of a company union election yesterday which shut out the A. F. of L.

When he talked with Mr. Weir over the telephone Thursday and tried to prevail upon him to drop his plan for the election yesterday, Johnson said, "Weir told me he thought it was time to test the law in the courts. I replied that if that was so, all right. I think it's bound for the courts. The sooner we settle it the better."

Holds Clear Violation.

Johnson insisted that Weir—an adviser of the steel industry to former President Hoover and a man who a year ago told a Senate committee what to do to end the depression—was in clear violation of the steel code because of his defiance, and that four courses were open to the Government in proceeding against him.

He would not act against Weir in the name of the NRA at present, he said, because Chairman Robert F. Wagner, of the National Labor Board, does not want any other processes to cloud the injunction suit which the latter and Attorney General Cummings plan to seek in order to compel the company to refrain from interfering with a Labor Board election.

Will Wait for Wagner.

Johnson added, that until he had heard of Wagner's desires, he had intended to turn over Weir to Attorney General Cummings as a code violator and to conduct open hearings to rescind his Blue Eagles. He has not scrapped the plan, he made clear, but now will wait for Wagner to complete his action, or at least until he has conferred with the National Labor Board chairman.

Johnson said he was sorry the matter had proceeded to the stage of "acrimonious debate" because "until this incident Weir had been very friendly and cooperative."

"I am utterly amazed by his attitude," he added, "because it was he who helped more than any one else in framing the steel code."

When he heard that Weir intended to carry out the company union election in defiance of the Labor Board, he said he telephoned him "on account of my personal friendship for him and to try to get him to play ball."

Weir Determined to Fight.

Weir's reply to the phone message and to a telegram from Johnson warning him he was "deliberately" violating the recovery act, was to issue a statement indicating a determination to fight it out in the courts.

To end a strike affecting his 17,000 employes in Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Steubenville, Ohio, Weir, on October 16, signed an agreement with the National Labor Board giving the board authority to prescribe rules for an employes' election of collective bargaining representatives, and promising to refer to the board any dispute arising from the agreement.

In refusing to permit the board

Man Fights Bull With Pitchfork

Battling an enraged bull with a pitchfork, Thomas Gude, 35, Chillum, Md., last night saved his nephew, Edward Gude, 24, from being gored to death as the youth lay injured and helpless in a corner of the barnyard.

Pulling a ring from its nose as it broke moorings at the feeding trough, the 1,800-pound bull tore madly around the inclosure at the Redcop Dairy Farm, Chillum.

Edward was tossed across the yard, stunned, with three ribs broken. Walter Poeg, a colored helper, was chased to the loft of the barn. The elder Gude, after driving the bull from the stricken youth, sent a hurry call to Prince Georges County police. The animal was destroyed.

Saito Named Japanese Ambassador to U. S.

Tokyo (Saturday), Dec. 16 (AP).—Hiroshi Saito, Japanese Minister to the Netherlands, has been selected as the new Ambassador to Washington, the Associated Press learned today.

Five Nations Bar Arming By Germany

Benes and Paul-Boncour Agree on Plan to Be Given Reich.

Paris, Dec. 15 (AP).—A united front of France and four of her allies against rearmament in Germany and tinkering with the Versailles treaty was agreed upon today in conversations between Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour and Dr. Edouard Benes, the Czechoslovakian Foreign Secretary.

They determined also to put squarely before Chancellor Hitler of Germany a definite disarmament convention through the Geneva Arms Conference and thereby to make him assume the responsibility should he refuse to sign.

Poland and the little entente nations, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania, are the allies. In the conversations regarding their relations with Germany, it was decided it would be impossible to consider German rearmament during direct diplomatic exchanges in Berlin.

France Reassures Ally.

France remains as strongly as ever opposed to giving Germany a free rein in armaments and indicated she never will consent to rearmament in the Reich without a guarantee of security for herself.

This was declared impossible without British adherence, which, for the present, is frankly admitted to be impossible.

France and the Little Entente thus are returning to their old stand to formulate a disarmament agreement in Geneva which can be presented in Germany.

M. Paul-Boncour reassured Dr. Benes of French friendship, since the Little Entente is known to have been uneasy following the signing by France, Great Britain, Italy and Germany of Premier Mussolini's four-power western European peace pact.

Will Reply to Hitler.

The Benes and Paul-Boncour conversations were considered a definite external display of their unity.

The government, it was said in parliamentary sources, has no particular confidence in Chancellor Hitler, but feels that public opinion demands some sort of conversations with the German leader in an effort to smooth relations.

The French ambassador in Berlin, Andre Francois-Poncet, has talked with Hitler at least twice in recent weeks.

The next move will be a definite decision by the French cabinet as to a reply to be given Hitler.

The discussions of the Czechoslovakian and the French foreign ministers centered on Premier Mussolini's suggested changes in the League of Nations, disarmament and the economic restoration of central Europe.

Insist on Plebiscite in Saar.

The two agreed that there must be no "reform" in the league except in the line of improving international cooperation without diminishing the status of the small powers.

Dr. Benes, besides seeing M. Paul-Boncour, discussed the problems with Premier Camille Chautemps, former Premier Edouard Herriot and other French statesmen.

They agreed that France will flatly refuse to consent to let the Saar basin territory be turned over to Germany without a plebiscite.

One possibility has been seen that the Saar will vote for autonomy, which right can not be taken from them.

Johnson to Remain As Head of NRA

President Spikes Rumor of Impending Change.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson is counted on to remain at the head of the NRA for a long time to come, President Roosevelt said yesterday at his press conference.

Disposing of renewed reports that the recovery administrator is considering resigning for some other high Government post, the President said he still has much to do in his present position.

Another NRA rumor, to the effect that States were to be asked to set up NRA organizations, was characterized as "a Christmas story."

Cabinet Orders Monopoly on Dairy Products.

Berlin, Dec. 15 (AP).—At its final preholiday session, the German cabinet issued a series of decrees today, one of which gives the government a monopoly of eggs, butter and dairy products.

The new rule orders anyone desiring to sell eggs, whether domestic or imported, to offer them first to government centers which will be established to serve retailers.

In the event the government declines to purchase the products they will automaticlly be barred from sale in Germany.

U. S. Spends 35 Millions Buying Foreign Gold; 25 Millions More Ready

$50,000,000 Depleted; Jones Uncertain on Figures, Time.

Roosevelt Firm On Money Stand

By Elliott Thurston.

The revelation that nearly $35,000,000 has been spent so far in buying foreign gold and Prof. James Harvey Rogers' much moderated criticism of policy held the spotlight yesterday as the President reaffirmed his faith in the gold program and scoffed at stabilization rumors as "just some more spinach."

By disclosing at the White House that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has exhausted its initial gold purchase fund of $50,000,000 and is setting aside $25,000,000 more to go on with the operations, Mr. Roosevelt indirectly unearthed the unexpectedly large volume of foreign buying.

Until yesterday, Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had said foreign buying did not involve enough gold to make much more than "a bridgework for your teeth," but when asked after the White House disclosure how the $50,000,000 gold fund had been used up, since domestic purchases came to but $14,885,000 (so he announced the day before), he explained that "the dental state of things is apparently getting worse."

Criticism Disavowed.

On top of this news, which was a surprise to most observers, came a prepared statement wherein Prof. Rogers, who is second only to Prof. George F. Warren on the list of Presidential monetary advisers at present, disavowed any intention of "attack on the National Administration" when he told a Cincinnati audience, according to the Associated Press, that the public works program "has unbalanced the budget badly," and that this and civil works were pushing the country into inflation.

In his revised statement last night, the Yale professor of economics regretted "unfortunately high wages being paid by public works and civil works in a number of communities," and said he had "fought hard" against "repetition of these errors in the United States," but he disclaimed any other

Gary Cooper Marries New York Debutante

Associated Press.

Gary Cooper, strong, silent lover of the screen, at last has fallen in love in real life. Yesterday afternoon he became the husband of Miss Veronica Balfe, New York society girl-actress, known on the stage as Sandra Shaw. She says she is through with films.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Gary Cooper, hero of many a screen romance, was married under the crystal candelabra of a Park avenue apartment today to Veronica Balfe, New York debutante.

As they boarded a train for the West shortly afterward, Cooper, who is a bad hombre on the screen when he's crossed, but just so much putty in the hands of a pretty heroine, acknowledged he had been "a little nervous" during the ceremony.

His bride, chic in gray corduroy coat and sable furs, said she would give up her film career, which she began "as a lark" last year under the name of Sandra Shaw.

The ceremony was performed in the apartment of the bride's mother, the socially prominent Mrs. Paul Shields.

The Rev. George A. Trowbridge omitted the word "obey" in reading the ceremony. Asked later whose idea that was, Gary grinned.

"I don't remember," he said.

New Yorker Flees Kidnap Gang Here

Bruised, Bearded Victim Calls for Police and Collapses in Store.

Bruised and wearing several day's growth of beard, Joseph A. Trischitti, 29, New York restaurant owner, burst into a delicatessen store at 1505 North Capitol street last night and said he had been kidnaped Sunday in New York. He told police he escaped shortly before reaching the store.

Relatives questioned by long distance telephone, confirmed Trischitti's statement in part by declaring he disappeared Sunday while on his way to church.

Police searched the North Capitol street neighborhood without finding a garage in which Trischitti reported he had been held since Tuesday by men armed with a machine gun. Trischitti said he escaped by jumping out a second-story window when his guard fell asleep.

Leads Police Search.

The New Yorker accompanied police on an automobile tour of the neighborhood and pointed out one garage as resembling the building in which he had been held. He later said he did not recognize the interior of the structure. The search was continued.

Meanwhile, Trischitti was removed to the Fifth Police Precint, where he unfolded a detailed account of his experiences to Detective Sergts. Floyd Truscott and Robert Barrett. Though not a prisoner, his fingerprints and photograph were taken for police files.

Collapses in Store.

Trischitti presented a strange appearance when he rushed into the delicatessen and collapsed. He

Tests Reveal Light Velocity Varies Widely

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 15 (AP).—The completion of the famous Michelson speed of light measurements was announced today—the final answer a question mark—the instruments showing an almost unbelievable record that the speed fluctuates.

The speed seemed to change in cycles. Its variations ranged through a margin of about 12 miles a second.

That such fluctuation is possible is contrary to present scientific beliefs, which have accepted the speed of light as absolute. This velocity has been regarded as about the only thing in the universe which never changes.

Einstein Theory Upset.

Even under relativity, in which space itself changes, Einstein assumed that the speed of light was absolute.

The cautious scientists who carried on Michelson's work after his death do not state flatly that the upset is impossible.

"The observed irregularities are unexplained," their opinion states, "and their elucidation apparently will require more sensitive apparatus, preferably a type different from that thus far used."

These latest measurements have been carried on since Prof. A. A. Michelson's death in May, 1931, by Dr. Francis G. Pease, of the Carnegie Institute of Washington, and Fred Pearson, of the University of Chicago.

They found a queer, periodical rhythm in the fluctuations of light's speed. One period was short—14¾ days. The other seemed to just about a year. While the last measurements were being made during February this year, the short pe-

Helen Keller's Teacher, Blind, 'Sees' by Fingers of Her Pupil

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Helen Keller, who was taught to speak and "see" the world she lives in by her companion of the last 50 years, is paying her debt to her teacher, who herself is almost blind.

Mrs. Keith Henney, of Garden City, L. I., biographer of Miss Keller, said today that the woman called "The Blind Leader of the Blind" is living in a cottage at Rosshire, northern Scotland, with Mrs. Anne Sullivan Macy and her secretary, Polly Thompson.

Miss Keller will not come back to the United States this winter to continue her work for the American Foundation for the Blind, because her teacher and nurse, Mrs. Macy, has become pupil and patient.

With the same equipment Mrs. Macy gave her and using the same language Mrs. Macy taught her, Helen Keller is paying a debt and teaching her blind teacher the Braille alphabet she has forgotten.

Mrs. Macy taught Helen Keller to speak—and now Miss Keller reads to the teacher who can no longer see.

Mrs. Macy taught Helen Keller to use a typewriter—and now Miss Keller writes letters for her old teacher and companion, taking dictation by the manual alphabet Mrs. Macy taught her.

"Mrs. Macy, sick as she is," said Mrs. Henney, "still spends hours correcting Miss Keller's speech and advising her.

"Together they have made a little money, but they have given most of it away.

"They realize today that their dependence on each other is greater than the dependence of any two others in the world today. And now that Helen can repay the debt—well, we don't know when they'll come back."

Three Dairies To Drop Code

Hagerstown Firms Blame AAA Nonenforcement for Trade Losses.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 15 (Spl.). Charging that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration had failed to enforce the milk code, three dairies, supplying half the Hagerstown milk trade, tomorrow will announce their abandonment of the code.

A new schedule of prices, several cents below the code scale, will become effective with the announcement. Grade A milk will drop from 11 cents a quart and 7 cents a pint to 9 and 5 cents.

Although the Philadelphia milk agreement, under which the dairies have been operating, established a retail price of 14 cents a quart for grade A milk and 11 cents for grade B, the Hagerstown dairies have been selling grade A milk at the grade B prices.

Declaring that they have lost half their trade since the code became effective in October proprietors of the three dairies said that certain raw milk dealers had consistently refused to abide by the code.

Stanley McCoy, who had been selling milk at 8 cents a quart, was summoned to Washington, and his license revoked. No effort was made to enforce the A. A. A. order, however, and McCoy continued to deliver milk, they said.

U.S. Income Tax Revisions Hit By Morgenthau

Acting Treasury Head at Variance With House Committee.

By Robert C. Albright.

Treasury plans for revising Federal income tax laws yesterday clashed directly with House Ways and Means subcommittee proposals at hearings on the committee's new general revenue measure, as the Administration loosed a two-way attack on income tax leaks.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau took flat exception to five of the committee"s nine major recommendations, and proposed sweeping changes in others.

At the same time, Mr. Morgenthau went beyond House committee proposals to urge lower tax rates on salaried income than on income derived from investments. He recommended single joint returns by married couples living together.

Meanwhile, the Treasury instituted a more rigid system of bringing to account taxpayers improperly claiming allowances or otherwise seeking to pay less than is due from them, in line with the Administration's policy to plug all income tax loopholes.

Findings to Be Reviewed.

Hereafter, it was learned, all findings of the Internal Revenue Bureau compromising with taxpayers over payment of deficiencies assesesd against them will be reviewed by Prof. Roswell Magill, Treasury tax adviser.

Simultaneously, word went out from Mr. Morgenthau's office that rules for the ethical conduct of lawyers practicing before the Internal Revenue Bureau will be strictly observed. Those guilty of violations will be suspended from practice in the less grievous cases, and disbarred permanently for flagrant offenses.

Recommendations opposed by the Acting Secretary at yesterday's House hearings included elimination of consolidated corporate returns, restrictions on corporate reorganization exemptions, limitation of partnership losses, elimination of foreign income tax credits, and restrictions on depreciation and depletion deductions, involving, all told, $140,000,000 in estimated revenues.

On many items the Treasury reserved opinion, pending study. Dr. Magill, who followed Mr. Morgenthau, advised the committee to draw up legislation without waiting for the department to complete all of its researches. He said some of the studies my take months.

Treadway Held "Partisan."

Dr. Magill's suggestion followed criticism of Treasury "delay" by Representative Allen T. Treadway (Republican), Massachusetts, and replies by Representative Fred M. Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky, and Representative Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, committee chairman, who charged Treadway with "partisanship."

Representative Doughton declared the Treasury was not presuming to appear before the committee in an "infallible manner." Mr. Doughton has insisted right along the committee will have its own bill to present to the House the first week Congress convenes.

"Viewpoints Are Same."

Earlier Acting Secretary Morgenthau made clear the Treasury has approached the tax-revision problem from exactly the same point of view as the House committee, namely, to revise the law "to eliminate any loopholes which now exist, and to distribute the tax burden fairly among taxpayers."

However, as Mr. Morgenthau touched on high points in committee recommendations, and later when Dr. Magill gave a more detailed analysis, it was apparent House subcommittee members and the Treasury differed sharply as to method.

Where the subcommittee asked elimination of consolidated corporate income returns estimating this would yield $20,000,000 annually, Mr. Morgenthau said the change "might well be a backward step, which would result in little, if any, additional revenue."

Where the subcommittee recommended partners not be permitted to offset against ordinary income, losses sustained by the partnership, Mr. Morgenthau said the proposal "would probably operate with extreme injustice upon the many small businesses scattered over the country."

Sees Duplication Danger.

Where the subcommittee asked elimination of provisions allowing foreign income tax payments to be credited against Federal income taxes, Mr. Morgenthau, pointing to the danger of tax duplication, said "the present arrangement seems fair and should be continued."

Where the subcommittee asked repeal of provisions permitting "tax free" corporate reorganizations, the Acting Secretary observed:

"In the cases of complicated subjects of this kind, it is almost impossible to foresee all the ingenious devices which lawyers will invent, and to provide against them expressly in the statute.

"The more effective plan is to place the responsibility squarely upon the department administering the law from day to day. It can readily amend its regulations to cover new situations as they arise."

It was evidently in pursuance of this policy that the department yesterday ordered strict enforcement of rules governing lawyers' ethics.

"Fixers" Face Fight.

The Internal Revenue Bureau for many years has had a code of ethics governing those lawyers and accountants dealing with Federal income tax cases. It will be enforced now in an effort to end the breeding of litigation and controversy on the part of lawyers, and to drive from the Internal Revenue Bureau the so-called "fixers."

Bona fide lawyers representing clients in dispute over tax matters with the Internal Revenue Bureau officials, however, have nothing to fear so long as they observe general rules of conduct applying to their profession, it was explained in Mr. Morgenthau's behalf.

Treasury officials, called before the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday to testify on subcommittee tax recommendations, generally were of the opinion subcommittee proposals probably would yield only $100,000,000 instead of the estimated $270,000,000.

Mr. Morgenthau told the committee that while he favored plugging income tax loopholes wherever possible, "legitimate business transactions should not be impeded by being driven to take uneconomic forms."

Urges "Reasonable Toll."

"The income tax should properly take a reasonable toll from the business transactions of the community," he said. "It should not stop the traffic entirely."

He disclosed the Treasury, at the request of the President, is studying the whole relation of the taxing system of the United States to those of the several States, with the hope of coordination. He said administrative provisions of all internal revenue must be "reorganized and assembled into a single code."

In line with Treasury plans for Prof. Magill to review findings of the Internal Revenue Bureau involving compromises on deficiencies it was learned that Prof. Magill is to seek judgments in the courts, if he finds the assessed deficiency should be paid in full or in an amount not acceptable to the tax payer.

Back Payments Sought.

Mr. Morgenthau desires to collect as quickly as possible approximately $700,000,000 in back taxes which the Government claims is due it. Cases now before the Board of Tax Appeals represents about $500,000,000 of this amount. The remainder is in litigation in the courts or is pending before Internal Revenue authorities for further consideration.

None believes, however, that the full sum can be collected. In some cases the back taxes are owed by persons now unable to pay and in other instances, the Government's assessment may be found to have been too high.

The plan to carry cases to court instead of compromising when the Treasury officials are confident they are right, however, will not be rigid. Exceptions to the rule will be made when it is obvious that the cost of fighting the case through courts would deprive the Treasury of revenue which it otherwise would obtain by compromising, or where it is certain the full assessment could not be collected anyway.

To Push Mitchell Case.

But such cases as that of Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank board, will be taken to court, in order to convince the public that the Roosevelt Administration is making an honest effort to collect from the "big taxpayers," if for no other reason.

By his recent Executive order requiring the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to report directly to him, Mr. Morgenthau is now in a position with the aid of Prof. Magill to keep a close watch over tax collection. Later a new policy may be formulated for dealing with claims for tax returns, but for the present efforts will be concentrated on getting money into the Treasury.

One of the reasons why Thomas Hewes earlier this week resigned as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury was because Mr. Morgenthau removed the Internal Revenue Bureau from his jurisdiction.

Relief Assured Until March 15

Approximately $170,000,000 will be left in the Federal Emergency Relief fund January 1, Administrator Harry L. Hopkins said yesterday.

The relief organization was set up with a capital of $500,000,000. Hopkins estimated the $170,000,000 would carry his relief activities to March 15.

Approximately $15,000,000 has been spent by the Surplus Relief Corporation to date, he said, for commodities for relief distribution. In addition, the corporation received from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration approximately $40,000,000 worth of hogs and butter.

Hopkins said that bids are now outstanding for the purchase of large amounts of additional hogs and beef. Butter, lard and cheese are to be bought soon, he said.

Insull's Illness May Lengthen Stay in Greece

Athens, Dec. 15 (AP).—Discouraged despite the Greek government's concession that he will not be expelled before January 31, Samuel Insull took to his bed tonight because of ill health.

If his physicians say he is too ill to travel there is a possibility the former Chciago utilities magnate may be able to remain in Greece longer than until the end of January—a month after the expiration of his police residence permit.

As the 74-year-old man, who twice has beaten attempts to return him to America to face charges in connection with the collapse of his utility empire, dejectedly discussed the latest developments today, it appeared his health might not withstand another battle.

The Greek government's withdrawal of the permit was a shock which today's respite of a month did not alleviate.

"I'm going to bed, and I'm staying there," he said. He appeared haggard and worn.

Earlier the Government refused to renew the permit and announced he would have to leave January 1. He requested the extension after the minister of the interior informed him of the first decision.

His passport has been revoked by the United States Government and he will have to travel with temporary papers.

At the United States Legation it was said there was no reason to reinstate the passport.

(State Department officials in Washington indicated no further negotiations seeking his extradition are planned and that the Administration will withhold action until ne leaves Greece.)

He is now without consular status as an American citizen. (At Washington it was said the United States lacks extradition treaties only with China, Egypt, Persia, Afghanistan, and the internationalized section of Morocco.)

Women to Urge Liberal Control

Local W.O.U.P.R. Reforms to Guide Laws on Liquor.

District of Columbia members of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, which disbanded last week with the advent of repeal, yesterday formed the Women's Organization for District of Columbia Liquor Control, at a meeting of the executive committee.

The new organization will work for a liberal liquor control plan. Chairman is Mrs. William Beverley Mason, who served as chairman of the old group for three years. Headquarters will be maintained at 1343 H street northwest.

The District group already was on record for a liberal control law, and the new organization plans to appeal to Congressional committees.

In addition to Mrs. Mason, other officers elected were Miss Bell Gurnee, first vice chairman; Miss Elizabeth Harris, second vice chairman; Mrs. Milton King, third vice chairman; Mrs. Rose Yates Forrester, fourth vice chairman; Mrs. Henry Leonard, fifth vice chairman; Mrs. Frederick R. Solger, secretary; Mrs. John F. Dryden, treasurer.

Luella Gear Sues Son Of August Heckscher

Reno, Nev., Dec. 15 (AP).—Luella Gear, New York actress whose most recent appearance was in "The Gay Divorcee," filed suit here today for a divorce from G. Maurice Heckscher, son of August Heckscher, the philanthropist.

Miss Gear charged extreme cruelty and asked for a private trial. She also requested court approval of a property settlement.

Mrs. Randall W. Rogers Seeks Divorce in Reno

Reno, Nev., Dec. 15 (AP).—The socially prominent Mrs. Randall Williams Rogers filed suit here today for a divorce on grounds of cruelty from John W. Rogers, jr., of New York.

The Rogerses married in New York, June 27, 1930, and have a 2-year-old daughter. A property settlement agreement provides for custody of the child.

Doug Fairbanks Leaves Alps En Route to Egypt

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Dec. 15 (AP).—After a skiing expedition, Douglas Fairbanks, the motion picture actor, left by automobile today for Italy.

He said he intended to go to Milan and from there to the Italian Riviera, then on to Istanbul and Egypt.

Joy of Primitive Life Proves Just A Lump of Dough

Calabogie, Ont., Dec. 15 (AP). Reibar Ramsdal, 29, a Norwegian, went into the deep forest near here to live the life of a primitive man, without aid of civilization.

Two trappers found him today—living on the north side of a hill where he got full benefit of the winds. They said he was sitting before a poorly laid fire, covered with soot and smoke. His food supply was down to a bit of lard and a piece of dough which he was trying to bake among the cinders.

Escapes Kidnapers

JOSEPH A. TRISCHITTI, of New York, who told police last night he escaped from kidnapers who brought him to Washington.

shouted to Walter Bose, the owner:

"Call the police quick before I die. I want to make a statement."

His dark hair was disheveled, his trousers were torn, and there were several bruises on his head. As he walked away with detectives, Trischitti limped. He said his left ankle was turned in the leap from the garage, but he declined medical attention.

Seized Near Church.

Trischitti said he opened his restaurant Sunday morning as usual, and departed to walk to early mass at a church on Second avenue between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets. When almost in front of the church, he related, two men jumped from a large automobile.

"One of them hit me over the head with a blackjack," he said. "It must have knocked me out, because the next thing I knew, I was in a house and five men were standing over me."

He said his meals were taken to him regularly and he was not blindfolded or bound. He explained he was forced, however, to remain in one room. The restaurant owner declared his captors made no effort to conceal their features from him.

No Ransom Demand.

The abductors, Trischitti said, were gruff in manner and at first failed to explain why he was being held. He insisted they made no demands for him to sign ransom notes.

"They did force me to write a note to my brother, Charles, who lives at my home in New York," he said. "They stood over me with a machine gun while I wrote the letter. They told me what to put down. I wrote I was going to commit suicide, for my brother to sell the restaurant, pay my bills and take care of my family."

Relatives reported the note had not been received, though Trischitti said he wrote it last Tuesday.

Trischitti expressed the belief he spent the first three days and nights of his captivity in New York because he said he was again knocked unconscious Tuesday night and when he awakened he was riding through the Holland Tunnel, which connects New York and New Jersey.

In Washington Tuesday.

On the outskirts of a city he believed to be Philadelphia, his five captors, Trischitti said, took him to the home of a man they seemed to know. He said they ate there and resumed their journey. They arrived in Washington late the same night.

As soon as they came here, Trischitti said, they took him to the garage and kept him under constant guard in a second-story room. He declared the window through which he jumped opened on an alley. He added he unlocked and raised the window without awakening his guard.

Police questioned Trischitti at length about ransom demands. He persisted in earlier statements that he knew nothing of such maneuvers by his kidnapers. He said he never had received any threats or extortion demands in the past.

Four Department of Justice agents later were summoned to aid police in the investigation.

Driver Kidnaped In Mail Holdup

Joplin, Mo., Dec. 15 (AP).—Four men robbed a truck of four sacks of registered mail at the Union Station here today and kidnaped the driver, Wallace Fort, 20.

Fort was left bound in a country church near Liberal, Mo., where the robbers ripped open the sacks and spent an hour sorting the mail before they drove away in two cars.

Postal officials were checking the amount of the loot.

Austria Keeps Record; Hanging Order Changed

Vienna, Dec. 15 (AP).—Austria's new gallows was cheated of its first victim today when President Miklas commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence of Johan Breitwieser.

Breitwieser was condemned under martial law early in the day for the murder of his sweetheart, a servant girl. There have been no hangings in Austria since 1916.

$22,000,000 PWA Projects Are Approved

The $600,000,000 mark for non-Federal public works projects was passed yesterday, when Secretary Ickes announced new allotments totaling $22,000,000 for 72 projects.

Leading the list were appropriations of $7,000,000 for construction of a combined railway and highway bridge over the Mississippi River at Baton Rouge, La., and $4,000,000 to build a tubercular unit for Bellvue Hospital at New York.

Secretary Ickes also announced allotment of $84,000 to a limited dividend corporation to construct 50 small houses at Altavista, Va. An allotment of $5,500,000 went to the Boston & Maine for reconditioning and purchase of equipment, and $500,000 went to the Central of Georgia for new coal cars.

A loan and grant went to the University System of Georgia for construction of several new buildings. A loan and grant of $139,000 went to Salisbury, Md., for extension of the sewer system, extension of the water system and construction of a new reservoir.

The list made public yesterday was the longest yet approved. The projects will affect 26 States, giving close to 100,000 man-months of work. It left approximately $220,000,000 in the balance of the P. W. A. fund.

The Altavista housing project will provide homes for mill workers. Fifty one-story, single-family frame dwellings will be erected, to rent as low as $4.25 a room.

Guard Missing With $39,000

Note Saying "Just Stepped Out" Is Discovered in Armored Truck.

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—A penciled note tonight gave a clue to missing Albert R. Hammel, driver for the Brinks Express Co., who disappeared simultaneously with $39,000 in currency from one of the company's armored trucks in the Loop today.

The note, identified by friends as in his handwriting, merely said he had stepped out for a few moments.

Investigators were unable to determine if Hammel had been kidnaped by robbers who took the money. His employers said he had been with the company since March, and was under bond.

Police said they were unable to find witnesses who saw anything that looked like an abduction.

The missing funds had just been picked up at the First National Bank. The truck was parked in front of the Bankers Building, and two guards went inside to obtain a package. When they returned, they found Hammel gone and the packet of money missing.

Hammel's wife became hysterical when informed of her husband's disappearance, and expressed belief her husband had been abducted.

Youth in School Shot by Japanese

Classmate 'Bothered' Him, Says Oriental Student.

Vermillion, S. Dak., Dec. 15 (AP).—Yukichi Yoshida, of Japan, a student at the University of South Dakota here, who has called himself a prince, was in police custody tonight after shooting a classmate, who, he said, "bothered" him.

He told officiers the occurrence was due to his emotionalism and to the difference between Oriental and Occidental customs.

CWA Jobs Await Newspaper Men

43 Wanted to Catalog Kunz Collection for Library.

Unemployed newspaper men in Washington will have a chance for a job in a Civil Works project announced yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, administrator.

Forty-three workers will be engaged by the District C. W. A. employment office to catalog and inventory a large collection of books on gems, precious stones, mineralogy and geology left by the late Dr. George Frederick Kunz to the Geological Survey Library of the Department of the Interior The collection, given to the library recently, is regarded as one of the most complete specialized groups in the world.

Havana Workers March in Protests

Bach Law Restricting Foreign Firms.

Havana, Dec. 15 (AP).—Several thousand persons, most of them Negroes, demonstrated at the presidential palace today in behalf of the 50 per cent law, which demands that at least half the number of employes of all foreign firms be Cuban. The group also pledged support of President Ramon Grau San Martin.

Previously, half a dozen different groups paraded the city, which was heavily guarded by soldiers.

Meanwhile, officials of the Cuban Electric Co., an American-owned concern, studied a decree to reduce their rates 34 per cent, after having arranged a truce in the controversy with workers.

Reed Lambasts Administration On Low Dollar

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 15 (AP). James A. Reed followed a secret honeymoon trail out of Memphis today, but left in its wake a stormy interview, in which he attacked the "New Deal" with all the vigor of his 72 years.

The former Democratic senator from Missouri charged the Administration with "piling up the National debt to a point where we will ultimately break down the National credit."

"The Government is interfering with business," he continued, "assuming that business can best be conducted by gentlemen who have never transacted any in their lives."

With these criticisms, Reed and the former Mrs. Nell O. Donnelly left Memphis as secretly as they came last night, following their surprise wedding Wednesday.

A taxi cab took them to their automobile on the outskirts. Reports said they headed southward.

Mr. Reed said, "I've been asked about inflation a number of times, and that's my first answer.

"If you have a 50-cent dollar, what is to become of those whose husbands and fathers paid into insurance companies dollars equivalent to gold, and who will be paid in dollars ranging from worthlessness to some other point?"

Sewer Gas Blasts Rock Chicago Area

Damage Exceeds $100,000 Streets Torn Up.

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—A series of underground explosions of sewer gas in mains rumbled over nearly a square mile of Chicago's West Side today, buckling pavements and sidewalks, blasting out windows and injuring three persons.

Gaping holes, one of them nearly 300 feet long, appeared in streets and man-hole covers sailed high into the air. Officials said damage would exceed $100,000. The explosions occurred in mains under Armitage avenue and in basements of flanking residences.

One house was damaged badly by fire.

Woman and 2 Men Rob Bank, Kidnap Cashier

Midland, Ark., Dec. 15 (AP). — A young blonde woman and two men robbed the Midland State Bank of approximately $500 today and escaped after kidnaping the cashier, C. N. Finn, who was released three miles from town.

Officers believed the two men were father and son.

Washington Physician Marries in New York

New York, Dec. 15 (Spl.).—Dr. William S. Detwiler, Washington physician, and Hilda Smith, also of Washington, visited the Municipal Building here today and obtained license to wed, and the ceremony was performed shortly afterward in the Municipal Marriage Chapel by Deputy City Clerk Philip Hines.

Dr. Detwiler gave his age as 30, and said he is a native of Herndon, Va., son of Edwin and Elvina Detwiler. His bride, listed her age on license as 25. She is a daughter of James and Margaret Smith.

Crawford Case Goes to Jury This Morning

By Frank Getty.

Leesburg, Va., Dec. 15.—The Crawford case goes to the jury tomorrow with the defense hoping for no better than a verdict of second-degree murder.

With the reading to the jurors today of a confession to a part in the slaying of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Mina Buckner, made by the defendant in Boston last January, a first-degree murder verdict is considered probable.

The defense lost an important point today upon the judge's ruling admitting the confession and no attempt was made to show that George Crawford, the diminutive Negro prisoner, who sat indifferently gazing at the ceiling, did not take part in the crime which shocked this Virginia countryside two years ago.

Judge James L. McLemore will instruct the jury at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, after which each side will be given an hour and a half for argument.

Quick Verdict Likely.

The case should reach the jury before the luncheon recess and a speedy verdict is anticipated. The jury is composed of two bankers, a merchant and nine farmers—all white men.

Charles Houston, dean of Howard University Law School, chief of the defense counsel, probably will move for a new trial and then give notice of an appeal to the Virginia Supreme Court.

Under Virginia law, the judge instructs the jury before closing arguments by the prosecution and defense. Opposing counsel conferred with Judge McLemore this evening regarding his instructions.

Defense Hopes Outlined.

Hopes of the defense that Crawford, who has admitted waiting in the kitchen of the Ilsley cottage while an accomplice committed the murders, may escape the death penalty are based upon the following claims:

The Commonwealth made no effort to show the defendant himself actually did the slaying, but based their case upon the confession which named another Negro as the slayer.

No evidence was introduced to show premeditation as applying to the murders, the confession which the prosecution introduced indicating Crawford hesitated about entering an occupied house, although he had on several occasions broken into empty houses.

Nothing was produced to substantiate the claims, made before the trial by a local justice of the peace who since has fled, that Crawford threatened Mrs. Ilsley or that she feared him and had sworn out a warrant for his arrest.

Admits He Was Lookout.

Crawford's confession was read to the jury at the close of the morning session. He admitted, in the statement, acting as lookout, while his accomplice, the mysterious "Charley Johnson," killed the women. He further admitted seeing the dead body of Mrs. Ilsley in her bedroom. According to the notes of Harold Kraus, Boston police stenographer, who took down the statement, Crawford claimed to have said to "Johnson": "Man, you didn't have to do that!"

The two Negroes, according to Crawford's confession, then fled in Mrs Ilsley's automobile, which they abandoned at South Washington, Va., where they boarded a freight train for Pittsburgh.

The confession was introduced over the protests of the defense, which attempted to show that Commonwealth Attorney Galleher held out undue inducement to Crawford in persuading him to confess.

Overruled by Judge.

Judge McLemore in ruling the confession admissible, said:

"I can not say that this man was forced. He apparently felt, after discussing the case, that he wanted to tell the whole thing. I am going to let the confession in for two reasons; first, because I think it is admissible, and, second, because if I am wrong, there are courts which can reverse me."

It had been generally admitted that if the prosecution had been unsuccessfully in introducing the Boston confession, its case against Crawford would have collapsed.

After the jury had heard the confession, the Commonwealth rested.

Negroes Only Defense Witnesses.

The defense produced only three witnesses—colored former Army officers—to impeach Robert Hutchings, prosecution witness, who had told of Crawford's bragging in Boston that he had "killed two white women in Virginia."

Hutchings had testified to having served as captain of Company A, First Battalion, 397th Infantry, during the war, and the three defense witnesses, who had been lieutenants in that company throughout its lifetime, said they never had seen him before this morning.

The defense then rested, although earlier in the day it had planned to put the defendant on the stand.

Snow Tangles Traffic In Southeast Europe

Vienna, Dec. 15 (AP).—A heavy snowfall hampered traffic throughout southeastern Europe today. Railroad schedules were disorganized in Austria, Jugoslavia, Hungary and Rumania.

Street cars stopped running in Bucharest and snowplows were battling drifts in Vienna, where thousands were also employed to shovel snow. Telephone lines were down in Dalmatia.

Persian War Minister Arrested.

Green to Give Report Against Ford to NRA

A. F. of L. Leader Asserts He Can Prove Code Violations.

Following a talk with Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson last night, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said his organization will submit a brief to the NRA next week to show Henry Ford has violated labor provisions of the recovery act in dealings with strikers at his Edgewater, N. J., and Chester, Pa., assembling plants.

Though Green said the brief would contain affidavits showing Ford has refused to negotiate with employes for collective bargaining, after promising he would do so, Gen. Johnson said he refused to plan any action until he has studied the evidence.

Johnson last week told the A. F. of L. it would have to submit "proof" before he would move against Ford as the labor representatives desired.

Green said the report had been written by legal experts on evidence submitted by officials of the locals at Edgewater and Chester, and deals chronologically with the entire controversy.

"I am convinced Ford is in violation of the code and has not done any collective bargaining whatever with his employes," Green said, adding, "We want to submit the evidence to Gen. Johnson and have him take action."

U. S. to Halt Butter Buying

Primary Purchase Plan Agreement to Be Ended Tonight.

Termination of the butter buying in primary markets through the Dairy Marketing Corporation with Agricultural Adjustment Administration funds was announced yesterday by Agriculture Secretary Wallace.

The Dairy Marketing Corporation at Chicago was notified by the Secretary the agreement in effect with that corporation since October 17 would terminate tonight.

This complies with the provisions of the existing agreement and concludes butter purchases made by the corporation for resale and emergency distribution to the needy.

This action in no way affects butter or cheese purchases being made independently by the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation for relief purposes.

Through both agencies the Government has bought or made committments for 61,071,626 pounds of butter, bringing the amount in storage to within 7,000,000 pounds of the five-year average.

10 School Children Hurt When Bus Overturns

Crestview, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP).—At least 10 school children were injured, several seriously, when a school bus turned over several times at Blackman, 19 miles northeast of here, late today.

There were 35 children in the vehicle. The most seriously hurt were brought to a hospital here and others were taken to their homes.

Flashing through the air from the U. S. S. Twiggs, battle fleet destroyer en route from Cuban waters to San Diego, that message caused a sister ship, the U. S. S. Pruitt, to speed south today with two doctors on board, prepared to operate if necessary.

Canned Fish Tariff Is Hiked By Roosevelt

Tuna Industry Appeals for Protection From Japanese Product.

While the Agricultural Adjustment Administration labored yesterday to relieve the plight of American tuna fisheries, President Roosevelt made the first use of his powers to increase tariff to raise the duties on tuna imported from abroad.

By Executive order, the President raised the tariff on tuna by 50 per cent, at the same time increasing the duty on other canned fish. The action was taken on the basis of a report of the Tariff Commission. The commission found that existing duties did not equalize differences in cost of production between foreign and domestic products.

Meanwhile the American tuna packers were asking the A. A. A. for an embargo on foreign tuna under the terms of the recovery act. At the same time, the master code for the fishing industries was receiving the attention of the Adjustment Administration. The Japanese tuna industry, chief competitor of the American, had offered to raise its price to the American level in return for a quota of 500,000 cases per year, but domestic packers refused.

In addition to raising the tuna duties from 30 to 45 per cent ad valorem, the Executive order increased the tariff on canned fish worth less than 9 cents per pound from 30 per cent ad valorem to 44 per cent. This will apply mainly to sardines, in which Norway is the chief competitor.

Oscar de Priest Hanged in Effigy

Negro Former Legislator Not on Train.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP).—Oscar de Priest, Negro, former Illinois representative, who was hanged in effigy here this morning, did not arrive on the train he was expected to take from St. Petersburg to Miami, Seaboard Airline Railway officials said tonight. He was reported in Tampa.

"Oscar de Priest, stay out of Miami."

Barkeeps' Cash Soon to Jingle In Marble Halls of Dead Banks

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 15 (AP). Many Pennsylvania banks, born in good times, but unable to withstand the depression, are being converted into liquor stores and drinking "parlors."

The new control board, casting about for sites for State liquor stores, has found vacated banks ideal for the purpose and has also discovered that many applicants for licenses have the same idea.

More than 100 sites already have been selected for stores and nearly a score of these are former bank buildings or buildings owned by banks.

The old-fashioned saloon has been barred "forever" by the new State liquor laws, but nevertheless Pennsylvania enters the new era of liberties with much of the color and custom of "the good old days."

To Pennsylvanians who turned their glasses up before frosted mirrors on sawdust covered floors, there may be something of novelty to drinking at spotless tables on floors of tile.

There may be novelty, too, in liquor shops with a background of muraled walls and paintings instead of the crude oils and faded photographs of racetrack, prizefight and burlesque favorites so familiar before prohibition.

The free lunch of bologna, "pudding meat," cheese, onions and what-not may not come back in a big way to stimulate the thirst, but Pennsylvania grog shops already are advertising free clam chower, sauerkraut and snapper soup.

Fairfax Wins Hunter Ribbon At Riding Club

Mrs. M. R. Guggenheim's Entry in Spotlight; Papoose Victor.

Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim's hunter, Firenze Fairfax, was acclaimed champion of the opening winter horse show at the Riding and Hunt Club last night. This entitles the hunter to compete for the grand championship at the end of the season.

Quality horses and expert equestrianism were seen as a good crowd filled the club's balconies. The arena was festooned in the National colors.

A colorful gathering of society folk saw the show. Many were in sport clothes, while others who planned to attend parties later were in evening dress.

Several gay supper parties were held to celebrate the victories.

Excitement prevailed as the fault-and-out class became a spirited contest between the entries of J. J. Cotter, Miss Margaret Cotter, Miss Louise Herron, R. F. Norton and Mrs. Guggenheim. First place was finally given to Papoose, Miss Herron's entry, with Mrs. Guggenheim's Firenze Opagemak placing second.

The Handy Hunter Class had largest unmber of entries, with 20 horses. A stiff course was laid with four jumps of different types. one, of whitewashed barrels laid side by side, proved the waterloo of most contestants. Only three took it without hesitancy, and a few being bugled out for refusals.

Mrs. Guggenheim's horses won this class, for first, second and third places, her Firenze Fairfax, Firenze Morocon, and Firenze Popover, respectively. Miss Betty Couzens' Bean Beetle placed fourth.

William Carter, riding for Eugene Meyer, was thrown hard as his horse reared and shied at the beginning of the Open Saddle Class, and was trampled. The rider was unconscious for a short time. Later, it was announced he had escaped serious injury and was able to leave the arena for his home. There were two other minor falls.

Model hunter, shown in hand; 3-year-olds and under—Firenze Yessiree, owned by Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, first; Wanahon, owned by W. C. Hanson, second; Anadale, owned by Miss Virginia Irwin, third; Cordova, owned by Robert Robey, fourth. Over 3 years old—Charlotte, owned by F. M. McConihe, first; Day Dreamer, owned by Mrs. McDowell, second; Jack Frost, owned by Mr. Gallager, third; Karl K., owned by Mr. Eacho, fourth.

Fault and out—Papoose, owned by Miss Louise Herron, first; Firenze Opagemak, owned by Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, second; Firenze Judge, owned by Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, third; High Hat, owned by R. F. Norton, fourth.

Champion hunter—Firenze Fairfax, owned by Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, championship; Papoose, owned by Miss Louise Herron, alternate.

Finland Pays, France Defaults Again on Debt

Hungary Also Unable to Pay; Britain, Others Give "Tokens."

By Kendall Foss.

December 15, semiannual pay day on war debts, came and went without any surprise additions to the anticipated $8,898,123 paid on accounts now over $300,000,000 in arrears.

Great Britain made a token payment of $7,500,000. Italy sent in $1,000,000 as an earnest of her intentions. Czechoslovakia paid $150,000, Lithuania, $10,000, and Latvia, $8,500, all as tokens.

France and Hungary sent notes to the State Department yesterday announcing inability to pay. Belgium, Estonia and Poland had previously sent their regrets.

The Hungarian note stated that while payment could not be made, the government was depositing a terasury certificate, in the pengo equivalent of the dollar sum due, to the foreign creditors' account in the Hungarian National Bank.

Hope of Paying Slight.

Hungary is in general default all around and is operating under a transfer moratorium which forbids any debt payments in foreign currency. The treasury certificate, although bearing 2 per cent interest, is little more than an I. O. U. There is not much likelihood that Hungary will ever be in a position to satisfy fully all her foreign creditors, public and private.

The French note presented to Acting Secretary Phillips by Ambassador Laboulaye, expressed the French government's intention once more to "postpone" payment. This is the third omission and leaves France $82,308,312 behind schedule.

The note repeated in substance the resolution voted by the French Chamber at the time of the first default a year ago.

Didn't Intend to Default.

"The French government has never contemplated the unilateral violation of undertakings freely entered into, which would have been contrary to the invariable traditions of France," the resolution said, according to a State Department translation. "But it is judged that the decisions which were taken on both sides in 1931 and 1932 in the hopes of facilitating the economic recovery of the world had modified conditions which formerly existed, and now justify new arrangements which take into account the changes thus brought about."

The reference to 1931 and 1932 is taken to mean the Hoover moratorium of June, 1931, the Hoover-Laval discussions of October, 1931, and the Lausanne Agreement of June, 1932. In the French view, there were clear implications in these three events which entitled them to expect a revision of the debt to the United States.

The root of the difficulty lies in the divergent French and American theses on the relation of war debts to reparations. This country has always maintained no connection exists; France has steadily held the two are inseparable.

Debts Paid, Europe Hints.

London, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—A conviction that the United States never would collect another cent on the majority of the war debts owed her by European powers, great and small, was apparent in well-informed circles tonight.

Most of the nations quietly ignored the war debt obligations to America, and almost without exception gave signs that they had little, if any, intention ever of renewing installments on these billions of dollars advanced by the United States taxpayers through their Government at Washington.

It's Tea, Not Gold, Morgan Bank Gets

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—The vaults of J. P. Morgan & Co. today received their annual replenishment of tea. Transfer of a truckload of straw-packed cases via the banking firm's "back door" on Wall street aroused the curiosity of passers-by. The impression that the boxes contained gold disappeared when a well-informed onlooker volunteered the information that the Morgan partners for many years have distributed gifts of high-grade tea among their friends.

The firm orders bulk shipments which are usually delivered in December.

Someone Worries About U. S. Deficit

Anonymous Donor Sends $90 to Pay on 900 Millions.

The Federal Government's $900,000,000 deficit was reduced by $90 yesterday with the receipt of an anonymous letter mailed to the Treasury from Rochester, N. Y., according to the Asociated Press.

The letter was addressed to "Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury of the U. S."

Mills was Secretary of Treasury under President Hoover. The note accompanying the $90 contribution said the money was "to help in the deficit our country is facing."

Icy Wings Bring Ducks Down.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 15 (AP).—Ducks flying south dropped from the sky, their feathers covered with ice, during a sleet and ice storm here today. One duck fell in front of a South Worcester gasoline station and died within a few minutes.

R. F. C. Will Aid Needy Holders Of Mortgages

Jones Tells Plan to Help Owners of Defaulted Investments.

After a conference with President Roosevelt on extension of the R. F. C., Chairman Jesse Jones yesterday announced the corporation will make immediate advances to distressed holders of guaranteed mortgages and certificates.

Loans of varying percentages will be made through mortgage companies approved by George S. Van Schaick, New York State superintendent of insurance. Although no definite figure was set, it is understood as much as $50,000,000 may be allotted.

While most of these securities are held by New Yorkers, Mr. Jones said anyone in need may obtain loans. The figure of $2,000,000,000 was set as an estimate of the amount of paper outstanding, but it was pointed out that not all are in default, nor will all holders be eligible for loans.

"It is not the purpose to attempt to lend anything near the full value of these certificates," Mr. Jones stated, "but merely to assist those certificate holders who may need some relief and to save them from the necessity of selling their certificates at sacrifice prices."

Mr. Van Schaick, who also took part in the White House conference, has already set up two mortgage companies of large capitalization and another is contemplated to handle the loans, Mr. Jones said.

NRA Reduces Hosiery Output

Johnson Decrees 3-Day Week to Solve Over-Production.

Following his action in decreasing curtailment of cotton textile production, Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson yesterday ordered a three-day week for hosiery mills throughout the country to curb excess production.

The action, taken on recommendation of the industry's code authority, will begin Monday and run five weeks, with the possibility of extension for three or more weeks. It will cut production 40 per cent.

The action—as in the case of the cotton textile industry—has been held necessary by NRA economists to offset the overproduction which the mills ordered several months ago, in order to swell supplies in advance of the time operations would become more expensive under the codes.

The silk textile industry's code authority also has requested that the NRA allow it to compel manufacturers to curtail production.

Steel Company Union Formed In Spite of NRA

Weir Declares Johnson's Account of Phone Incident False.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 15 (AP).—Announcement that balloting for collective bargaining representatives at the Weirton Steel Co. plants "exceeded all expectations," with 9,317 employes casting votes, was made tonight by John Larkin, chairman of the rules committee handling the election.

Larkin said the vote represented 81½ per cent of the eligible employes.

E. T. Weir, chairman of the Weirton Steel Co., expressed gratification at the size of the vote, asserting "the men themselves by this action overwhelmingly demonstrated their preference for their own organization and the election of representatives under their own by-laws."

The election was held in defiance of the National Labor Board and in the face of threats by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson to prosecute company officials and to withdraw the firm's NRA Blue Eagle. Weir abrogated an agreement with the board by which it was to have supervised the balloting, charging the board violated terms which he interpreted as giving the "company union" the right to make the rules.

Labor Power at Stake.

Thus the entire controversy seemed certain to observers to wind up in the courts with a definite test of the NRA Labor Board's power.

The labor board and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, which conducted a strike in the plants last October, maintain the "employes representatives" organization is a "company-dominated" outfit and that workers are not voting their own free will, as provided in Section 7-A of the NRA.

Aroused by a published report that Gen. Johnson had said last night at a White House reception he had been unable to reach Weir by telephone until 6 p. m., Weir branded such a statement as "false."

Conversation Recorded.

Continuing his broadside, Weir said he had talked with Johnson from 3:53 until 4:05 p. m., had the entire conversation "taken down and transcribed," and promises to produce a certified copy "when the time arrives." He added:

"It seems to be part of Gen. Johnson's policies to use vehement and bombastic language in the newspapers when attacking any manufacturer, and I do not intend to continue exchanging fire with him in the public print."

The NRA provides a penalty of 30 days in jail and $500 fine each day the code is violated.

High officials of the National Steel Corporation, parent concern of the Weirton Steel and fourth largest of the industry, hurried to Weir's support. He is chairman of both the National Steel and Weirton.

Owns Family Heirloom 135 Years Old and Still Is Good.

Garrisonville, Va., Dec. 15 (Spl.). Hand spinning nearly everywhere is a lost art, but not to B. S. Norman, husky 6-foot farmer of Stafford County. He is one of the few left in the State who can spin cotton, flax, or wool in the old-fashioned way.

Norman's most cherished possession is an old spinning wheel that has been handed down in his family for nearly 135 years. Tradition says a Stafford County wheelwright fashioned it laboriously by hand one Chrismas season at the close of the eighteenth century, believing it would last a "lifetime." Though the name of that modest workman has long since vanished, his wheel, enduring far beyond his dreams, still turns as smoothly and sturdily as ever.

"There's still not a creak or tremble in its bones," Norman says with pride, pointing to its solid construction of stout Virginia oak and yellow poplar.

It was on this wheel that Norman learned to spin. He has never used any other. Originally, it was the property of his grandmother, Mary Jane Holmes, whose family came as pioneers to Garrisonville more than 150 years ago. At her death, Norman's mother kept it at the post of duty for nearly 70 years, initiating her young son into its intricacies before he was 12 years old.

"Spinning isn't difficult," Norman explains, "but you've got to learn the knack of making your fingers behave deftly. And you mustn't mind them getting sore and tired."

Norman recalls with pleasure days not so long ago when all the family knit wear came from yarn, combed in the old-fashioned way, and doubled and twisted by his spinning wheel. Sweaters, mufflers, mitts, the so-called "socks" of yore that extended as far above the knee as hip boots, and even those quaint, never-to-be-forgotten oddities known as "pulse-warmers!"

Now that everybody wears machine-made clothing, Norman believes homespun goods go unappreciated and unsung.

Homespun Garments Last Longer, but Expensive, Farmer Muses.

"Yet homespun clothes wore twice as long," Norman reminisces. "Take a look at stockings! Two pairs would carry the most active youngster through a whole year's wear and tear. Nowadays, it takes a dozen."

Within the spic and span white cottage which Norman built for himself in 1926 on the site of his family's original pioneer log cabin, are still a few of the mitts and mufflers made from yarn, which he helped his mother spin as a boy. They are still in good condition.

From the viewpoint of a veteran spinner, Norman attributes the longevity of homespun goods to the old, painstaking method of carding, and the evenness and delicacy of the twisting of the yarn.

In the last few years, Norman has spun very little. He no longer owns the flock of sheep that he once did. And though machine-made clothes are far from satisfactory to him, as he ruefully points out, they are a lot less expensive. But it is a comfort to know that if you get too tired of socks wearing through at the heels, and mittens rubbing out at the knuckles, you can always spin your own.

That is one of the reasons why Norman refuses to part with his spinning wheel, though he has been offered alluring prices for it many times. The other is to be found in his own good-humored riddle:

Davis Is Placed On Peek's Job

(Associated Press.)

Chester C. Davis, director of production control in the Farm Administration since last May, was named formally by Secretary Wallace yesterday to succeed George N. Peek as farm administrator.

A close associate of both Wallace and Peek for many years, the new farm administrator formerly was reporter and editor on Midwestern publications, and was once Commissioner of agriculture in Montana.

Davis was born on a farm in Dallas County, Iowa, in 1887. He was graduated from Grinnell College in Iowa.

Retail Tobacco Dealers Assail "Loss Leaders"

Trade Chieftains Here for Code Hearing Fight for Price Fixing.

Department stores which sell tobacco below cost as a loss-leader to attract patrons were attacked last night by leaders in the retail tobacco business, gathered here for the hearings on price control, which opened yesterday before the A. A. A. and the NRA at the Mayflower Hotel.

Attacking the opponents of price control as authorized in the retail tobacco code, William A. Hollingsworth, of New York, president of the Retail Tobacco Dealers of America, called the price cutters "pirates, racketeers and burglars" of the trade.

The code, which the retail dealers promoted, allows retailers to mark up prices from 25 to 28 per cent on the invoice price.

Hollingsworth said that today he would "call names and quote Government statistics" to show how "a small group of department stores" makes the public pay for the "give-away" price on cigarettes "by charging them outrageously high prices for other articles."

He said he would reveal that a large New York department store, which makes a practice of using tobacco as a loss-leader, makes a profit ranging from 136 to 1,000 per cent on some of its imported articles.

"This store is, and has been, the big captain of the drive down here to defeat price control in the codes," he said. "It is out now to beat it in our code. But it and its allies will find the tobacco industry putting up a united front against them. They will find that the retailers, the jobbers, the manufacturers, organized labor and the tobacco growers are all for price control."

Johnson Predicts Weir NRA Test

to conduct the election yesterday, however, Weir took the position that since his company had contract with a company union, the election would have to be conducted as the union desired. For the Labor Board to interfere would be a violation of the recovery act, he contended.

Answering this, Johnson pointed out that the recovery act only stipulates that employers must keep hands off such elections, and that employes shall not be required to join a company union.

"When an election is conducted under supervision of a company," Johnson told newsmen, "the relations are that the employe votes with his eye on the boss. The employer has no right to supervise it, and in my opinion the Weir balloting is a violation of the steel code, in addition to a violation of his agreement with the Labor Board.

Roosevelt Valet Seeks Job.

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 15 (AP).—A one-time chauffeur, valet and masseur of President Roosevelt today was found to be enrolled on the Wake County reemployment lists seeking some work.

Pirates in Oyster Raid Rout Police

The flotilla of pirates gathered yesterday near Morgantown and Deputy Sheriffs Bruce Wilmer, Arthur Wolfe and Leo Haden, in a police boat especially equipped to fight the pirates, moved into action.

As they approached the fleet, shots were fired. No one was wounded, but the police boat soon was surrounded by the outlaw boats, which bristled with rifles. The police boat made shore and Wilmer left his aids behind a sand breastwork with orders to shoot to kill if the pirates tried to molest the boat. His instructions were not obeyed, however, when the pirates boarded the police boat and disabled it.

Wilmer went for aid and Sheriff R. Vernon Cooksey, a detail of State Police and a score of armed oystermen came to the aid of the deputies, but the pirates had fled. For the last week Wilmer has received threatening letters from Eastern Shoremen, who declared they would raid the beds, regardless of the consequences.

Mrs. Croker's Ouster Blamed on Washington

Tallahassee, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP).—Declaring it "was a very unpleasant task for me" to "summarily discharge" Mrs. Bula Croker, widow of the late Tammany chieftain, as chairman of the Palm Beach County Civil Works Administration, Gov. Dave Sholtz could "do nothing but carry out instructions from Washington," and so far as he was concerned it was "a closed matter."

There will not be a hearing for Mrs. Croker, a colonel on his military staff, the Governor said.

Astor Scion Engaged To New York Socialite

New York Dec. 15 (AP).—The engagement of John Jacob Astor, son of the late Col. John Jacob Astor, who went down with the Titanic, to Miss Eileen S. S. Gillespie, Junior League member, was announced tonight.

Astor, who inherited a substantial estate when he attained his majority on August 14 of this year, is a lineal descendant of the John Jacob Astor who founded the family's fortune.

Those Turbulent Twins, NRA, PWA, 6 Months Old Today

NRA is 6 months old today.

Its twin, P. W. A., also is celebrating, both being created in the same act, which the President approved on June 16.

NRA had 150 codes approved up to yesterday and 270 pending. The courts are getting more and more test cases of the recovery program as it heads toward its first anniversary.

It has 18 months to go at the most, as the act stipulates that it will expire automatically two years from approval. There are three ways in which it could terminate sooner—by being held unconstitutional, by proclamation of the President, or by act of Congress.

In the first six months of its existence, the Public Works Administration has allocated all but about $300,000,000 of the orrigional $3,300,000,000 expenditures allowed. The President is reported to be planning to ask an additional sum up to $1,875,000,000 for public works.

The "brain trust" is working on plans to save as much of the National recovery act as may be constitutional—after the emergency—for incorporation in permanent legislation, provided no political change in the complexion of Congress comes in the meantime.

Invalid Admits Torch Slaying

Child of Woman in Fatal Triangle Picks Killer as He Queries Police.

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—An emaciated little man with a serious heart ailment confessed today the slaying and attempted cremation of a rival with whom he had quarreled over a woman.

Fred J. Markham, 33, arrested through a clew furnished by the small son of the woman, told the police he had built a pyre of bricks and rubbish in a vacant lot today to dispose of the body of John Jobb, 53, a caretaker, whom he killed three days ago.

The flaming body was discovered by a passing youth, who went to the bonfire to get a light for his pipe.

Police learned from Jackie Threlkeld, 8, that Markham and Jobb quarreled last Tuesday. Markham was identified as one of the spectators who had been plying police with questions and "theories" about the killing.

Markham soon confesed. He said he was a roomer in the building tended by Jobb and that they had quarreled over frozen water pipes. Thinking Jobb was about to attack him with a knife, he told police, he went to his room, got a revolver and shot Jobb three times. Then he hid the body in a storeroom.

"I finally decided I had better burn the body," he said, "so I dragged it downstairs, fixed it up on bricks so to get a good draft and piled rubbish on it. I poured gasoline over the whole mess and lit a match. Then I went and had some breakfast."

Jackie's mother, Mrs. Nettie Threlkeld, admitted she had gone out with both men, and they had quarreled about it, but she denied she knew anything about the killing.

PolicemanHeld As Youth Dies

Bluecoat Asserts He Was Forced to Use Gun to Defend Life.

Private Joe H. Johnson, 36, Tenth Precinct policeman, was arrested after John Francis Smith, 20, colored, died at Casualty Hospital yesterday of a bullet wound, allegedly inflicted by the policeman when he caught the youth stealing an automobile tire.

The shooting occurred December 5, after Johnson surprised the youth in front of the policeman's home, 1113 Morse street northeast, tampering with the spare tire on an automobile.

According to Johnson, the youth attacked him with a heavy tire iron. The policeman said he was forced to shoot his attacker to defend his life.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said an early inquest would be held.

Labor Makes Commons Sit Nearly 24 Hours

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—Unyielding Labor opposition that has forced a total of 33 divisons since the start of the session caused the House of Commons to sit for nearly 24 hours at a stretch, ended early this afternoon.

The regular Friday session was dropped and a recess was declared until Monday.

Farm Youth Arraigned In San Jose Lynching

San Jose, Calif., Dec. 15 (U.P.).—Anthony Cataldi, 18, farm youth, was arraigned today on a charge of participating in a lynching. He did not plead. Preliminary hearing was set for next Wednesday.

Cataldi allegedly boasted to newspapermen after the lynching of the two Hart kidnapers that he led the assault on the jail.

Reichstag Case Closes Today

Final Defense Plea Will Climax Many Weeks of Testimony.

Leipzig, Germany, Dec. 15 (AP).—Five solemn supreme court judges will go into retirement after tomorrow to determine the fate of a German, a Dutchman, and three Bulgarians accused of burning the German House of Representatives and committing high treason.

For weeks these justices have heard reams of testimony, thousands of questions and hours of pleading during the trial of the alleged Communists.

The man whose fate is most uncertain is Ernst Torgler, one-time Communist leader in Parliament, whose death by decapitation State's Attorney Karl Werner demanded on what he himself termed circumstantial evidence.

The plea of Torgler's attorney, Alfons Sack, is scheduled for tomorrow and is awaited with the most intense interest. Dr. Sack, a Hitlerite, in taking the case said he did so only because he was convinced of the innocence of his client.

His arguments, pitted against those of the prosecuting attorney, probably will constitute a high point in German legal history.

Catholic Educator Dies in Brooklyn

Father Murphy Was Once at Georgetown.

The Rev. Thomas E. Murphy, 77, former vice president of Georgetown University, died Thursday night in St. Mary's Hospital, Brooklyn, according to news received here yesterday. His death was caused by pneumonia.

Father Murphy was professor of Latin and Greek, prior to his elevation in 1891 to the vice presidency. He served in this position until 1893.

Later he became president of the College of St. Francis Xavier, and then president of Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass. Since 1912, he had been pastor of St. Ignatius Church, Brooklyn.

Advocate General's Office to Be Moved

U. S. Relief Agencies Need More Space.

Program of shifting Government offices to make room for emergency agencies continued yesterday when it was announced the Army Judge Advocate General will be transferred to the Otis Building, 810 Eighteenth street northwest.

The general's office was in the Walker-Johnson Building, headquarters of Federal Emergency Relief and Civil Works Administrations. A bulletin at the Interior Department, which has charge of office space, said the move will be made tomorrow.

Recently several branches of the NRA were forced out of the Commerce Building into the Investment Building, at Fifteenth and K. The shift made available 5,000 feet of space for the Home Loan Corporation.

Britain's Royal Family Plans "Just Folks" Christmas Party

Sandringham, England, Dec. 15 (AP).—King George and Queen Mary, surrounded by their children and grandchildren, will spend an "all-British" Christmas. There will be turkey from the Sandringham farms, a Yule tree from the Sandringham woods, a Christmas pudding of all-empire ingredients, and British-made gifts.

Queen Mary herself plans to don an apron and help mix the pudding in Buckingham Palace, and, in a brief excursion to Sandringham, choose from among the fir trees notched by the wood-cutters the one that will be the center of attraction in the great white drawing room.

Jolly Fireside Affair.

The royal holiday house party will be a jolly fireside affair, with the King and Queen joined by the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York, the Duke of Gloucester, Prince George; Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

The princess royal will spend a quiet Christmas with her husband, the Earl of Harewood, and two sons at Harewood House, Yorkshire, where she is convalescing after her recent operation.

The monarch will deliver a Christmas message to his people all over the world at 3 p. m. Christmas day.

The pre-Christmas season has made busy bees of the royal grandchildren, Princess Elizabeth, who will be 8 in April, and 3-year-old Princess Margaret.

Gifts Closely Guarded.

No state secrets could be guarded more closely than the mysterious presents which Princess Elizabeth, accompanied only by a nurse, has bought to be given in her name and in that of her sister.

Gifts have been purchased for "grandpa," "grandma," "Uncle David," and the other uncles, as well as for their mother and father, and not until Christmas morning will the nature of the presents be revealed.

On Christmas Eve there will be the time-honored ceremony in the white drawing room when their majesties will distribute gifts to all servants.

Powers to Aid Chaco Decision At Montevideo

Bolivia-Paraguay Peace Is Latest Conferees' Aim; Hull Speech Cheered.

Montevideo, Dec. 15 (AP).—To achieve peace between Bolivia and Paraguay in their half-century struggle over the Gran Chaco, the peace committee of the Pan-American Conference unanimously voted tonight to offer the services of the conference directly to the combatants.

The action, which is subject to ratification tomorrow by the whole conference and thereafter subject to immediate execution, was the climax of a session in which Argentina and Chile, aided by the United States and seven other delegations, obtained a unanimous resolution urging the signing of five existing antiwar treaties by those American republics not now signatories.

Earlier another outstanding conference committee, the one dealing with economics, adopted without a dissenting vote, as a Pan-American expression, a United States resolution favoring tariff reductions.

Hull Statement Cheered.

Amid fervid applause, Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, declared that President Roosevelt seeks to disentangle the United States from "the obligations of another era" which are incompatible with a "good neighbor" policy of enlightened liberalism.

The Chaco resolution read:

"The Pan-American Conference reaffirms a strong faith in pacific measures under which everything possible will be effected to re-establish rapidly a Paraguayan-Bolivian peace;

"Second, the American republics are disposed to cooperate with the League of Nations in the application of its pact;

"Third, the conference advises the Paraguayan and Bolivian governments of the foregoing and also of a desire for a quick solution to the conflict and a disposition to serve the cause of peace."

Argentina Reluctant.

The League of Nations pact provides sanctions which, it was understood, Argentina has been unwilling to impose against the Chaco belligerents.

Argentina, the United States and Brazil were outstanding in a revival of peace overtures during the day.

Argentina pledged itself to sign four of the five agreements to which it is not a signatory.

The United States promised to adhere to the Argentine peace pact and Brazil embraced the Briand-Kellogg document.

The peace resolution sought ratification of the five existing peace treaties "to eliminate forever the use of violence in America."

CWA Cuts Relief Expense in District

$1,359,555 Is Cost Here in Five Months.

Emergency relief expenditures in the District for the first five months of the present fiscal year amounted to $1,359,555.08, according to a report yesterday by Relief Director LeRoy H. Halbert. Of this, $96,020.56 went in administrative expenses and the rest in relief, most of it for "made work."

The civil works program had the effect of slowing down relief expenditures in the last two weeks in November. In those two weeks the expenditures were $78,356.82, or just about the outlay for one week in the days prior to C. W. A.

Judge's Charges Result in Probe

Committee to Sift "Petty" Traffic Cases.

The District Commissioners yesterday set up a committee to investigate Police Court Judge John P. McMahon's charges that Traffic Bureau officers spend too much time making cases for petty offenses and not enough in arresting those guilty of gross infractions of the traffic rules.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward H. Thomas and Edward M. Welliver and Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, will form the investigating committee. They will report to the Commissioners.

Editorial Office Workers Form National Guild

Heywood Broun Named President, Declares for Five-Day Week.

The American Newspaper Guild, composed of reporters, copy readers and other editorial department employes, was formed yesterday at a meeting attended by representatives of local guilds from 28 cities.

Prior to the organization meeting, the newspapermen listened to a talk by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who said he would assure newspaper workers of the protection of the National Recovery Act in any organization moves upon which they decide.

Heywood Broun, New York columnist, was elected president of the guild. In a talk at the same meeting addressed by Johnson, Broun said the primary objective of the guild is a five-day week.

"And," he added, "we are going to get the five-day week whether we get it under the newspaper code or later."

Others Elected.

Other officers elected were Lloyd White, of Cleveland; Andrew McLean MacParker, of Philadelphia; Edward B. Burks, of Tulsa, Okla.; Richard S. Gilfillan, of Minneapolis, and A. Judson Evans, of Richmond, vice presidents; Emmett Crozier, of Newark, treasurer, and John Eddy, of New York, secretary. The officers will serve as members of the executive committee with Doris Fleeson, of New York; Ruth McKenney, of Akron, and Tom Brown, of Buffalo.

"If you choose to organize yourselves in any way for collective bargaining," Gen. Johnson told guild members, "and for the purposes of protecting your rights, no person in this Administration may interfere, nor may your employers interfere. The statute says that no employer shall make membership in any organization or lack of membership a condition of employment."

The NRA administrator was handed a proposed code for the press associations by Morris Watson, a member of the New York staff of the Associated Press. The Associated Press stated later that the code was not presented on behalf of the Associated Press or its employes.

Urges Code Be Imposed.

Watson said that as the press associations had not presented a code of their own, the newspapermen believed the industry had labor abuses that needed correction and that Presidential action was warranted to impose a code. Joined with Watson in presenting the proposed code was Arthur Markel, deputy international president of the Commercial Telegraphers Union.

Johnson explained that NRA's codes so far have all been offered voluntarily, but that a code could be imposed upon an industry where abuses of its workers existed and no move was made by the management to offer a pact.

He told the newspapermen it was not his place or that of NRA to influence or help labor organizations but "if you fear your employer may fire you for joining a guild or a union, that fear can be stilled."

Writers Oppose Code Adoption

Pen Women's League Votes Against Organizing.

The National League of American Pen Women last night went on record against the proposed writers' code following heated discussion. The Authors League of America had previously taken a similar stand.

Phyllis Moore Gallagher, chairman of fiction of the District branch of the Pen Women's League, presided and spoke in opposition. Pendleton Hogan, Washington author, opposed the proposal, while W. E. Barrett, another writer, favored adoption.

Miss Gallagher declared that it would be difficult to get together a representative group of authors and suggested that "writers are too different in temperament and in creative ability" to organize.

She also asserted that it would be impossible to adopt a uniform price scale for writers' products, as no two writers have the same ability or following.

10 Fishermen Drown In Adriatic Storm

A heavy downpour of rain flooded the principal plazas, including the historic San Marco Square. Canals were swelled, but receded with only slight damage and with no loss of life.

Mrs. Guggenheim Starts South American Flight

Nogales, Ariz., Dec. 15 (AP).—Mrs. E. A. Guggenheim, piloted by Russell W. Thaw, son of Harry K. Thaw, arrived at the Nogales International Airport today on the first lap of their flight from Phoenix, Ariz., to South America.

They planned to take off for the South after obtaining papers to enter Mexico.

Post Comic Strip Decision Upheld

In the first instance the personal relation is of the very essence; in the latter it plays no part. Besides guides furnished by the Federal courts, the court is encouraged in this conception by Devlin vs. Mayor, 63 N. Y. 8. There it is stated with irresistible pellucidity that assignability depends upon the nature of the contract and the character of the obligation undertaken. Intent unless clearly expressed has no control.

Personal Equation Absent.

"But when declaration of the intention of nonassignability, either express or by fair implication, is absent, the contract is assignable unless of personal character, as a promise to marry or one requiring skill, science or peculiar qualifications. The contract here considered requiring on the one hand forwarding of matrices and on the other use of ordinary mechanical appliances, for the purpose of manifold reproduction, cannot be said to call into play other than knowledge of the use of ordinary implements.

"Viewed from every angle, even with prejudiced eyes, this contract can not be tagged as nonassignable. Considering the credit feature of the agreement, a like conclusion is reached. In re Niagara Rad. Co., 164 Fed. 102, it was held that if nonassignability is not inhibited, the credit extended to the vendee does not make it so, provided the assignee is ready to pay cash. In Pardee vs. Kanaday, 100 N. Y. 121, we find the principle that the insolvency of the purchaser does not excuse nondelivery. The only effect thereof is to give the vendor the right to demand cash on delivery.

While considering this feature of the case we must not be led astray by the difference between novation and assignment. Here no novation was attempted (Gargiulo vs. California, W. & D., 103 Misc. 691). Finally, like a beacon perceptible from all points of the compass, is the test laid down in State Bank vs. Central Mercantile Bank, 248 N. Y. 428. Will the contract, if it were made by an individual, pass to his executor? If it does, it is not personal and may be assigned in the pronouncement of the last mentioned authority.

Surely, in the matter now being discussed, the contract being for five years, it was the intention that it was to be binding no matter what change was effected in the control of the plaintiff."

The Chicago Tribune also argued in the appellate division that the failure of the receiver of The Washington Post Co. affirmatively to adopt the contract between the Chicago Tribune and The Washington Post Co. excused the Chicago Tribune from further performance. The Appellate Court in New York, however, did not accept this contention.

As a result of the decision of the Appellate Division in New York, The Washington Post will continue as heretofore to receive and publish "The Gumps," "Dick Tracy," "Winnie Winkle," "Gasoline Alley," and the other features covered by the contract.

Piney Branch Work Awarded

N. Y. Firm Given Contract to Build Relief Sewer for $326,020.

The Commissioners yesterday awarded to the M. A. Cardo Engineering Corporation of New York a contract to build the Piney Branch Relief Sewer, near Fifth and Ingraham streets. The contract price is $326,020.76.

The entire project will be paid for by P. W. A. funds, of which $1,759,000 has been allotted to the District for sewer construction. It is intended to eliminate the recurrent annoyance and property damage in the Piney Branch Valley from flooding which regularly follows heavy rains. It will furnish a year's work to about 200 men, according to an estimate by Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals.

The Commissioners awarded to the J. B. McCrary Co., Inc., of Atlanta, a contract to construct a service sewer in Fourth street between Neal place and New York avenue northeast, at a cost of $5,625.20.

Another contract, awarded to the Colonial Brick Co., was for the purchase of 500,000 vitrified sewer bricks for $8,995.

Three Indicted In Drug Ring Revealed Here

Federal grand jury indictments were returned yesterday in Chicago against three men on information obtained by the narcotic squad of the Washington Police Department in a drive against a narcotic ring, described by officials as one of the largest in the Middle West.

The indictments, reported in an Associated Press dispatch, followed the arrest of Jack F. Taylor in Washington last week. Detectives Daniel Jones and C. E. Mansfield arrested Taylor, after an envelope containing a quantity of heroin addressed to him was recovered from the mail clerk of the Plaza Hotel.

A charge of violating the Harrison narcotics act was placed against Taylor, and another envelope addressed to the arrested man was turned over to police.

Information about a huge dope ring throughout the Middle West and centering in Chicago was discovered in the second envelope. Police in Chicago arrested two other men on the information received.

In addition to Taylor, the men indicted are Louis Smith and J. F. Lewis, both of Chicago. Bonds were fixed at $10,000. Bills returned by the jury charge violations of the Harrison act and Jones-Miller act, prohibiting importation of narcotics.

Cabinet Invalids Gain in Hospitals

The three members of the Cabinet convalescing in hospitals here were reported yesterday as "improving," the Associated Press said.

Secretary Swanson, of the Navy Department, confined to the Naval Hospital in a weakened condition after a cold, was still denied visitors other than his immediate family.

Secretary Ickes, of the Interior Department, abed at the Naval Hospital because of a rib fractured in a fall on the ice, continued to improve and carried on the normal functions of his many offices.

Secretary Dern, of the War Department, who is in Walter Reed Hospital with an infected eye, was said to be "doing nicely." He also was signing orders and correspondence at his room in the hospital. He expects to remain at Walter Reed for several days.

11,000 More Jobs Planned in Survey

Employment for an additional 11,000 "white collar" workers was planned yesterday in an inventory of the building situation throughout the country.

The inventory will be under the direction of Willard L. Thorp, head of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. He said it would afford "actual knowledge of local conditions in detail before any group of men embark on a campaign of building or real estate development."

Labor Board Staff Working 9 to 4:30 Day

Wagner Gets Resolution of Appreciation From NRA Union.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, has issued an order that all employes in his division work only from 9 to 4:30 o'clock daily and that they be given compensating time off whenever it is absolutely necessary that they work overtime, it was revealed last night at a meeting of the NRA union. Sixty-five employes are affected.

A resolution of appreciation was adopted by the union, Lodge No. 91, American Federation of Government Employes, and will be forwarded to Senator Wagner.

The lodge named a committee to investigate complaints of members that they are being subjected to petty discriminations because of their affiliation with the union. If evidence of the charges is found, it will be placed before Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

A resolution condemning the dismissal of 50 employes in the duplicating department of the NRA and the subsequent working of remaining employes overtime was adopted. The lodge demanded that the 50 be restored to duty.

The lodge also suggested that a careful study be made in the future of departmental needs before any dismissals are ordered and asked that all employes who are dismissed for just cause be given a month's notice.

Buick Dealers See New Cars

A. C. Tiedemann, Jr., Host to Zone Agencies at Meeting.

A. C. Tiedemann, jr., zone manager, was host yesterday to 200 Buick dealers at a meeting at the Shoreham Hotel, when plans for the 1934 selling season were discussed.

Models of the new car and motion pictures of the various new mechanical features of the car were shown.

Carl Gubisch, assistant zone manager, introduced Mr. Tiedemann, who outlined the program of the meeting, after which the cars were unveiled.

C. P. Simpson, assistant general sales manager of Pontiac, whose car is also sold by Buick dealers, was the principal speaker. He said that General Motors Corporation held the belief business was on the upturn. He further expressed the opinion that because the automobile is the largest completed article on the market today selling at prices from a few hundred dollars to several thousand that it would be one of the major factors in helping recovery, for there was not a State in the Union that did not furnish some product in building automobiles.

3,000 Councils Proposed to Handle Culture and Price Fights.

(Associated Press.)

The organization of more than 3,000 consumers' councils throughout the United States, whose activities would range from hearing price complaints to promoting symphony orchestra, was outlined here yesterday as an objective of the Consumers Advisory Board of the Recovery Administration.

At a conference under the auspices of the board and the consumers' counsel of the Farm Administration, Dr. Paul H. Douglas, of the Advisory Board, said plans already were under way for setting up such councils.

The local units, Douglas said, would receive price complaints, serve as information agencies, express consumers' opinion on matters of public policy, aid in the orderly distribution of goods and arouse interest in playgrounds, parks, schools and cultural projects, such as symphony orchestras.

Would Include All Classes.

Membership of each council would include, if possible, a member of a women's organization interested in consumer problems, a county agricultural agent, a home demonstration agent, a "dirt farmer," a housewife of "moderate or less than moderate" needs, a manual worker and a member of a consumer cooperative.

In discussing the relation of tariffs to the consumption of goods, Secretary Wallace estimated that three-fourths of the people wanted a downward revision of import duties, but that nine-tenths of those coming to Washington to seek legislation favored higher levies.

"These are the pressure groups that get their legislation across," he said.

Suggests Consumer Action.

If consumers were properly led, he asserted, there might be a "real revision" of tariffs in three or four years.

Hugh S. Johnson, the NRA administrator, urged that consumers be alert in guarding against "extortion," but that they not object to justified price advances.

Following a morning session at the White House, where members of the conference were welcomed by Mrs. Roosevelt, they were her guests for luncheon. Open discussion was held in the afternoon at the Pan-American Union. The conference will continue through today.

New Carnegie Officers Named

Steel Man's Son-in-Law and F. B. Jewett Chosen Institution's Trustees.

Roswell Miller, son-in-law of Andrew Carnegie, and Frank B. Jewett, former vice president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was elected yesterday to the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Miller was graduated as a civil engineer from Princeton in 1921 and later became instructor in mechanical engineering in New York University. Jewett has had a distinguished career in electrical engineering and long service with the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Officers of the board for the coming year are: Elihu Root, chairman; Henry S. Pritchett, vice chairman, and Frederic A. Delano, secretary.

Members of the executive committee, which was reelected, are these officers and also W. Cameron Forbes, Cass Gilbert, John C. Merriam, Stewart Paton and Frederic C. Walcott.

Data Due Tuesday On Roads Survey

Regional Committee Will Get Report.

The Washington regional highway committee will meet Tuesday to consider a report of the Bureau of Public Roads on results of a traffic survey made in 1932. It is from this survey that a program for building new highways and improving old ones will be made.

All roads leading into the Capital from Maryland and Virginia in a radius of 20 miles were covered in the study. The data will augment a regional plan made by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission three years ago.

The highway group represents the Maryland State Roads Commission, Virginia Highway Department, Alexandria, Fairfax, Arlington, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties and the District and Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commissions.

THE LINCOLN

Presenting a new series of V-12 cylinder motor cars

FROM time to time changes are made in the Lincoln. They have only one aim—to make an ever-better motor car available to those whose good judgment demands the best.

After many years of manufacturing, the Lincoln V-type engine has now been perfected to a point that justifies the adoption of a single design V-12 cylinder engine for all Lincoln cars. In it are incorporated all those mechanical refinements which experience has proved desirable.

The powerful, smooth performance which only the Lincoln V-12 cylinder, 150-horsepower engine can give. Polished aluminum cylinder head—for more rapid acceleration, more perfect use of fuel. Oil temperature regulator, bearings of high-speed airplane type—for finer engine operation, greater endurance, greater economy. New single-plate clutch, improved braking mechanism—for easier and safer driving. Outstanding among other features which add materially to the general satisfaction is the new Lincoln clear-vision, body ventilation system.

The Lincoln of today is available in two wheelbase lengths, in standard body types, and in custom-built types by Judkins, Brunn, Willoughby, Dietrich and LeBaron. With full equipment, prices at Detroit range from $3200.

Another Professor Balks.

President Roosevelt by now must be about convinced that as advisers college professors are a difficult lot. He no more than gets one of them satisfied and pulling in harness, or off the reservation, than another one balks.

The latest of the "balkers" is Prof. James Harvey Rogers, who was brought to Washington along with Prof. Warren as a special adviser on monetary policy.

Until the last few days Prof. Rogers was going along nicely. Thursday night before the Foreign Policy Association of Cincinnati, however, he let loose an attack that cut across almost the entire Administration program.

In the first place, he says, we are in danger of inflation. This is because the P. W. A. and the C. W. A. have "unbalanced the budget very badly."

Further, not only has the public works program "not worked very well," but through paying wages above the private level it is "pulling labor from local industries that were running along."

The C. W. A., as he sees it, is doing even worse, and he says he has told Mr. Hopkins that "you are going to increase unemployment faster than you can relieve it."

Finally, as though the above were not enough for one outburst, he adds that stabilization of the dollar would result in a flow of funds to this country that would "be a great stimulus to recovery."

England's Dilemma.

Great Britain, caught in the world-maelstrom of highly nationalistic policies, to which she has made her contribution, is trying to find some formula by which she can recapture some of the shipping she has lost since the World War.

Her difficulty is in finding a method that will not further aggravate her shipping situation, which is one of the worst. Shipbuilders on the Clyde are idle; her share of the passenger traffic is diminishing and the losses of her big companies are mounting; and her merchant vessels are feeling the tremendous pressure of subsidized shipping all over the world. For years England has complained, bitterly at times, against that subsidization, but without effect. She now finds it necessary to take steps to protect that great fleet which once had almost a monopoly on haulage of the world's goods and constituted one of her greatest sources of revenue.

One of her difficulties is that, in the years when shipyards have been idle, other nations have outstripped her in new vessels. From one tugboat at the end of the World War, the North German Lloyd fleet has been rebuilt through subsidy and heavy borrowing (some of it in default), to approximately its pre-war tonnage, which includes the Bremen and the Europa, two of the fastest ships afloat. The Hamburg-American Line, now merged for operating purposes with the North German Lloyd, also has built heavily and challenges England on the North and South Atlantic and the Oriental trade routes.

A great deal of the Mediterranean passenger traffic that formerly went to Great Britain has been taken by the unified Italian fleet, operating, under government direction, such excellent ships as the Rex, blue ribbon holder of the North Atlantic, and the Conte di Savoia. Although they had the Paris and the Ile de France, the French lines built the Champlain and the Lafayette, fast cabin liners giving virtually first-class service at cabin rates. The United States Lines retaliated by building the Manhattan and the Washington, evoking a strong protest from England that it was not fair for other nations to charge lower rates for service that actually was first class. But the protest has availed nothing and England finds no comfort in the future. To match the new super-Cunarder, upon which work will be resumed, France has on the ways the Normandie, which will be larger and faster, it is expected, than the new Cunarder.

If England resorts to a general subsidy to overcome the French and German and American advantage in cabin liners, or to build ships that compete with the Bremen and the Rex in speed, she only adds fuel to the flame and injures herself, because every new ship makes all the more remote the possibility of recapturing her lost trade. As Neville Chamberlain says, if she undertakes to restrict trade routes by forbidding inter-empire routes to alien ships, as we do in pre-empting coastwise and Hawaiian business, England stands to lose much more more than she would gain, because most of her business comes from outside the empire and reprisals might strip her of much of that.

Only a reversal of the subsidy policy by other nations, or some agreement that appears to be too remote to be a possibility, can help England much, it appears. A reversal of policy is not likely, because in these highly nationalistic days each nation wants its share of business. Besides, more than national pride is behind the subsidies for shipbuilding. There is, for instance, the determination on our part to have a merchant fleet for the protection it might afford us.

It is an unpleasant task England faces in making a decision as to what she shall do.

Regulating Profits.

In his annual report Secretary of Agriculture Wallace states that regulation of production and of producers' prices would seem to require as a logical corollary the regulation of profits.

"Surpluses in industry and agriculture," he contines, arise "largely because the laws that govern the distribution of income cause a polarization of wealth and poverty, a piling up of purchasing power at one end of the social scale. * * * There results an unemployed block of purchasing power which tends to be transformed into capital and to go back into production instead of entering the market for consumable goods. This makes the surplus situation worse."

In the same section of the report devoted to the "Problem of Distribution," the Secretary's statements imply that our agricultural and industrial surpluses are the result of placing excessive spending power in the hands of a favored few who, instead of employing their income to buy consumable goods, dissipate it by ill-judged investments, waste it in speculation, or permit it to lie idle.

Mr. Wallace ignores the fact that banks, insurance companies, and other investment institutions are trustees for the savings of millions of small wage earners and farmers whose combined savings constitute the backbone of the capital market. The incomes of the wealthy who are described as wasting their substance in speculation or employing it to increase the production of unwanted goods, furnish only a small part of the surplus funds needed to finance the agriculture, trade and industry of the country. Apparently the Secretary of Agriculture has failed to distinguish between the profits of individual concerns and the incomes of the numerous persons, rich and poor, who benefit from the distribution of industrial earnings.

Presumably, the regulation of profits, which is recommended, would involve restrictions upon the amount of returns to business units, since Secretary Wallace is particularly disturbed by the increased profits obtained by certain processors and distributors under agreements approved by the A. A. A. Such increases, he says, "obviously work against the purposes of the agricultural act and the national recovery act and would counteract the desired redistribution of purchasing power."

If profits are to be kept from rising, possibly by expropriation of surplus or through some form of graded tax, the most powerful regulator of economic activity under the capitalistic system will be destroyed. Not only will the rewards of efficiency be denied, but the effort to equalize surplus income, with a view to discouraging investment activities, will tend to produce a static society of a very nonprogressive sort.

There might not be large commodity surpluses to cause Mr. Wallace worry, but neither would there be much surplus income out of which to finance the expansion of industry and agriculture along sound and sane lines. We should either sink into a state of inertia or be forced to resort to some form of state socialism or communism, with public officials doing the planning and supplying the resources to meet the increasing needs of a growing population.

End of an Empire.

> The estate of the late Ivar Kreuger * * * will be sold December 21 at the offices of the Goodman Warehouse Corporation * * * Jersey City. Paintings, including the "Bacchanalian," by Peter Paul Rubens. Silver, silverplate, made by Georg Jensen, Copenhagen. Books, &c., belonging to this estate.

A story accompanying the advertisement, said that there might be had also the "Portrait of a Burgomeister," a copy of a Rembrandt by one of the Dutch school; 15 volumes of Shakespeare, 40 volumes of Dickens, and a volume each of Alexander Pope and Lawrence Stern.

The sale of the "match king's" personal effects, taken from his Park avenue apartment after he shot himself in Paris in March, 1932, is expected to realize approximately $100,000, to be applied to the claims of those who, believing in his destiny, contributed hundreds of millions to his dreams of empire.

Finis to that empire is to be written by an auctioneer in a squalid warehouse in grimy Jersey City next Thursday.

Unloading City Burdens.

As a petition for relief from municipal responsibilities, the report of the executive committee of the United States Conference of Mayors was a masterpiece. The mayors frankly ask Uncle Sam to assume the burdens of relieving their treasuries and their citizens in distress.

Their program contains a plea for a low Federal liquor tax so that municipalities may augment their revenue from this source without danger of perpetuating the bootlegger. The mayors recall the good old days when it was "recognized" that municipalities were "entitled to be the principal recipients of tax revenues" from this source. Now when they are willing to relinquish their financial responsibilities upon Uncle Sam, they fear that he is planning to take the lion's share of the liquor taxes.

The Government already is supplying all relief funds in six States and a large percentage of such funds in other States. But that does not satisfy the mayors' committee. "We believe," their report says, "that the time has come to definitely establish a Federal relief organization throughout the United States instead of dealing through 48 State government appointed and controlled agencies, some of which have been and are operating on a partisan basis."

In addition, the mayors request $2,000,000,000 to be spent through the Public Works Administration, chiefly on local projects, and continuation of the civil works enterprise until the 4,000,000 men with temporary jobs are absorbed in other types of employment. Although relief work always has been a local function, the committee would turn the entire problem over to Uncle Sam, along with a bit of advice as to how it should be handled.

Another singular request is for a second R. F. C. devoted to the welfare of municipalities. The committee believes that "it will ultimately be necessary to establish a Federal agency which shall serve as the fiscal agent for the governmental units of the United States. This agency," the report continues, "would have under its supervision a credit pool sufficient to care for the needs of the subordinate governmental units throughout the Nation." If this should prove to be impractical, the committee suggests that "rediscount privileges through the Federal Reserve system would be of considerable assistance" to cities. A more liberal arrangement of dealing with the holders of municipal bonds that are in default also is sought.

Apparently this document contains nothing about municipalities putting their own houses in order. It is primarily a plea for Uncle Sam to step in and relieve them of their financial worries. What efforts are being made to remove the causes of municipal bankruptcy? No one is suggesting that Uncle Sam take over control of local affairs. The Government is asked merely to assume the responsibility of providing funds and not of correcting the conditions which have brought many cities to their present sorry plight.

Those Three Little Pigs.

According to the Chicago Art Institute, the work of Walt Disney, notably his "Mickey Mouse" series and his "Three Little Pigs," constitutes art. On Thursday the institute held a special showing of Mr. Disney's works, featuring, of course, the three little pigs and the big, bad wolf of whom they were not (much) afraid. To an audience that sipped tea and looked at the drawings, Director Robert B. Harshe said, "They constitute art in nearly every sense."

Disney gave the screen the finest flights of poetic fantasy and the finest evidence of creative imagination it has had in a long time. He did something better than that; he vindicated the American picture-going public, to some extent.

If that public does have moods in which it enjoys vulgarity or the sadistic cruelty of gangsters, it can still respond with effervescent enthusiasm to the charm of "Three Little Pigs"—the charm that abides in Mother Goose rhymes, "Alice in Wonderland," and in such naive, simple, honest performances as Katharine Hepburn's in "Little Women."

Film Lessons to Stay.

The Dry Cleaners' Attitude.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of December 12 you devote considerable space to a report on the hearing of the dry cleaning code before the NRA officials, especially with regard to prices, and to a casual reader of your paper it would appear that the so-called cut-rate cleaner is facing ruin, and much prominence is given to the reports of certain cleaners that they can clean and press suits for 40 cents and make plenty of money doing it Of course if this be true, then the cleaners who demand double this price are gouging the public and they do not deserve either the protection of the Government or the patronage of the public.

Plenty of evidence was produced at this hearing to indicate that extremely low prices in the dry cleaning industry result in unfair trade practices, low wages, inferior services to the customer and all the evils that go with any price war in any industry.

The cleaners and dyers of this country do not want an unreasonable price for their services, but we do demand protection against vicious price cutting. If our prices can not be regulated, the entire industry will be ruined, for there is no limit to the level to which prices will descend in these price wars, as witness the ridiculous price of 15 cents for cleaning and pressing a man's suit, a price arrived at in one of our cities.

The so-called higher priced cleaners feel sure a fair trial of the prices set forth in the code will convince the public and the dry cleaners that living up to this code will be the best thing that could happen to the dry cleaning industry and will assure the public of a new deal in dry cleaning.

A Veteran Looks at Hospitalization Of Members of the C. C. C.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why should all this howl go up about the men of the Civilian Conservation Corps being admitted to the Walter Reed Hospital, while veterans with nonservice connected disabilities are not being treated free by the Government? The great majority of the C. C. C. workers receive only $30 a month, of which $23 is allotted to their dependents. Could the Government expect them to pay for hospitalization and medical attention out of such salaries?

Because the C. C. C. men are rightly allowed free hospitalization is no reason why veterans with nonservice connected disabilities should be treated at Government expense. Because a person who was not injured in the war did his duty or was forced by the draft law to do his duty, he is not entitled to be a lifelong burden on the taxpayers. As our great leader, President Roosevelt, said, the Federal Government should give medical and other aid to such persons only after the State and local governments are unable to do so. The day of such conditions as obtained in veterans' affairs before March 4 has gone, and, please God, will never return. Most of the veterans who are now yelling about hospitalization rules are persons who are perfectly well able to pay for hospitalization themselves, but prefer to have the Government do so. They are not the majority of veterans, I believe, and certainly have no place among the self-respecting element. A veteran myself, I feel heartily ashamed of the self-pitying, self-deluding "heroes" who are now raising envious cries because the men of the C. C. C. are receiving fair and humane treament from the Government.

Stafford Gives Work.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a subscriber to your paper, I read an article in The Post of December 9, headed "Why Work," and the certain county referred to indicates Stafford, as it has not drawn any money, so far as I know. But, in reference to the unemployment, I wish to say I attended an unemployment meeting and had the chairman announce I had some wood work to be done and 24 or 25 men came to me about the work. I have 17 men and two trucks working now.

If the rest of the Stafford people would do the same we would certainly not need the Federal Government's assistance. When I thought I might be delayed in paying the men off I applied to a bank for a loan and was told that the bank was short of money and I could not get it. The bank was already carrying a small note of mine ($80).

Now, I thought the R. F. C. was putting money in all the banks throughout the country for such purposes as mine, but I got by without borrowing. I can state that 17 Stafford men wanted work and have got it for a while at least.

Liquor Propaganda.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Doubtless many of your readers have noticed the insidious advertising campaign conducted in the newspapers, magazines, and in other clever ways, which has fastened the cigarette habit on millions of boys and girls.

There is the greatest danger that the liquor distillers, noting the great success of the cigarette propaganda, will start a similar movement in the case of liquor.

Now is the time, when liquor laws, regulations and codes are in course of preparation, to anticipate and provide against a liquor propaganda aimed at a great extension of the liquor habit, especially among the young people. I feel sure that the evil I suggest has not occurred to the authorities as yet.

My suggestion will doubtless be met by the answer that there are, or will be, local laws or ordinances against the sale of liquor to minors. I reply that there have been such provisions against the sale of cigarettes to minors or school children, but it is well known that they have been ineffective against the effects of the cigarette advertising campaign. In the case of liquor, there should be, so far as the Federal power may be exercised, specific provisions against such advertising propaganda as there has been in the case of cigarettes.

The hope of the writer is that some of the readers of this letter who are in sympathy with its purpose may find effective ways of supporting that purpose.

Advocating a 25-Hour Week.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The splendid gesture now being made by the administration in getting 4,000,000 men into employment is surely a step in the right direction. Was it not President Roosevelt himself who referred to the various efforts such as inflation, Government works, &c., as "shots in the arm?" And like a "shot in the arm" of cocaine or heroin, the effect will soon be over and through higher taxes and ever fewer numbers to pay them, we shall be weaker than before the "shot."

All of these efforts to reestablish normal conditions are helpful, and time will probably show that the NRA has come closer to hitting the mark of permanent relief and permanent readjustment than any other of the numerous plans started under the New Deal.

This opinion is predicated on the fact that the NRA recognizes that there is not work enough for all if those having jobs are asked to work what we once called a "full work day;" i. e., ten hours or eight hours per day, but that six to seven hours per day would create jobs for all by reason that more employes would be required to keep production and distributive service up to consumption requirements. Undoubtedly, the Recovery Administration went as far as it dared in reducing hours of labor—as a first step it is, and I think the majority of manufacturers and merchants admit it is, a success.

That a 36 or 40 hour week is only a first step is evidenced by the following figures from the Personnel Research Federation:

It states that from 1900 to 1930 the population of the U. S. A. increased 35 per cent, the consumption of goods increased 86 per cent and the employment in productive lines only 6 per cent.

Personal service, such as beauty parlors, household servants, chauffeurs, bootblacks, stock brokers, investment houses and all relating branches, and a host of other nonproductive workers have, up to 1930, largely absorbed the difference between the 6 per cent and 35 per cent increase noted. * * *

When NRA establishes a 25-hour week we shall see reemployment that is really permanent. In addition the limited hours of work or labor should be applied to executives, managers and foremen who are now exempt from that provision to the end that thousands more "white collar" workers would be put into employment.

Another Letter From a Balded-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen

My dear Louise: If it is true, as the ungallant frequently charge, that the members of your sex violate good sportsmanship more frequently than men, there is sound reason for it.

Let no one tell you that noble man invented good sportsmanship or good manners because he wished to be nice to his brethren.

Good manners are a product of expediency. Men learned, by hard experience, that it paid to be considerate—for the ill-manner received few favors and many bruises.

Now we practice good manners for their own sake, as proof that we are civilized; but the art itself remains as it was in the beginning—a nice regard for the other fellow's feelings.

In this matter, if in no other, you began life with a handicap. You were an "only" child.

In large families, where many individuals have conflicting desires and rights, a child learns good manners in the hard school of experience. If he tries to be selfish and trample on the feelings of others, there is an immediate howl of protest. He learns to be thoughtful because he suffers for his sins when he isn't.

Since you were denied that natural schooling, a rigid self-discipline is your only hope.

An individual may be wondrous kind by nature and practice, but still he will become thoughtless of others if he is much alone or free of competition.

There is only one sure way to "remember your manners," and that is not to remember them at all. They must become second nature, so that you will do the right thing without thinking.

People can't eat with their fingers at home and then remember to use a fork in public. Some day they will forget, and habit will expose them.

That is equally true of thoughtfulness. You can't forget everybody else and concentrate on being nice to yourself while at home and then remember to offer an old lady your seat when you go visiting.

Thoughtfulness takes thought—until it becomes habit. You must think and think and think, every moment of the day: "There are others to be considered. How will this suit them?"

It takes a lot of time to be a gentlewoman, but the reward is equal to the effort. Love,

DAD.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

THE boys hereabouts who have been following closely the activities of Secretary Ickes against "practitioners" before his department, particularly as they related to Bob Jackson, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, were utterly confounded yesterday upon picking up their favorite morning paper to see that Jackson had been a dinner guest the night before at the White House, and a guest, too, at the most pompous dinner which the White House gives, that to the Supreme Court. Just which way one who always wants to be right should turn now is a most difficult question, indeed.

BARGERON.

Mind you now, earlier in the week Mr. Ickes, whom we have been led to believe is one of Mr. Roosevelt's favorite Cabinet officers, declared publicly that Mr. Jackson's representative was persona non grata and should not be permitted in the department. Everyone acquainted with the facts knows that this applies to the whole firm of Jackson, esquire.

* * * *

THIS is a most unusual move for a Cabinet officer to make and I hope I am not exaggerating to say that the populace becomes all agog. What is to become of Mr. Jackson and others prominent in the last campaign who are carrying on a similar practice as he?

Indeed, Mr. Ernest K. Lindley, who certainly ought to know what is going on around Mr. Roosevelt, tells us in the New York Herald Tribune that Mr. Henry Morgenthau has moved in the Treasury to cut out the income tax practices being plied alike by men closely identified with Mr. Roosevelt in the campaign and prominent Republican politicians. Mr. Lindley leaves the impression that this activity of those close to Mr. Roosevelt in the campaign is very distasteful and bothering to the President.

Yet as Mr. Lindley was writing this story Mr. Jackson was breaking bread in the White House and laughing and joking with members of the high judiciary, he being a most personable gentleman and delightful dinner companion.

* * * *

IF IT isn't all most confusing, I'll eat my hat. And where, in the name of goodness, does it leave Ickes?

It has not been the practice in the past for our Cabinet officers to deny their departments to men who eat at the White House. An invitation to dine there has been considered an attainment of the first degree, a bestowal of the knighthood of first citizen, in fact. Leaders of business and industry have raced across the country by train and plane, through snow and sleet, upon receiving an invitation to the White House to dine, and invariably they have felt more important and have been given more importance by their fellow citizens after the event. To say that they could go very freely about official Washington afterward is to express it very mildly, indeed.

But this will not be the case with Mr. Jackson in Mr. Ickes' department unless the latter backs down.

* * * *

IS IT possible that we are developing a dual system of knighting in this country, that as in Masonry there will be two routes to the Shrine?

Is it possible that in the future when some citizen boasts that he has dined at the White House, he will be met with the counter claim: "You haven't accomplished anything; I have been admitted to Secretary Ickes' department."

It is very clear from the Jackson case that the two accomplishments are not correlated or dependent upon one another in the least. They are most separate and distinct.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

The other day I was asked if I knew and could recommend any book that was an example of pure humor; that was written merely and purely for laughter. My questioner did not want satire or propaganda; she wanted something funny.

I have spent many years filling prescriptions for readers, and I had no difficulty in filling this one. My answer was, "Any book by P. G. Wodehouse." Mr. Wodehouse is an Englishman who has spent so much time in America that he is as familiar with our idioms and with our colloquial slang as any American could be.

With him humor is not a means but an end. His intention is pure diversion; he wishes to make us laugh. There are no teeth in his genial humor; he is just downright funny. That is, outside of supreme creative genius, perhaps the most difficult thing to accomplish in literary composition; many try, but few succeed.

I regard Mr. Wodehouse as a public benefactor, because I think he has given thousands of men and women real happiness; he cheers us all up by making us roar with laughter. We forget our troubles and the problems of life while we read his pages. Of all his books, I like best "Leave It to Psmith;" but any book—and there are a number of them—containing his character Jeeves is heartily to be recommended.

I am sure Mr. Wodehouse must enjoy writing, for his books reveal creative enjoyment.

Girl Christens Navy's Newest Cruiser Today

Bremerton, Wash., Dec. 15 (AP). The cold waters of Puget Sound today splashed in a chilly baptism against the hull of the United States Navy's newest fighting vessel, the cruiser Astoria.

The giant building dock at the Puget Sound Navy Yard is being filled with water, preparatory to christening the ship tomorrow, when Miss Lelia C. McKay, of Portland, will break a bottle of California champagne over the bow. The 10,000-ton fighting vessel then will float free, proudly bearing the name of one of the first white settlements in the Pacific Northwest.

Officers of the Navy Yard said the Astoria will be finished for $1,000,000 less than original construction estimates of $9,000,000. It is the second cruiser built in the yard here, the Louisville having been launched in 1930.

The cruiser is 588 feet long, of 60-foot beam and 21.5-foot draft. Powered by engines of 107,000 horsepower, she has a designed speed of 32.5 knots, 5-inch armor plate, and an armament of nine 8-inch guns, eight 5-inch antiaircraft guns, eight antiaircraft machine guns mounted in the masts, and a number of saluting and boat guns.

A hangar large enough to house four planes and two revolving airplane catapults will give the Astoria aerial "eyes."

Spanish Cabinet Resigns in Body

Former Premier Likely to Head Government.

Madrid, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Diego Martinez Barrios and his entire cabinet resigned tonight. Their resignations were accepted immediately by President Niceto Alcala Zamora.

The cabinet action had been expected. Political leaders believed that the crisis would be settled swiftly.

Former Premier Alejandro Lerroux was regarded as the most likely candidate for the premiership. He probably would seek to form a Centrist bloc government, leaning strongly toward the Conservatives.

Manchuria Wreck By Bandits Kills 8

Several Passengers Also Kidnaped From Train.

Tokyo, Dec. 15 (AP).—A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch from Harbin today said eight passengers were known to have been killed when bandits wrecked and pillaged the eastbound international train of the Chinese Eastern Railway near Tsitsihar.

One of the dead was an unidentified European, believed a German. Eight passengers were injured. The dispatch added that a number of the passengers were kidnaped.

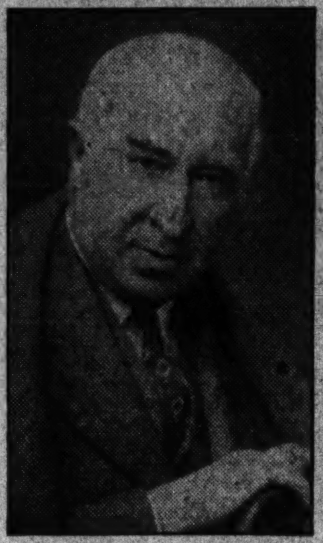
Organist Dies



GEORGE HERBERT WELLS, dean of Catholic organists in Washington, who died yesterday at Georgetown Hospital.

John H. Finn, Checker Expert, Found Frozen

Peabody, Mass., Dec. 15 (AP).—John H. Finn, 75, widely known authority on checkers and newspaper contributor, was found dead in his West Peabody camp today. Police said the aged man froze to death.

Finn wrote a column devoted to checkers which was published in American and British newspapers. A Socialist in politics, he also wrote articles on labor in the shoe industry.

G. H. Wells, 64, Organist Here 47 Years, Dies

Held First Post at 16, and Was at Monastery Since 1899.

Since 1899 he had been organist at the Franciscan Monastery. He began his career as organist at St. John's Episcopal Church, New York City, at the age of 16.

He was born in Ogdensburg, N. Y., where he received his early musical education. After serving at St. John's Church he held positions at St. Paul's Cathedral, Fond du Lac, Wis., and at the Church of the Annunciation, Philadelphia.

It was at Philadelphia that he met the Rev. John D. Whitney, then rector of Georgetown University, and decided to come to Washington as director of the Georgetown Glee Club. He subsequently was admitted into the Catholic Church.

While at Georgetown he acted as organist at Holy Trinity Church and organized the first male choir in accordance with the terms of the Motu Proprio of the Pope.

During his first year in Washington he conducted the musical program at the dedication of the Franciscan Monastery with the late Cardinal Gibbons presiding. He remained associated with the monastery until just before his death.

During the last two years he also acted as professor of Gregorian Chant at the Holy Name College at Brookland. He was a member of the Washington Chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

Solemn requiem will be at the Franciscan Monastery at 9 a. m. Monday, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

J. S. Martin, 75, Senator's Kin, Dies in Virginia

Former District Resident Found Dead in Bed; Burial Sunday.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 15 (Spl.).—John S. Martin, 75, brother of the late U. S. Senator Thomas S. Martin, was found dead in bed at his home at Scottsville, near here, this morning.

The funeral will be held in Scottsville 2 p. m. Sunday, with interment in Presbyterian Cemetery.

Martin was born in Albemarle County. His father, John S. Martin, ran a woolen mills in Scottsville and manfactured cloth for uniforms for Confederate soldiers during the Civil War.

Educated at county schools and at Richmond College, John S. Martin spent his early years on a farm. For a number of years he was secretary to Senator Martin, and resided in Washington until the latter's death.

Mr. Martin served 12 years as township supervisor, and was president of the Scottsville Brick Co. He was past master of the Scottsville Lodge of Masons.

Mr. Martin never married. Surviving are two nephews, Thomas Staples Martin, jr., Charlottesville, and John S. Martin 2d, Richmond.

Gray Ladies Honor Pioneer Member

Memorial services for Mrs. A. Garrison McClintock, prominent in Washington society and one of the pioneers of the Gray Ladies of the American Red Cross, were held yesterday in the chapel at Walter Reed Hospital by the Gray Ladies.

Mrs. McClintock died recently in France and funeral services were held Wednesday in Pittsburgh. Mrs. McClintock had been identified with the work of the Gray Ladies since 1919.

The services were attended by prominent persons in the Capital's military and civic life. The Rev. Frank L. Miller read the services and Maj. Charles H. Kendall, accompanied by Miss Mary Schick, sang the "Requiem."

Former Dry Candidate For Presidency Dies

Milledgeville, Ga., Dec. 15 (AP).—Seaborn Wright, 76, sponsor of Georgia's bone dry prohibition law and a candidate for the Presidency of the United States at onetime under the banner of the Prohibition party, died last night.

The former legislator became ill a month ago. Death was caused by pneumonia. His home was in Rome and the body will be sent there.

Huey Spurns Elite That Can't Dunk

claim to social distinction have been omitted from the Social Register, but that my name was listed therein, nonetheless.

"My conscience has begun to hurt, my nights are near sleepless, and in such shattered embraces as Morpheus now and then accords, my dreams envisage phantoms of the deserving excluded, who seem as though they are trying to lisp:

"'How could you?'

"When first I ventured toward the Nation's Capital, I imagined that I might there find that field of and for social practices that would grasp some of the finer mannerisms on which I had devoted years of my life and study. I set to work to train some of Washington's social elites on the art of eating potlikker, to no avail, however.

They're Poor Dunkers.

"The taste of many had never been sufficiently cultured to where they appreciated the delectable concoction and even those who did persisted in the crude effort of crumbling the corn pone in the potlikker instead of the modernized method of dunking.

"I have still other complaints against their social practices. For instance, only some few years ago when I was given a banquet in Washington, the soup was served in a plate, cup-shaped, with handles on either side. It was so new to Washington that one of the ladies at the table didn't think I would know anything about it. She leaned over to me and said:

"'Governor, you can drink the soup out of this, you know.'

"My! How far behind in manners was that city! Why, in the country where I had come from I had been drinking the soup out of the plate 20 years before I ever heard of Washington and without having any handles on the plate, either, and there it had just gotten to Washington a little while before I went there.

"So you can see that I already have been discouraged in my social efforts in Washington."

And Another Thing—

Long said also that he wished his name removed to save embarrassment for those who had had it placed there.

"When they are called to produce the credentials to show justification for listing me in the Register, their plight will be pitiful," he said.

In addition, he suggested that foreign ambassador listings might be offended because of the 1930 incident, in which he received a German ship commander in New Orleans in pajamas "and then had to borrow clothes enough to make the apology that Germany required."

"So, for the reasons here given," the letter concluded, "I ask you to delete my name from your Register and I return herewith the copy which you so kindly sent me."

Light Velocity Found to Vary Within Cycles

Tidal Force Present.

The same tidal force, which raises ocean waters and has been found more recently to raise tides in both the earth's crust and in the upper atmosphere, also appeared to have some effect on the speed of light.

The measurements showed a definite daily change of light's velocity following the rise and fall of the tidal force. This change in light's speed, the report stated, was in addition to the other periodic changes.

Finally there was something happening about 9 p. m. which interfered with extending the observations all night. At that hour the image of the beam of artificial light became poorly defined in the mirror used to measure its speed.

Dr. Pease is now averaging up the fluctuations for a new reading of light's speed. Dr. Michelson before he died had set the figure at 186,284 miles a second. When past 70 he started out to eliminate the uncertainty down to the very last mile.

Vacuum Tube Mile Long.

Previously he had measured the speed in the rarefied atmosphere between mountain tops. But out in space there is no air. The speed might be different there. So Michelson built a mile-long imitation of space, a vacuum tube made of corrugated iron, on the Irvine ranch, near Santa Ana, Calif.

In it he placed an egg-sized whirling octagonal mirror, revolving about 60,000 times a minute and reflecting a beam of light with the aid of other mirrors to and fro from end to end of the tube, like a bouncing ball. In this way he could measure the time it took a beam to travel 5 miles.

The present assumption of absolute velocity of light goes back to 1887, when Dr. Michelson and Prof. Morley made their renowned "ether drift" experiment in Cleveland.

Existence of the ether eventually passed into the discard of doubtful theories. Afterward Einstein, taking the Michelson-Morley experiment as sufficient evidence, set up the assumption that the velocity of light is absolute. The scientific world generally agreed. The assumption worked out very well in the calculations of celestial structure.

Woman Called 'Blondy' Clue in Oil Slaying

Shippenville, Pa., Dec. 15 (AP). Seeking clews to the killing of Clark N. Witherup, Kennerdell oil man, State Police are pushing a search for a woman named "Blondy," partially identified as occupant of a sedan in which the slain man is believed to have been "taken for a ride."

"Blondy," another woman, and two men are said by Witherup's son, Walter, 19, to have been drinking with his father in an oil shed near Kennerdell Saturday, the day the oil operator disappeared.

Tennessee Courtroom Guarded to Balk Escape

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 15 (AP).—Discovery of what officers believed to be a plot to free one of five convicts on trial for murder led today to heavily armed guards being posted at all doors of criminal court and spectators searched for weapons.

The officers acted on information that an attempt would be made to release Lonnie Taylor, east Tennessee desperado, accused along with four fellow convicts of killing an aged trusty in a break September 15.

Siamese Crown Crowds Glass Off Royal Eyes

Bangkok, Siam, Dec. 15 (AP).—Because he has to read proclamations with the aid of a magnifying glass, since his ancient Siamese crown does not permit wearing his American spectacles, King Prajadhipok's eye malady is again evident.

The monarch, however, decided today to postpone a projected visit to the United States until after April because of Siamese domestic affairs.

Admission to Keith's Is One Toy for Needy on Christmas.

Hundreds of Washington children will assemble this morning at Keithe's Theater on Fifteenth street northwest, for the big benefit show for The Post Toy and Doll Fund. The show starts at 9 a. m.

All of the children who watch the screen program, arranged by the management of Keith's Theater, will do so with the knowledge that each has done his or her bit for The Post Toy Fund by contributing a toy as admission price to the show.

Yesterday a throng of men and women crowded the New Auditorium to attend the special Joe Turner Athletic Show. Part of the proceeds went to swell the Fund.

Down in the composing and mechanical departments of The Washington Post the men employed have watched with interest the progress of The Toy and Doll Fund. Many have children of their own and know what it would be to a child not to have a toy at Christmas.

Post Employes Help.

So last night during a lull in printing The Post a collection was taken up in the mechanical department and $27.25 added to the Fund. No contribution that has come to the Fund this year pleased the Santa Claus Lady quite as much as that one. She knew it represented real interest and pride that this newspaper is doing its part to bring a Merry Christmas to every needy child in this city.

The result of that gift was to send The Post Toy and Doll Fund up to the edge of the $400 mark. If things go well, the Fund snowball will pass the $500 milepost tonight.

Yesterday a grandmother who helped valiantly with The Post Toy and Doll Fund last year, giving many toys and asking her neighbors to follow her example, came to headquarters of the Fund. This year the dread of empty stockings had become a personal one. Her own grandchildren, ranging from 2 years to 10, might have found their stockings empty this Christmas if their names had not been put on the Toy Fund list. Both the grandmother and the father, the wage-earners of the family, are out of work.

Girl Who Never Had Doll.

A little girl who never had a doll, although she is 9 years old, pressed her small nose against the window pane at the headquarters of The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund yesterday and picked out from among the array of dolls the one she hoped Santa Claus would bring her. She was cold but she remained there for a time until those in charge of the Toy Fund invited her in. This little girl may go to sleep Christmas Eve confident that Santa Claus will not forget her on Christmas morning.

New Jersey Police Seek Missing Dog

Youth's Appeal Starts State-wide Hunt.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 15 (AP).—The entire police force of New Jersey, at the command of the Governor, hunted for a stray mongrel today because an 11-year-old boy was heart-broken.

Adolph Gioia, jr., of Jersey City, N. J., appealed to Gov. A. Harry Moore to help him find Rex.

"He is a brown dog," the boy wrote, "a sort of mixed breed, half German and half Chow. Will you kindly notify troopers, for he might be wandering on a lonely road. He was lost in Lincoln, N. J. God bless you. Wishing you a merry Christmas and a happy new year."

prosecutions under the Volstead Act, outside of Federal districts, came to an end with the repeal of the eighteenth amendment on December 5. In this case two men accused of violating the Volstead Act were dismissed, the court holding that prosecutions must cease after repeal of the amendment.

The Solicitor General sought the Supreme Court decision in an effort to clarify the existing situation in which thousands of indictments charging violation of the Volstead act are pending throughout the country. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals on the Pacific Coast already has put its imprimatur on the North Carolina decision.

Trust Probe Promised.

Meanwhile, Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, announced he would seek a Congressional investigation of the alleged whisky trust. Reports that the Federal Trade Commission planned to make such an inquiry, however, could not be confirmed.

Of these developments, however, the one which excited the most interest, because of its novelty, was the telegram from smugglers promising to cease their activities if the Government let them land their liquor and President Roosevelt's prompt response to it.

The telegram made public by Mr. Gaston was signed "Siegfrid Olsen Shipping Co." described as having offices in San Francisco. This company, according to the telegram, represented the owners of the British freighter Mogun, off the California coast with a cargo described as 40,000 cases of liquor.

The telegram sought the Government's permission to have this vessel enter the Los Angeles Harbor and unload its cargo for storage in bond, subject to whatever import quotas might be prescribed.

"This cargo," the telegram continued, "represents all liquor destined for smuggling purposes off Pacific Coast, which means if vessel is allowed entry cessation of smuggling activities on this coast for at least six months.

"Owners of merchandise will sign affidavits here in Customs House to cease all sales in future to smugglers if your approval to entry is received. We have already communicated with J. H. Maloney, of Industrial Alcohol here, and he will be guided by your instructions.

"He agrees with us that this would be best solution of the smuggling problem on this coast. We shall appreciate your early reply to us and we will be glad to accept all telephone and telegraph charges in connection with this transaction."

Dr. Doran, it is understood, handed the telegram to Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., who submitted it to the President. Mr. Roosevelt decided to accept the "challenge" and gave orders for the Navy to help the Coast Guard bring in the Mogul and all other craft engaged in smuggling on the Pacific Coast.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt said that he had issued orders for naval planes stationed on the Pacific Coast to assist the Coast Guard in running down smugglers. He said the Coast Guard there was without airplanes and that the Navy would act as scouts, reporting to revenue cutters which would make any seizures. He denied the Navy was engaging in any general drive against smugglers, pointing out that was chiefly the work of the Coast Guard.

The Mogul is listed in shipping records as a 310-foot steel freighter under a Canadian registry. The latest report on the vessel, prior to the receipt of the telegram, was that it left Vancouver on May 20. The vessel is understood to act as a mother ship off the California coast for a fleet of speed boats capable of 30 knots an hour.

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 15 (AP). Charles T. P. Ulm, famous Australian airman who has crossed the Pacific and recently made a record-breaking flight from England to Australia, was today given a grant of $5,000 from the government in recognition of his services to aviation.

BankInsurance MachineReady, Roosevelt Told

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt was informed yesterday that machinery for the new Federal bank deposit insurance law would be ready for operation on January 1.

To officers of the American Bankers Association he suggested that the new measure be left untouched by Congress at this session to allow a trial period.

Walter S. Cummings, head of the Deposit Insurance Corporation, reported to the President that 7,500 of the approximately 8,000 State banks had sought to come under the insurance protection and that all of these institutions had been examined.

Asked by reporters what percentage of the State banks were found eligible, Cummings replied:

"There is a good batting average. We will have the figures ready soon."

R. F. C. to Support Banks.

President Roosevelt has offered the resources of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpurchase of capital stock in these sound institutions that require additional support to meet Federal requirements.

From January 1 to July 1, deposits up to $2,500 receive insurance. After July 1, insurance applies on deposits up to $10,000, with 75 per cent insurance on deposits up to $50,000 and 50 per cent on deposits over $50,000.

Bankers Promise Help.

Officers of the American Bankers Association in a round table discussion with the President and his chief aids assured Mr. Roosevelt that "the American Bankers Association is very sincerely desirous of promoting sound recovery."

Francis M. Law, president of the American Bankers Association, was accompanied by R. S. Hecht, first vice president; Robert V. Fleming, second vice president, and John H. Puelicher, a former president.

Acting Secretary Morgenthau of the Treasury, Jesse Jones, chairman of the R. F. C., and J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of Currency, took part in the discussion.

Texan Favored For I. C. C. Post

W. M. W. Splawn Wins Mention for Place to Be Filled This Month.

Although President Roosevelt is said to have not yet considered the pending appointment to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the name of Dr. W. M. W. Splawn, former railroad expert of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, was mentioned prominently yesterday as the one most likely to succeed Ezra Brainerd, jr., of Oklahoma.

In some quarters, the view was held that only a Republican could be named to the commission, which would eliminate Dr. Splawn. Under the law, only a majority of 6 of the 11 commissioners can be members of the same party.

The present board, however, is composed of five Republicans, five Democrats, and one Independent. According to the Journal of Practitioners before the Interstate Commerce Commission, this would allow the Democrats one more member.

Mr. Brainerd's term expires at the end of the year, necessitating an early selection by the President from a lengthy list of candidates. Dr. Splawn is a former president of the University of Texas, and author of several books, particularly on railroad operation.

Roosevelt Urged To Insure Peace

British Editor Sees War Threat in Europe.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 15 (AP).—Pointing to "grave danger of armed conflict in Europe," R. D. Blumenfeld, editor of the London Express, today called upon President Roosevelt to exercise dictatorial powers "to bring the world to its senses."

Speaking to the League of Women Voters, Blumenfeld said "Germany, following an insane policy, has become a danger spot. The German people, worked into a frenzy of excitement by Hitler's methods, are feeling the pinch. Soon they will be hungry. Then Hitler, unless prevented, must take some course to retain his control. The only course he can see is war.

"Let America and England stand together to deny credits to any nation which tries to wage war. The Anglo-Saxon peoples can do that. Together we control the world's credit and wars can't be fought without money," he declared.

35 Millions Spent on Foreign Gold; 25 Millions More Ready

Allegiance Reaffirmed.

Until this explanatory addendum appeared there had been some speculation to the effect that on the basis of his Cincinnati speech Prof. Rogers was out of step and that he might resign his special advisory role at the White House. But his statement amounted to a reaffirmation of allegiance.

More striking was Jesse Jones' confirmation of the White House disclosure that the R. F. C. had used up its first $50,000,000 in gold buying. When first questioned, Jones said, "We have offered debentures up to $75,000,000," and said he was uncertain as to whether the first gold buying fund had been $25,000,000 or $50,000,000. His attention was drawn to the R. F. C. circular announcing an initial offering of $50,000,000 of the gold purchase notes on October 26. Thereupon he remarked that the second issue must have been for $25,000,000 and that this was "about 10 days ago."

This was the first public knowledge of an addition to the fund. Reminded of his statement that but $14,885,000 was spent up to yesterday in buying domestic gold, he was asked if the remainder of the $50,000,000 had gone for foreign purchases.

Jones Evades Questions.

"No, I don't think that amount has been used up," he replied. "You know, you might load the other barrel before shooting your gun." The inference from this was that the money has been alloted to the banks through which the foreign purchases are made but that they may not have used it all as yet.

Pressed further as to whether $35,000,000 had gone for foreign purchases, he answered, "I'd be surprised if it was that much." Then he added, "not much surprised."

Persistent questioners asked if between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000 would be a fair estimate, and to this he replied, "no, I'd say between $1,000,000 and $35,000,000."

When he was reminded of his previous statement that the foreign buying was insignificant he smilingly alluded to the "dental state of things" as "getting worse." He would shed no further light on the gold mysteries—for instance, on whether foreign gold is bought at the market rate or at prices approximating the artificial rate set daily by the R. F. C.

Truism Cited on Legality.

As for guesses that the R. F. C. had refrained from foreign buying because of doubts over the legality of the gold operations, he cited the truism that "it is just as illegal to buy one dollar's worth as—well, $20 worth."

Fred I. Kent, foreign exchange manager for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, lunched at the White House and spent an hour and a half with the President discussing monetary matters but, like Jones, would not lift the veil of secrecy overhanging the foreign operations.

What interested most observers was the showing that some $35,000,000 had been allocated to foreign purchases in the effort to drive gold prices up and the dollar down, but that the results had been so inconclusive as to lead foreign as well as domestic observers to assume that no real buying abroad had been undertaken. London papers had even charged that the foreign buying must be a "bluff."

Gold Price Still $34.01.

For some time the R. F. C. posted price has been well above the world market price. Thus yesterday, when the R. F. C. price was left at $34.01 again, the same as it has been since the beginning of the month, the London price was $32.41. However, since the gold policy was inaugurated the dollar has been driven down on exchanges, though whether because of the policy itself or its inflationary implications remains a mooted question among economists. Thus on October 19, for example, before the gold policy was known, the pound was exchangeable for $4.53. Yesterday it took $5.12½ to buy one pound.

Thus the dollar has been cheapened by about 60 cents to the pound, but again the economists divide over whether this is due to actual gold operations or to the announced purpose to depreciate the dollar.

In any case, the general deduction from the revelation of some $35,000,000 of foreign operations was that it has proved to be the proverbial drop in the bucket and that untold millions more would be needed to counteract foreign "protective" measures and compel world gold prices to conform to the artificial domestic price.

Policy Will Continue.

Clearly from White House ridiculing of stabilization rumors as "worse than a bad guess" and "more spinach," and from the $25,000,000 addition to the gold-buying fund, the Administration is resolved to go on with the policy.

Mr. Roosevelt is well satisfied with results and with the public attitude, now that the early storm of criticism has almost entirely abated. Congressional support for the policy appears to be overwhelming. Nor do Democratic leaders think Congres will run away from the President on the inflation issue. House Leader Byrns said yesterday he saw no danger of Congress forcing through mandatory legislation for "greenbacks," and he predicted, incidentally, a "harmonious session."

The President already has discounted some outcry against the budget when and if it presents totals larger than Budget Director Douglas and much orthodox opinion regards as safely prudent. And the uneasiness about the budget which Prof. Rogers was quoted as expressing appears to have subsided upon his return here. Outwardly, at any rate, harmony reigns in the Administration camp.

Armored Speed Boats Aid British Air Force Bombing

"Lawrence of Arabia" One of Volunteer Crew in New Venture.

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—A new type of armored and unsinkable speed boat of revolutionary design, it was learned today, is being built by Hubert Scott-Paine for open sea bombing experiments by the royal air force.

Scott-Paine is well known in the United States as a motor boat designer and driver, who last September was defeated by Gar Wood for the Harmsworth Trophy.

Experiment for Year.

Bombing experiments have been conducted in the North Sea for more than a year. Among the volunteers who manned the boats in the first few trips was T. E. Shaw, an aircraftsman better known as the heroic Lawrence of Arabia.

The design of the new boats is a close secret.

Two speed boats now in use were designed to provide more suitable targets for the air force. They are 37 feet long, have a speed of 30 miles an hour and are capable of turning in their own length.

As many as 12 planes chased the boats on occasions. The craft are manned by three men each, but the human targets are safely protected by helmets and gas masks. The boats themselves are packed with rubber and have steel plates for protecting the engines and crew.

All Bombing Tried.

Tests have been conducted in all kinds of weather. Every kind of bombing has been tried, including the spectacular diving of bombing planes, which attain speeds of 300 miles an hour.

Each boat takes three two-hour turns in the bombing area, speeding up and down in a straight or zigzag course, according to wireless instructions, while planes rain bombs from heights of 1,000 to 15,000 feet.

Radio Waves and Ripples

A CIGARETTE manufacturer has agreed to pay N. B. C. for Metropolitan Opera broadcasting.

And thus the sponsors of Jack Pearl programs have replied to a competitor who put Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra on the air through Columbia.

For whatever damage this may do the regard N. B. C. minds may have had for themselves as public benefactors, visions of smiling stockholders may be considered ample compensation. N. B. C. has been sustaining Metropolitan Opera on its own exchequer for two years. Public benefaction on that basis isn't very much fun anyway.

Considerable disparity of opinion exists concerning the future of Baron Munchausen. There are some who say his contract expires December 23, two days before the "Hansel and Gretel" opening of Metropolitan programs, which are to be aired on 14 Saturday afternoons thereafter. N. B. C. records indicate his run continues until March.

Elder Michaux went to the Bible for a precedent for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and found not one but several. Ten, in fact. These will be recited in his WJSV broadcast from the Church of God tomorrow morning.

The Elder claims he has found where it says in the Bible that the Lord repealed the Ten Commandments, his deduction being that if it was right for God to repeal the Commandments, none can protest if a nation with as many amendments to its constitution as ours wishes merely to abrogate one.

It is recalled that the Elder made a strenuous effort to get his prohibition ideas before the city fathers during the liquor control hearings, but they were adjourned before he could arrange his affairs for a trip down to the District Building.

The Once-Over

By H. I. Phillips.

LOUD-SPEAKER TAXICABS.

The latest thing in rapid transit is the radio taxicab. Within the past few weeks thousands of cabs in the largest cities have been wired for sound, with the result that a traffic jam now has all the features of a scrambled radio program.

• • • •

Traffic in a big city always has been hard on the nerves, but with all the taxicabs operating on a national network a ride now has all the harrowing elements of a trip through the madhouse, with incidental music by the irresponsible saxophonists of North America.

• • • •

Between watching the meter, timing the bumps and listening to "The Last Roundup," the Homicide Melody Boys and Aunt Hannah's Hints on Warmed-Over Foods, a passenger now is taken for a ride, in every sense of the word.

• • • •

The taxicab companies are proceeding on the theory that a straight radio diet is the shortest distance between two points.

• • • •

It is like riding to work inside an electric piano, going shopping within a circus band-wagon, dashing to the railroad station inside a cabinet phonograph or taking your girl for a trip through the park in a rumble seat attached to a loud speaker.

• • • •

• • • •

A dignified banker leaps into a taxi to attend an important financial conference and finds Stoopnagle and Budd in his lap for the entire trip.

• • • •

A bewhiskered lawyer hops into a cab to escort a fair young client to a divorce hearing and finds the air reverberating with "Kiss Me Again."

• • • •

But after all, it is nice to know that in case of a collision you will have music until the ambulance arrives.

• • • •

The driver who used to ask, "Where to, sir?" now inquires, "What do you like, vocal or instrumental?"

• • • •

And when the traffic cop comes over to bawl out the driver for passing a red light he gets the excuse, "I'm sorry, officer, I was listening to 'Lazy Bones.'"

SANTA'S DEAD.

When you walked out I sat and wept
The loss of earth's most charming daughter,
And I'd be weeping still, except
My Christmas list is that much shorter.
DAD.

Elmer Twitchell says that in one of those chain restaurants in New York which serve liquors his cocktail tasted as if the chef made it, and his omelet tasted as if the bartender made it.

I GIVE THANKS.

For infinitely less than I Anticipated. Well, I try
To be appreciative, yes,
Of blessings, yet, I guess
I am unconsciously numb
From market crashes, and a sum
Of NRA's and I. O. U.'s . . .
I got the alphabet blues . . .
I guess I gotta hitch my star
To C. O. D. and F. D. R.!

Certainty vs. Probability.

Bidding a Slam with a part-score has always been considered much more difficult than reaching a Slam contract from a love score. The difficulty of Slam bidding with a part-score has been in a large measure obviated by the use of Forcing bids, regardless of the score, and Forcing Takeouts—that is, Jump bids in other suits as forcing for one round.

The hand below, which was played recently in a rubber game by some of New York's experts, is an interesting example of correct bidding, together with a lesson that a certainty is always to be preferred to a probability, however strong, in the play of the hand.

North, Dealer.

North:
♠ A 10 8 6
◇ A K Q 8 7 6
♣ Q 9 3

West:
♠ J 9 4 3 2
♡ K 8 7 6 4

East:
♠ K 7 5
♡ J 9 5 3
◇ J 10 5 4 3
♣ 7

♠ Q
♡ A Q 10 2
◇ 9 2
♣ A K J 10 8 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1◇	Pass	3♣	Pass
3◇	Pass	3♡	Pass
4NT	Pass	5NT	Pass
7♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's Opening lead was a trump, and had South drawn trumps and then assumed that the diamond suit would break no worse than 4-1, he would have been set as East held all the diamonds. South, however, had a much safer line of play, which he adopted. He won the first trick in his own hand, ruffed a heart, played the Ace and another spade, and ruffed with the Ten of clubs. Another heart was trumped in the Dummy, followed by another spade, which the Declarer ruffed with the Knave. Now two rounds of trumps were played and the Declarer's losing heart discarded on the diamond in Dummy. By this means of play, which was absolutely safe, all possibility of losing the hand was eliminated.

Yale Teachers Flay Roosevelt Money Policies

15 Economists Sign Plea for Sound Dollar and Predict Disaster.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 15 (AP). Fifteen Yale economists issued a statement tonight, criticising the monetary policy of President Roosevelt and calling for a "return at the earliest possible moment to a free standard."

The economists declared their belief that "the recent monetary policies of the Government have already awakened distrust of the good faith and credit of the United States," and foresaw "disastrous effects upon the finances of the National Government."

Their statement, signed by the leading figures in the Department of Social Sciences at Yale, came in sharp contrast to the recent utterances of Prof. Irving Fisher, another prominent Yale economist and stanch defender of the Administration policies.

Four Points Stressed.

A credo of four points concluded the opposition statement:

"We believe the recent monetary policies of the Government have already awakened distrust of the good faith and credit of the United States. The continuation of such policies, in connection with the heavy borrowing which the extraordinary expenditures of the Government are now necessitating, is likely to have disastrous effects upon the finances of the National Government and to force the Nation into crude paper money inflation—of all forms most harmful and least susceptible to control.

"We believe the United States should immediately announce that it will return at the earliest possible moment to a free gold standard and that the gold content of the dollar should be substantially the same as at present (25.6 grains standard).

"We believe under no circumstances should there be an issue of circulating Treasury notes, such as the greenbacks, or the remonetization of silver, whether by way of bimetallism, symmetallism or otherwise, or any Government purchase of silver except for the minting of subsidiary coins.

"We believe it is highly desirable that an early agreement be reached with the other leading nations looking to normal stabilization of their respective currencies on the gold basis."

Signed by Fifteen.

The statement was issued through the office of Prof. Fred R. Fairchild. It was signed by him and W. M. Daniels, Professor of Transportation; N. S. Buck and Clive Day, Professors of Political Economy; Andrew Barr, jr., Assistant Professor of Accounting; R. L. Dixon, Instructor in Accounting; H. B. Hastings, Professor of Industrial Administration; Kent Healy, Assistant Professor of Transportation; R. C. Jones, Associate Professor of Accounting; J. E. McDonough, Associate Professor of Political Economy; C. G. Saxon, Professor of Business Administration; E. D. Smith, Professor of Industrial Relations; F. P. Smith, Instructor of Accounting and Economics; W. W. Werntz, Instructor in Business Law and Finance; R. B. Westerfield, Professor of Political Economy.

Union League Club Aroused.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—A resolution charging the Democratic party with a betrayal of trust because of President Roosevelt's gold policy and demanding an immediate return to the gold standard was adopted last night by the Union League Club, one of the oldest Republican organizations in New York.

The resolution was introduced by former Gov. Charles S. Whitman, chairman of the club's committee on public affairs.

"The Union League Club of New York," the resolution said, "denounces the monetary policy of the Government as indicated by congressional enactment and the acts of the Administration. It is a policy founded on a breach of faith and executed in repudiation. It is a policy which will impoverish the thrifty and enterprising. It is a policy which courts the danger of impoverishment of the people. It is a policy which goes against the declared will of the people that the currency of our country shall be sound."

U. S., Colombia In Trade Pact

Treaty to Be in Force 2 Years Following Ratification.

(Associated Press.)

A new Colombian-American commercial treaty, based on reciprocal trade advantages, was signed yesterday at the State Department.

The agreement, reached after three months of detailed negotiations, is the first commercial accord with Colombia since a treaty of commerce and friendship was concluded in 1856.

Without ceremony, Dr. Fabio Lozano, Colombian Minister, and Acting Secretary Phillips, affixed their signatures to the document upon which hopes are based for early return to normal commercial intercourse between the two countries.

The treaty will become effective when ratified by the legislative bodies of the two governments, and will continue in force two years from the time of ratification.

Wheat Control Basis Formed

Advance on Price Fixing Is Reported After 4-Day Survey.

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—Framework for a world minimum scale of wheat prices was completed tonight after a four-day survey of conditions and trends by an International wheat marketing committee.

"There is virtual anarchy in the wheat pits today," it was said in authoritative quarters in justification of this step as an emergency measure.

It was considered certain that the average price would be well below the 63.08 gold cents (about one dollar) a bushel rate at which importing nations have agreed to start thinking about cutting tariffs.

As he left for the United States today, American Ambassador Robert W. Bingham, a delegate, declared that the wheat negotiations are proceeding well.

Cermak's Doctors File $5,000 Claims

2 Ask Fee for Attending Assassin's Victim.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP).—The estate of Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago, has been asked by two Miami physicians to pay $5,000 fees for their attendance on the fatally wounded city official.

Dr. John W. Snyder filed his claim with the Cook County Probate Court; Dr. E. Sterling Nichol said he had sent a bill to the executors of Cermak's estate.

Cermak was shot by Guiseppi Zangara in an attempt on the life of President Roosevelt.

Chinese Army Kills 5,000 Communists

Nationalist Force Wins Three-Day Battle.

Shanghai, Saturday, Dec. 16 (U.P.). The Nationalist army, personally directed by Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, defeated an army of Communists in Southern Kiangsi Province, slaying 5,000, it was officially announced today.

The three-day battle ended in a decisive victory for the National government's army.

Among those slain, the announcement held, was Lo Ping-Hui, commander of the Communists' First Army, whose head was delivered to Nationalist officers.

Communist casualties were 10,000, and Nationalist 400, it was declared.

Woman Decapitated, Police Hunt Youth

Ripley, Tenn., Dec. 15 (AP).—Sheriff A. H. Craig announced this morning that a murder warrant charging Edward Smith, 20, with beheading Mrs. Annie Laura Spiller, 27, during a "quilting bee" Wednesday night, will be sworn out during the day.

Mrs. Spiller, widowed mother of three children, was slain at home, 19 miles from Ripley. Her assailant used a razor.

Added Chase Stock Planned

Will Permit Issuance of Shares for RFC; Board to Meet Wednesday.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Changes in the capital structure of the Chase National Bank, largest banking institution in the United States, permitting issuance of preferred stock which eventually might be purchased by the R. F. C., will be taken up at the next meeting of the directors, Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the governing committee, said today.

The board will meet Wednesday. Pending its decision, Mr. Aldrich, who returned today from Washington, where he testified before the Senate Banking Committee, would not discuss what action may be taken.

Neither would he discuss the amount of preferred stock, if any, which the bank might issue, but he did say that Jesse Jones, R. F. C. chairman, remarked to him in Washington that if the amount were in keeping with the size of the bank, "it would have to be very substantial."

The Chase has capital stock in the amount of $148,000,000.

Milkman Killed In Head-On Crash

Rockville Man Arrested in Icy Road Fatality.

Leonard Perrell, 31, of Bethesda, Md., was fatally injured yesterday, when his milk truck collided with an automobile on the ice-covered Rockville pike at Garrett Park, Md., and overturned, pinning him beneath it.

The two vehicles came together head-on. Gillie Andrews, of Rockville, driver of the automobile, was arrested and charged with manslaughter and reckless driving by County Policemen Windsor Poole and Herbert Butts.

Robert Lucas, 28, of Bethesda, a passenger in Andrews' car, was treated for scalp lacerations and a fractured knee cap at Georgetown Hospital.

Service Planned For Bus Victims

Railroad Offers Payments in Florida Crash.

Crescent City, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP). Plans for a memorial service for the ten child victims of a school bus-train crash near here yesterday went forward tonight while the Atlantic Coast Line Railway offered to pay for the burial expenses and hospital costs of those injured.

Bodies of only nine of the victims would be present at the high school auditorium if the plan finally was approved. The body of one of the children, Elsie Bertha Gorton, 15, was sent tonight to Westfield, Wis., for burial.

Meanwhile the 16 most severely injured children were reported responding to treatment with only one, Henrietta King, in critical condition.

Country Varies From Sub 44 To August Heat

Weather Map Strangely Drawn; Several Die in the North.

(Associated Press.)

The broad middle plains were a pool of summer—a pool likely to freeze over any moment.

Eleven Die in Polish Crash.

With the thermometer showing 11 degrees below zero, two trains crashed in the city of Poznan, Poland, in a heavy fog and killed 11 passengers. Four more may die, and 80 were injured.

A broad area of low atmospheric pressure was responsible for the sudden advent of summer temperatures in the Middle West. At Columbus, Ohio; Cleveland, and Louisville, Ky., heat records for the day were broken. It was 66 at Louisville, the warmest December 15 since 1893; 65 at Cleveland and 62 at Columbus. Chicago surprised its populace by warming up overnight to 59 and then changing its mind and cooling off. A return of cold weather, however, was on its way from the West, with subzero again in Montana.

Several Deaths in North.

Several deaths occurred in the Northern States, where highways were covered by sleet and mist that froze as it reached the pavements.

In Minnesota there were numerous injuries, four victims being St. Paul policemen. A school bus, carrying seven children, crashed into a truck during the sleet storm near Sterling, N. Dak., injuring two youngsters seriously and killing the bus driver.

New York slithered around on the ice and got to work late, even the subways running 40 minutes behind schedule. The jobless 10,000 who were given snow shovels Thursday kept right on the pay roll to attack the ice coating on the streets.

In the Pacific Northwest, snow covered the ground from northern Oregon to British Columbia. Seattle had a reading of 36 degrees, lowest of the year. In the Tahoe City, Calif., region, snow mounted up to 3 feet.

Eighteen men from an emergency civil works camp aboard two small vessels, were sought at Juneau, Alaska, by United States Coast Guard cutter Tallapoosa. The vessels were reported overdue from Chatham Strait points.

Board Pledges Aid for Bridge

Trade Group Promises to Support Plans for Chain Span.

Cooperation with citizens' associations and other groups for an appropriation for a new Chain Bridge was pledged by the committee on the Washington Board of Trade at a luncheon meeting yesterday.

Dr. Llewelyn Jordon, who has led the Board of Trade fight for the new bridge, announced the campaign will be concentrated on District Senate and House Committees as soon as the plan is approved by the Park and Planning Commission.

Direct backing was assured the committee by Capt. Ellis R. King, president of the Conduit Road Citizens Association, and L. H. Odell, president of the Brookmont Citizens Association. Both are in the vicinity of the present bridge.

Recommendation was made for a high level type bridge about a quarter of a mile north of the present span.

Dr. Jordan was thanked in a resolution for the work he has done.

Science Unable to See Ions Yet Counts 'Em by Billions

Tabulator Depended On to Help Explain Health Factor.

When a cosmic ray bangs into a molecule of air it is too bad for the molecule.

It smashes into small pieces. The pieces become charged with electricity and then the scientists call them ions.

The ions are too small to be seen through the most powerful microscopes. Yet in the Carnegie Institution is a machine which sucks in air and ions, expels the former and counts the latter, 24 hours a day.

This apparatus, which is covered with dials and gadgets, is one of the major pieces of equipment ready for the institution's distinguished board of directors, who came here yesterday to see what is new in the scientific line. Herbert Hoover was one of the few board members who didn't arrive. He couldn't get away from Palo Alto.

Ions as Health Factor.

The ion counter is expected to provide some exceedingly valuable information after it counts a while longer. The number of ions in the air apparently has an effect upon the health of those who breathe it. The scientists are not sure of the reason why, but they hope that their machine can help do the explaining.

The business of measuring the speed of light is an even knottier problem. Dr. Robert A. Milliken and other distinguished scientists have been trying to measure light's speed in a sealed tube 1 mile long.

They do it with mirrors, check all their results, and work as carefully as they can, but nearly every time they compute the figures, they get a different answer.

Speed Figures Vary.

"We are unable to account for this variable reading," said Dr. Francis G. Pease, astronomer from Mount Wilson Observatory. When Dr. Milliken first measured a beam of light in 1926, he computed the speed at 299,774 kilometers a second.

Almost every time the measurement was made thereafter, the result was different. So Dr. Milliken, Dr. Pease and the others have added up all the answers, and divided them by the number of trials to get the 1933 approximate speed, which is 299,796 kilometers a second. That figure probably isn't exactly right, Dr. Pease added, but it is pretty close.

The astronomers didn't spend the whole year measuring light. They did some work on color spectrums, which proved to them that the planets Jupiter and Saturn are surrounded with some amonia gas. Ammonia gas is smelly stuff. That indicates that Jupiter and Saturn have few if any citizens, even if they could stand the cold.

216 Below on Jupiter.

Dr. Pease said it was 216 degrees below zero Fahrenheit on Jupiter, and even colder on Saturn, because Saturn is further away from the sun than is Jupiter. How scientists figured the exact temperature on Jupiter is a long story, and complicated. They hestitate to explain.

Treasury Hits "Influences" In Tax Cases

"Pull" Will Not Be Aid, as Practice Is Frowned On.

Persistent attempts to bring "influence" to bear in income tax cases brought a warning from the Treasury Department yesterday that such practices must be stopped.

It was added that persons who are interested in such cases would be "much better off" if they did not attempt to use politicians or other persons with supposed "pull" to appear for them.

Furthermore, it was said that if any evidence is found that anyone is accepting money in exchange for so-called influence, immediate action would be taken. The suggestion was made that the Treasury may follow the plan recently adopted by Secretary Ickes of declaring any such agent "persona non grata."

The warning, it was explained, was occasioned by the action of a man, described as "well able to stand on his own feet," who appeared with a prominent Democratic politician to "introduce" him. Neither the name of the man nor that of his political representative was revealed.

It was said that a number of lawyers, both Democrats and Republicans, with reputed influence in the Internal Revenue Bureau, have made a specialty of income tax cases.

Wampler to File New Trial Motion

Action Will Be Taken Today in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 15 (AP).—Motion for a new trial for T. Morris Wampler, Washington attorney yesterday convicted of making fraudulent income tax returns, will be filed in United States District Court here tomorrow. Isaac Lobe Straus, former attorney general of Maryland and attorney for Wampler, announced.

Straus said it would be based on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence and that the court refused to grant certain of the defendant's prayers.

Arguments will not be heard until the early part of January, it was indicated by Judge W. Calvin Chestnut, who said he had to go to West Virginia Sunday to sit in a three-judge court.

Ohio Police Arrest Suspect in Robbery

Springfield, Ohio, Dec. 15 (AP).—Police here tonight said they had arrested one suspect and expected to capture another man wanted for a $11,000 hold-up in Denver, Colo., on December 9.

The man arrested was named Reese Austin, 27, of "no address." The officers said they were still searching for L. A. Doxey, allegedly Austin's companion.

Student Admits Kidnap Plot To Finance Atom Research

Seattle, Dec. 15 (AP).—An eccentric student of science who identified himself today as George E. Powell, former newspaperman, was declared by Luke S. May, chief of detectives, to have confessed plotting a kidnaping to obtain funds to conduct research into the structure of the atom.

Powell said he formerly worked on newspapers in Seattle, Kansas City and Norfolk, Va.

He was arrested under the name of J. B. Logan by police detectives, who charged he and a companion, who gave the name of Ed Brown, were about to kidnap John von Herberg, 16-year-old son of a Seattle theater operator, and hold him for $50,000 ransom.

Authorities were undecided what charge to file against Powell and Brown, but indicated the most serious they could bring would be "conspiracy to kidnap," a misdemeanor punishable by $1,000 fine or a year in jail.

Powell's confession, as made public by police authorities, said it had been planned to kidnap the youth Tuesday, but floods covering many highways in this region at that time, caused postponement.

11 Hurt in Leaps From Hotel Fire

Blow Torch Explosion Starts Detroit Blaze.

Detroit, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—Trapped by flames in the Browning Hotel, 11 persons were injured, eight seriously, here today when they leaped from the burning building. The fire started when a blow torch being used in one of the bedrooms exploded.

Mayors Urge Doubled CWA Job Program

4,000,000 at Work, With 1,500 Families Still on Relief Rolls.

Evidence that the Administration's recovery efforts have barely scratched the surface of unemployment piled up in rapid-fire order yesterday, when announcement that the Civil Works Administration had put 4,000,000 persons to work met with demands from the United States Conference of Mayors that the program be doubled.

Lack of reliable statistics on the total unemployed has left officials in the dark as to how many jobless they still have to deal with. Despite the success of civil works in getting 4,000,000 to work in five weeks, and jobs created by public works, there remains an unknown number of persons to be cared for, Harry L. Hopkins, relief director, said.

Hopkins assembled reports from State authorities by telephone and added the totals. Funds are at hand to keep the 4,000,000 working until February 15.

Extension Already Planned.

The mayors, headed by Maj. LaGuardia of New York, Hoan of Milwaukee, Betters of Chicago, Curley of Boston and others, met here to ask extension of the Civil Works program beyond February, a request made unnecessary by announcement that President Roosevelt will attempt this. They brought forward, however, the suggestion that 4,000,000 jobs were insufficient, and the program should be doubled.

Hopkins paid tribute to his subordinates, State C. W. A. authorities, and Federal departments which have aided in pushing the program. He mentioned Gen. Hines of the Veterans Administration and Acting Secretary Morgenthau for special distinction.

Not all States have filled their quotas, Hopkins announced. New York and Pennsylvania, he said, fell short of their goals, and he singled out the city of Philadelphia as failing to show thorough cooperation.

Cost To U. S. $500,000,000.

Hopkins said the program has cost about $700,000,000, of which $500,000,000 was furnished by the Federal Government and the balance by States. A sum of $400,000,000 came from Public Works and $100,000,000 from Federal relief funds. With an additional $350,000,000 to be sought by President Roosevelt, the program will be tapered off around May 1.

A report that C. W. A. was "stealing" labor from regular industry by paying better wages was denied by Hopkins. Workers are recruited from Federal employment offices and from unions, he declared, and no person can leave a legitimate job to seek C. W. A. work.

He made public amplified C. W. A. pay regulations. Hopkins said wages averaged $50 a month, although pay as high as $1.20 an hour is ordered for skilled labor in Northern zones.

Differences in Zones.

Clerical help is paid the going rates, but not less than $12 a week in the Southern zone; $15 in the central, and $18 in the Northern. Higher skilled white collar workers are to be paid up to $35, $40 or $45, depending on the zone. Skilled labor minimums are set at $1, $1.10 or $1.20, zoned respectively, and unskilled pay ranges from 40 to 50 cents an hour.

Hopkins said the program has taken 2,000,000 families off relief, but 1,500,000 families are still receiving aid.

Efforts to protect C. W. A. workers from accidents are to be made. Hopkins said S. J. Williams, industrial safety authority, had been loaned to his organization to conduct an educational safety campaign.

Gold Standard Ended, Rainey

Mining Congress Elects Howard I. Young as New Head.

The gold standard is gone forever, Speaker Henry T. Rainey yesterday told the American Mining Congress at its annual convention in the Mayflower Hotel. If efforts are made to restore the gold standard, he added, it will be on a dual system, probably a 20-to-1 ratio with silver.

The congress elected Howard I. Young, of the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Co., of St. Louis, as its president. Other officers are D. D. Moffatt, of the Utah Copper Co., of Salt Lake City, first vice president; J. B. Putnam, of Pickands, Mather & Co., second vice president; Donald A. Callahan, of the Callahan Zinc-Lead Co., of Wallace, Idaho, third vice president, and James F. Galbreath was reelected secretary for the thirty-seventh consecutive year.

Welles Resumes His Old Position

Ends 7-Months Term as Ambassador to Cuba.

(Associated Press.)

Sumner Welles, who finished his seven months' term as Ambassador to Cuba, returned yesterday to resume his post at the State Department as Assistant Secretary in charge of Latin-American affairs.

Assistant Secretary Welles left Havana Wednesday by air and came here from Miami by train. Immediately upon his arrival he took over the work left by Jefferson Caffery, who had supplanted him as Assistant Secretary and now is President Roosevelt's personal representative in Cuba.

Santo Domingo Greets Lindy

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Dec. 15 (AP).—Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, 900 miles from the United States, were entertained tonight by H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld, the United States Minister, and planned to leave at 7 a. m. tomorrow on what will probably be the last leg of their homeward journey. They arrived at 10:45 a. m. from San Juan, Porto Rico, 300 miles away after a two-hour flight.

Mr. and Mrs. Schoenfeld greeted them at the Pan-American Airways Harbor, and brought them into the capital, where they called on President Trujillo.

It was considered likely they would make their flight to Miami by way of Havana. Whether they would land in Cuba was not indicated.

The Lindberghs took off from the harbor at San Juan at 8:50 a. m. (Eastern standard time).

Mr. Bell Weds Paula Brown In Kobe, Japan

The wedding of Miss Paula Churchill Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rothwell Brown, of Washington, to Mr. George Allen Bell, jr., son of Mrs. George Allen Bell, of Reading, Pa., will take place today in Kobe, Japan. The ceremony, an informal one, will be performed by the American Consul.

Lieut Rothwell H. Brown, brother of the bride, will be the best man, and will also give his sister in marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell will remain in Japan for one week, after which they will proceed to Tientsin, China, where they will make their home for the next 2½ years. Mr. Bell is a representative of the Standard Oil Co., in the district of north China.

A Christmas party will be held tomorrow evening by the Black Friars' Guild in the Estelle Allen Studios.

Mr. Paul Murphy, president of the Guild, announces a very interesting program, in which Moderator Urban Nagle will speak on the main character of his play, "Catherine the Valiant," to be produced by the Black Friars early in January.

A Yuletide play, entitled "The Empty Room," and directed by Mrs. John Victory, will also be presented.

Incidental music will also be provided by Miss Estelle Wentworth, Miss Alma Harris and Mr. Raymond Baine.

All members of the Guild attending the meeting have been requested by Miss Margaret Frawley, chairman of the program committee, to bring a small toy or child's gift in order that a sack of Christmas gifts may be made up for needy children in the city.

Young Set to Enjoy Subscription Dances

Patronesses Announced for Popular Affairs.

The first of the two Christmas subscription dances which will inaugurate the festivities for the younger set will be the "Tea Dance" which will take place in the Italian Garden of the Mayflower Hotel Friday afternoon, December 22, from 4 to 6 o'clock. The second will be the "Christmas Dance," which will take place Thursday evening, December 28, in the Chinese room of the Mayflower. Both dances will be under the direction of Miss Hawke and admission will be by card only.

Among the patronesses are Mrs. Archibald Davis, Mrs. Hayne Ellis, Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Mrs. John S. Flannery, Mrs. William C. Gwynn, Mrs. U. S. Grant 3d, Mrs. John Philip Hill, Mrs. Randall H. Hagner, Mrs. R. M. Kauffman, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, Mrs. Charles L. Marlatt, Mrs. S. McCalla Sands, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Norman Underwood and Mrs. Lloyd Wilson.

Miss Lee Sets Date For Quiet Wedding

Will Marry Mr. McDougal on December 27.

Miss Frances McD. Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence R. Lee, has selected Wednesday, December 27, as the date of her wedding to Mr. Myers S. McDougal, which will take place at the Washington Club in the presence of the two families and a few intimate friends.

Miss Lee was graduated from the Holton-Arms School and from Bryn Mawr College. She also studied for one year at Yale University.

Mr. McDougal was graduated from the University of Mississippi and spent three years in England as a Rhodes scholar, taking his degree of J. S. D. at Yale in 1931. He is now assistant professor of law at the University of Illinois.

New Hungarian Envoy Arrives For Post Here

Mr. John Pelenyi and Wife Already Well Known in Local Circles.

The newly appointed Minister of Hungary, Mr. John Pelenyi, and Mme. Pelenyi arrived in New York Wednesday aboard the Conte di Savoia and were met by the Counselor of the Legation, Mr. Nicholas de Vegh, who accompanied them directly to Washington. The Minister and Mme. Pelenyi have many friends in Washington in diplomatic, official and residential circles, as they were here several years ago when the former was Secretary of Legation, later Counselor, and then served as Charge d'Affaires while Count Szechenyi, then Minister, was on leave.

Ensign and Mrs. John G. F. Prescott, of Cambridge, Mass., will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Perley during the Christmas holidays.

Brilliant Horse Show Given By Riding and Hunt Club

Col. and Mrs. Guggenheim Among Those Who Entertain.

Last evening the Riding and Hunt Club was the scene of the first of a series of horse shows to be held throughout the season. Lovers of horses turned out in large numbers for the opening event, many taking an active part in the performance while the rest were spectators. Nevertheless all were interested in seeing specimens of fine horse flesh put through their paces.

Between the classes the lounge on the second floor of the club alongside the gallery which surrounds the ring was the gathering place where greetings were extended and congratulations and well wishes were exchanged with the smartly attired riders. Many of the guests wore chic sport clothes, while others, who were going on to parties following the show, wore evening dress.

Following the show there were numerous supper parties in celebration of those who had won the coveted honors. The members of the Horse Show committee entertained at a supper at the club and Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, had a supper, later taking their guests to their home on Woodland Drive. The Commissioner of the District of Columbia and Mrs. Melvin C. Hazen, who had as their guests the Commissioner of District of Columbia and Mrs. George Allen, and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin McIntyre, gathered a group of about 20 at their home for refreshments.

Others seen at the show were Senator and Mrs. James Couzens, with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Jefferies Chewning, jr., and their youngest daughter, Miss Betty Couzens, who rode her mounts in the show; Lieut. Commander and Mrs. Alva Court, the latter participating in the show; Col. and Mrs. A. L. Singleton, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harris Ward, entertaining a group of four; as were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Davis and their daughter, Miss Alida Davis.

Also seen in the gathering were Col. and Mrs. C. Herron, Mr. Claude Owen,, Mr. Vernon Owen, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cotter, Miss Margaret Cotter, Mr. F. Moran McConihe, Mr. Fenton Fadley, Mr. F. Burroughs, Mr. F. L. Oyster, Mr. W. C. Hanson, Mr. George Plummer, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hill, and Mr. Allan Hechter and Mr. George Mahoney, both of Baltimore, who brought their mounts to Washington.

The committee consisted of Dr. Fred Sanderson, Mr. W. C. Hanson, Mr. F. Moran McConhie, Mr. J. J. Cotter and Mr. W. G. Hill. The judges were Dr. J. Henry, of Devon, Pa., and Maj. Bohn, of Fort Myer, Va.

Hollywood Needs Girls With Brains, Says Famous Director, Visitor to Capital

Fruit Skollens Catch Eye and Please Palate

Bake Shop Has Special on "Cousin" of English Fruit Cake.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

A bakery has decorated its windows with wines and cakes. Shoppers who hurry down Fourteenth street pause to press noses against the cold plate glass and wonder about the nature of the goodies within. The pleasant proprietor of the shop will be glad to explain they are fruit skollens. He'll further tell that the bright cellophane they're wrapped in, the red ribbon around them, as well as the holly cluster perched on top make a fitting exterior for the delicacy inside.

Skollens bear some resemblance to coffee cake, but their variety of fruits and nuts and their rum flavor gives them a cousinship to the old English fruit cake.

The bake shop is having a special on the fruit skollens today, and also on a new kind of pie.

A new kind of pie! That's a tale in itself. Whoever the culinary artist who invented it, he deserves praise for his ingenuity. He took the batter of a devilsfood cake and baked it in a pie pan. After it was done he filled in the center with whipped cream, piled a thick coating on the top, and there it was, an old cake, but a new pie!

The oven is busy baking. The steak awaits without. Dinner is still in the offing. The steady tick of the clock keeps time with the tread of restless feet which carry the head of the household from one end of the room to the other while he rants and rages about "inexcusable delays!" and says if he cooked dinner things would be different. A top of the oven stove broiler at a time like this would smooth out a bumpy situation. The old oven could keep on baking, but the steak wouldn't wait without. Placed on a broiler which has been preheated two minutes, it will cook rapidly, and as satisfactorily as if it had the oven to itself.

When we try to core a grapefruit with an ordinary knife we pay the sad price of stains and smarting eyes. But if we tackle the tough fibers and scoop out the core with one of the new patented grapefruit corers now on sale in a store on G street the price we pay is only a dime. The convenience is inestimable.

New Hats Show Influence Of Many Lands

African Kepi-Cap and Icon Hat from Russia Are Offered.

Hats that show the influence of Austria, Russia, and Africa are giving a geographic flavor to the midseason millinery mode.

The headgear worn by the people who inhabit the Austrian tyrol is responsible for the present vogue of widebrimmed, tall-peaked felt hats with feathers jipping right up the back of the crowns and waving several inches above them.

From Africa comes the kepi cap, a turban-like affair that is delightful with a dinner gown. Most of these caps have twin peaks, one in front and one in back, which makes them difficult to wear. But the woman who has strong, clear-cut features can don one in the assurance that she will present an unusually smart appearance.

The Russian icon hat is the most striking of all and should be worn for afternoon or evening occasions. It is similar to a toque with a diadem attached to the crown. She who wears it should brush her hair back, leaving her ears exposed. Pearl earrings add that final touch of sophistication.

Other small hats, especially those that have evaded the foreign influence, are trimmed with large clips, bows, or feathers. Coque feathers are especially good and give a sleek, elegant look that is so suitable for luxurious winter costumes.

Not all of the new chapeaux are small, however. Coarse natural-colored linen makes a wide-brimmed model that is covered with rows and rows of gay red stitching. Red grosgrain ribbon encircles the high crown.

What Today Means

"Sagittarius."

If December 16 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 to 8:10 a. m. and from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:45 to 10:55 a. m., from 1:10 to 2:15 p. m. and from 9 to 10 p. m.

You will probably feel contented on this date, not at all self-satisfied, but generally pleased with the way in which your affairs have been running. If you are in love and thinking of marriage, this day would seem to be a good one on which to settle all details; you will get a lot of cooperation from both families.

If December 16 is the date of your birth, it is quite possible that you are one of those rare people who is as much at ease and as welcome in a ballroom as he is in a gathering of day laborers. Your greatest charm is your simplicity of nature which enables you to fit right into the picture wherever you are and feel a part of the group. Your interests are wide and you speak with knowledge on almost any of the ordinary run of topics. You are interested in people and those you meet quickly sense that and are willing to accept you.

Born on December 16, you are probably a nice mixture of the practical and the artistic. Most of your time is undoubtedly devoted to the pursuit of wealth but you are more interested in how you get it, than in getting it. More than likely you have a side-line that keeps you busy in spare moments; a hobby for collecting this or that, an interest in writing prose or poetry, a fancy for dabbling in music or painting. It is certain, however, that your existence will not be an unhappy one and that as you age, your contentment and joy of living will increase. You will not really begin to live until you have found your real mate and companion. This may not be accomplished as early in life as you might hope, but when the right one comes along, there will be no doubt in your mind and marriage will follow.

When Cecil B. DeMille, famous movie director, sailed recently to Hawaii to film "Four Frightened People," he was accompanied by Mrs. DeMille, their son, John; their daughter, Katherine, and their adopted son, Richard. Claudette Colbert was the tiger-skin clad heroine in the picture which had a tropical jungle setting. This part of Hawaii had never before been penetrated by a white man. After he returned to Hollywood, Mr. DeMille donned formal dress and escorted Vivian Tobin, actress, to a movie premiere.

"Who's Afraid of the Wolf?" Means New Era, Says Rev. Sheen

Defiance of Tomorrow's Threats Shows We Are Ready to Find the Joys of Today Which Make Virtue Truly Exciting.

The American people today find their greatest happiness in the simple pleasures of life. Witness the gusto with which they sing in chorus that naive bit of defiance "Who's afraid of the Big Bad Wolf?" and the complete abandon with which they laugh and weep at performances of "Little Women."

The Rev. Father Fulton A. Sheen, professor of philosophy at the Catholic University of Washington, said yesterday that this new appreciation of the simple pleasures of life is one of the most hopeful things that has come out of the trying time of the depression, when so many were deprived of any pleasure at all.

Mrs. Harold P. Norton and many other prominent Capital society women are sponsoring the lecture which the Rev. Father Sheen will give at the Shoreham Monday evening on the "Philosophy of Pleasure."

"Pleasure is conditioned by contrast," he said. "A woman in a black velvet gown is most beautiful against a white background. Lilies are lovely largely because they grow in foul ponds. People who have passed through a period when life was merely a struggle for existence can find joy in simple things.

"During the heyday of American prosperity people expected to be constantly entertained; their search for pleasure became almost feverish, and they were never really happy. Their pleasure today is more intense because it comes as a surprise. They place a new value on happiness, and they enjoy pleasures which they formerly regarded as childish. They now understand the child's point of view, can see how with the coloring of his imagination he paints the drabbest world in vivid colors.

"Another thing the depression has taught us about pleasure is that it can be found in unexpected places. Why, even virtue is discovered to be thrilling. Leading a virtuous life is like walking a tight rope, every moment is one of excitement. One little breath released too quickly, one wavering motion, and the tight rope walker has lost his balance. Who can say that such a life is dull?

"People have learned that in order to have a good time they must forget time. They know that they can not be thinking, 'Now we have 30 minutes and during those minutes we must be happy.' They forget that time exists and live intensely in the moment. A kind of Epicurean philosophy is prevalent—minus some of the old pagan abandon. People know that tomorrow they may be hungry, cold, suffering, that few of them can count on security. So they laugh and hurl taunts at the voracious wolf.

"They have learned also that pleasure is a transient, elusive will o' the wisp. They hold it in their hands a moment and then find it gone, or it stays and they find that the thing which once brought pleasure no longer interests them.

"But there is one thing many people have not learned. That the human heart is filled with a divine restlessness which never permits it to be content. We are obsessed with the desire of the moth for the star, of the night for the morrow." This restlessness has inspired all the greatest achievement of humanity. It is necessary to the progress of the human race."

Maryland Women's Clubs Aid Girls With Scholarship Fund

Mrs. Griesemer Tells How Loan Fund Enables Many Who Are Brilliant To Continue College Preparation for Careers.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

A young girl wearing a shabby dress, her hands roughened by hard work, her eyes dimmed by tears, stood before the chairman of the scholarship fund and pleaded for $100.

"For three years," she said, "I have waited on tables, solicited dry cleaning and shoe repairing, and nursed professors' children. I have gone without pretty clothes and good times, and I haven't minded. I don't like to ask for money, but this means my life! Please help me."

Hundreds of young women with brilliant scholastic records and prospects of equally brilliant professional careers are forced to leave American colleges yearly for financial reasons. The Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs has established a loan fund to enable such college girls in Maryland to complete their education.

Mrs. Douglas Griesemer, society matron of Chevy Chase, who is chairman of the scholarship committee, told a Post reporter yesterday about some of the girls the fund has aided.

"We feel that in lending the girls the money to complete their educations we are not only aiding the individual, but investing money which will bring ample returns to the community and State as a whole," she said.

"Every one of these girls is interesting as an individual and all are worthy of every consideration. Consider this one:

"A widow, left with little children, doing any kind of work she can, selling the furniture out of home piece by piece, to send her daughter to college. At last there is no money left, the goal is in sight, but all her efforts will be useless unless her daughter can graduate. We could not refuse such a plea."

"One girl told us that she could not permit her parents to finance her college education when it would mean that the younger children in the family would suffer. She said that she felt her education was her own responsibility. Her professors wrote that: 'She is of brilliant intelligence, splendid character, and admirable social qualities; she is certain to profit in an unusual degree from her opportunity and will render back a high type of service to society.'"

"These are the girls we help. Courageous, intelligent, the highest type of women, we know that we can do no greater work than helping them. We are sure that, properly trained, they will be useful, successful people. Unable to finish college they will be thrown out into the world among the millions of job seekers. They are not qualified to do any special work. Many of them who have left college without their degrees, are found working in restaurants and department stores.

"Recently in a restaurant I saw a waitress approach another one, who had recently started to work there. The girl looked at the other with an appraising look and said: 'I went to Blank College, where did you go?'"

"For a while these girls keep up their courage, thinking they will work hard and complete their educations. Most of them become discouraged and never return. They become a lost part of society, restless, unhappy, never fulfilling their rightful destinies. Many of these students, witnessing the injustice around them, become socialists and anarchists. We can do no greater work than helping these girls.

"Not only do they profit themselves, but the spirit of the work is contagious. When they graduate they encourage other girls to continue their educations. Thus the inspiration is passed on and our work continues in an endless cycle.

De Mille Adds They Must Be Able to Act, And to Speak English One Can Understand

He Deplores the Fact that Consonants Are Making Their Exit From American Conversation, Leaving Behind Them Only Unintelligible Gurgles.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

The star-maker of Hollywood, Cecil B. DeMille, relaxed comfortably in a corner of the divan in his suite at the Shoreham last evening and, for the benefit of a thrilled reporter perched on the other end of the divan, proceeded to upset all preconceived ideas of what a young woman needs to make good in the movies.

"Beauty, youth, and sex appeal are unimportant," declared the great director who is known as the glorifier of the bathtub and originator of the "yes-man," that meek individual who always agrees with the boss.

"The girl who wants to become a star needs just three things—acting talent, more than the average amount of brains, and ability to speak the English language without sounding as if her mouth were full of bread pudding.

"This speech busines is getting to be a serious matter. The consonant is disappearing from the American scene so rapidly that it is practically impossible to hear one nowadays. People talk like this: 'Let's run over to Marj'ries an' play bridge.' No wonder we have to employ fine diction instructors in the studios to teach our actors and actresses how to talk. That's where the people who come to the screen from the stage have the advantage. They learned long ago that speech is all-important in portraying a role."

Road to Hollywood.

"But to get back to the girls," said the director with a twinkle in his brown eyes. "Their best route to Hollywood, providind they have the three requirements I mentioned, lies through the little theater, the stock company, or the chorus. The young woman who is certain she has acting ability, brains, and good diction, may take a shorter cut to the studios. But, unless she knows some one who can bring her to the attention of a producer or director, she will have a hard time getting past the entrance gates.

"I recommend the little theater and stock companies because studio scouts travel all over the country, looking in on performances in the hope that they will find another bit of star-dust. Frequently they do."

"But, Mr. DeMille," piped up the reporter. "You talk as if Hollywood actually wanted more girls and here we thought the place was overrun with them. Magazines and papers are constantly printing articles telling young people to stay away from the cinema city, that it is already hopelessly overcrowded."

"That's not true," said the famous director. "Hollywood wants girls. It wants men, women, boys, and even babies. But they must be people with ability, either latent or trained. Hollywood is overcrowded with people, but not with talent. We crave more talent. I am searching the country right now for a Julius Caesar and a Marc Antony to play in my next picture, 'Cleopatra.'"

Washington Talent.

"Did you find any prospective Caesars and Antonys in Washington?"

"No." Mr. DeMille's twinkling brown eyes grew serious. "I really haven't given Washington a fair chance. I came here on business with the Treasury Department, and that has taken most of my time. Now I must hurry back to New York. If you only had a stock company here, I might have found at least one of the men I'm looking for. There's nothing like a stock company for developing stage talent. Too bad Washington doesn't have one."

"There's something we've always been dying to know about movie actors, Mr. DeMille," we said, as we sidled a bit closer to the kindly faced director. "Do they really live their parts?"

"The beginners do," and a warm smile quirked the corners of his pleasant mouth and lighted his nice eyes. "They soon get over it in most cases. Of course, some actors do lose themselves to a great extent in their roles, but that's a pretty dangerous business. The audience should play the actor's emotional scenes for him. If he lets his emotions control him, he loses control over the audience. Sounds fantastic, but it's perfectly true. I've proved it over and over again."

Actor Wept.

"Once I was directing Raymond Hatton in a highly emotional scene and he let himself go completely. Cried and tore his hair and carried on at a great rate. The fellow was perfectly sincere—he was really living the part. But I knew it wouldn't get across on the screen. I let him go through with it. Then we went to lunch. After we'd had our spinach I had him do the scene my way, by firing his imagination to the extent where he suggested the emotional strain instead of yielding himself to it. We ran both versions off in the projection room. The one in which he had raved and ranted looked in several places as if he were actually laughing. Laughter and tears are closely related, you know. So we used the second version, which was highly effective."

"On the other hand there was Theodore Roberts, the grand old man of the movies. He could stand before a camera and almost make the assistant directors and electricians weep. Yet the old codger never had a real emotion in his life while playing before the camera. But he had something much more valuable. He had consummate technique, so that he could bend the audience to his will while he himself was more or less detached. Don't misunderstand me. An actor can not fake before the camera. He must be sincere. He must be so clever at portraying the emotions that no one will know that he is not controlled by them. In other words, he must know how to act."

He paused a moment. That gave us a perfect opportunity to say, "Mr. DeMille, how did you become so interested in bathtubs? What inspired you to use Arabian Nights bathrooms in your pictures?"

Tin Bath Tub Era.

"That's a long, long story, he chuckled. "I had the misfortune to be born in the tin-bathtub era when the bathroom was merely a place to store medicines and 'wash up.' One look in the medicine chest and you knew the history of the family's illnesses for 20 years. Nobody had ever considered that a bathroom could be one of the most attractive spots in the home. But I had plenty of time to consider it when I was a little boy as I gazed at that hideous tin tub, encased in wood, while my Fauntleroy curls were being combed. Yes, I really had lovely long curls once upon a time," and he smiled as he passed his hand over his baldish head.

"Well, I guess that is when I decided I would do something about bathrooms if I ever had an opportunity. The films gave me my chance. When I made 'Old Wives for New' a number of years ago I used an ordinary, unattractive bathroom as part of the background of a woman who could not hold her husband's interest. Then I showed a gorgeous Roman pool affair for the siren who captures the husband with her glamour and mystery.

"That one picture made me bathtub minded. I hired such great scenic designers as Mitchell Lieson and Paul Iribe to plan bathrooms that were the acme of luxury and beauty. Soon the moviegoers were demanding similar ones in their homes. And they got them. Whether the plumbers admit it or not, they own a lot of their success to me. And I owe a lot my success to the bathtub." He smiled broadly.

We rose to go and he took us to the door, but just as we were leaving we couldn't help saying, "Are you sure about those requirements for the screen, Mr. DeMille? Do you really mean that a girl doesn't have to have youth and beauty?"

He gave us a fatherly pat on the shoulder. "I'm sure. The day of little Dottie Coughdrop with the baby stare and one-cylinder brain is over. Look at Marie Dressler. Does she have youth? Does she have beauty in the usual meaning of the word? And yet she is one of the really great stars. That ought to answer your question."

It did.

Lest You Are Troubled.

By Katherine Smith.

Lest you are troubled when you dream
Of things that used-to-be,
Pour out a glass of Future's wine,
Pour out a glass for me.

And as we drink a toast to our
Today, we're sure to know
Tomorrow's dream, before it will
Too surely come—and go.

Books

Manuscript of Al Smith's New Book Promised to Publisher.

The book on which Al Smith has been working for the last two years is soon to arrive at the publishers. He has promised the manuscript of "The Citizen and His Government" to Harper by January 1. No doubt his recent activity on the front pages has sharpened his pen.

Before George Moore died, Lippincott succeeded in getting his autograph on 525 copies of a limited edition of "Peronnik the Fool," which they are now bringing out for the Christmas trade. Only 125 copies, however, are for sale in America. The book is illustrated by nine engravings on copper by Stephen Gooden, who also signed each copy.

Robert Graves, author of "Goodbye to All That," and believed to be the author of an anonymous book brought out in the early fall, "The Gold Falcon," has writtten "I, Claudius," a biography of the Roman Emperor which Smith & Haas will publish in the spring.

Mr. M. Buxton Forman writes from London that he is now preparing a new edition of the letters of John Keats, and that he would appreciate it very much if anyone in this country would inform him of certain letters he believes to be in America. Briefly, these are addressed to John Taylor, George and Georgiana Keats, John Hamilton Reynolds, Joseph Severn, Haydon, Shelley (August, 1820), and a number to Fanny Brawne. During the last few years he has lost track of these. Mr. Forman's address is 46 Marlborough Hill, St. John's Wood, London, N. W. 8.

Why Mosquitoes Bite.

A book of Indian legends. "COYOTE STORIES," by Humishuma (Mourning Dove). Edited and illustrated by H. D. Guie. With notes by L. V. McWhorter. (Caxton Printers, Caldwell, Idaho, $1.50.)

Once there were five brothers, the youngest named "Sch-lux"—mosquito, a lazy youth, greedy for uncooked blood. His older brothers were cruel to him, but when enemies came one night and killed them all "Sch—lux" was very sad. He wept, high-pitched and inconsolable He took a canoe and floated down the river. Two camps of people tried to make him stay and be comforted. Then, at the third camp, he was offered a meal of blood and he stopped there. He ate very greedily. While he was filling himself the people cast his canoe adrift, and "Sch—lux" started to chase it. He fell on a stick and was wounded, and from the wound flew a little fly. The fly alighted in a cottonwood tree. "O-oh! Th-they kil-killed m-my brothers!" it sang.

Let Humishuma finish the tale: "The people heard the song. They spoke to the little fly: 'When the future generations come, you will sing your song for the dead, and you will live on the blood of men,' they said. 'That shall be your revenge for the death of your brothers!'"

Which is why mosquitoes bite.

Humishuma is an Indian woman of the Okanogan tribe in Washington State. The stories she tells in this book are those she heard as a child from the old men of her tribe, stories handed down from generation to generation about the animal people who were on the earth before the Indians came. Such stories are called "Chip-chap-tiquik." To the younger Indians they are improbable. To the old Indians they are "accounts of what really happened when the world was very young." Preserved now and set down for the eyes of the white people, these tales are as fresh and delightful reading as a child or an adult could ask for.

Somehow they remind one of Uncle Remus and Bre'r Fox. "Sin-ka-lip," the coyote, is the prankplayer. His name means "imitator." He is always playing tricks on his brother animals—buffalo and grizzly bear, salmon and turtle. The book is filled with the creatures of the Northwest. One story explains why the whale stays in salt water, another why woodticks are on the backs of deer. Each fact of nature which the Okanogan Indians observed in their lands is reflected in a legend.

A quantity of explanatory footnotes, often learnedly bilingual, would make the volume of deep interest to an anthropologist. The contributor of these, Mr. McWhorter, is curator of the Washington State Historical Society, an author of several historical works on the Northwest, as well as an adopted member of the Yakima tribe.

Humishuma now lectures to audiences in the Northwest on Indian life. She is a life member of the Washington State Historical Society, and author of "Cogewea, the Half-Blood," published in 1927.

The book is handsomely illustrated with crayon drawings by Mr. Guie, and nicely gotten up by the Caxton Printers.

"Sin-ka-lip" and all his brethren will become the friends of any child who reads "Coyote Stories." It is a charming little book, holding the poetry of a great and vanishing people. THEODORE HALL.

Turnips and Kohl-Rabi Cabbage Good Winter Fare

By Ann Barrett.

When winter comes and fresh vegetables taper off a bit in even the best markets, it pays to get on the good side of the old standbys that are always available. Such as turnips (one of Wally Berry's favorites). And that queer-looking but fine-tasting cross between turnip and cabbage called kohl-rabi. (Pronounce it kol-rah-bee.)

Get your kohl-rabi young (it's sold by the bunch), and get your turnips young, too, if you don't want them extra strong and fibrous. If you meet with the yellow turnip called rututabaga, don't let this Swedish name get in your way—just take care not to choose this kind of turnip in the out-sizes, as the larger ones are likely to be woody.

Cooking Turnips.

No trick at all to cooking turnips. Just peel, slice (or dice) and cook in boiling, salted water. But to have them good and tasty, drain them thoroughly, then season them well with butter, pepepr and salt. (Mash them if you like.) A hint of grated onion is good with them, too. And I have found a good many people rooting for half and half potato and turnip (either white or yellow) cooked and mashed together, and seasoned well with cream or butter. This way the flavor of the turnip (inclined to be a bit forward) is toned down.

Turnip and Pimento.

If you want to go a bit dressy with your turnips, they're delicious creamed with pimento, like this: Pare about 1½ pounds yellow turnips, cut them in little strips (like Julienne potatoes) and cook them tender in boiling water. Meanwhile make a white sauce of 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1½ cups milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Drain turnips thoroughly, put them into white sauce, add 2 tablespoons finely chopped pimento, heat through and serve.

Kohl-Rabi.

As for kohl-rabi, cook both leaves and knobs if you like. But put the knobs (after paring and slicing or dicing) into the boiling water first, as they take longer than the leaves to cook. Seasonings are the same as for turnips.

If you want your kohl-rabi a bit fancier, here's a good way to cook it in stock. Get two bunches of it, wash and remove leaves. Cook leaves in a little boiling salted water till tender, then rinse in cold water, drain and chop them finely. Pare the knobs, dice them and cook till tender in 1¾ cups stock or bouillon. Then brown 1 tablespoon flour with 2 tablespoons butter, add ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon sugar. Combine kohl-rabi (leaves stock and all) with this, and simmer five minutes. Good!

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

When the old-fashioned physician saw his patient he never failed to examine his tongue. The examination was begun by taking the temperature and counting the pulse and respiration. The time required for getting the degree of fever being five times that required for pulse taking, a few minutes was left for noting the expression of the face, the color and the general appearance. Next came the request to "put out your tongue." That old-style doctor tried to read several things from the appearance of the tongue. The modern physician has not seemed to be so much interested in the tongue. He has so many instruments of precision that seemed to give him the information he needed as well as to occupy his time.

But now the tongue seems to be coming back into the limelight. A dentist finds a heavy coat in the tongue to be one of the causes of halitosis. He interprets it as meaning reverse peristalsis and calling for measures to overcome the constipation habit. He advocates removal of the white coat by means of a tongue scraper as one measures for overcoming halitosis.

Drs. Hutton and Middleton tell us that there is a condition which is indicative of pernicious anemia and a family of diseases having much in common. The tongue has no hairs, of course, but it does have a regular wheat field of somewhat horny processes, and this field is crossed by ridges and furrows. Sometimes this grain fieldlike expanse of processes is there in great excess, causing coated tongue. In some instances the distribution of the coating is irregular enough to cause what is known as geographic tongue. In some the tongue is sufficiently free from processes, ridges and furrows to win for it the designation of bald tongue. The disease in which bald tongue is most significant is pernicious anemia.

In many disorders of the blood-making apparatus the factories are near enough to being capable so that under ordinary conditions things go on reasonably well. There are breakdowns under conditions of stress. An increase in vitamin B complex in the diet prevents these stress breakdowns.

Prize-Winning Salad Is Made Of Cranberries

Mrs. Fay D. Patton Carries Off Honors in Week's Recipe Contest.

The succulent cranberry is a necessary accompaniment to holiday menus. For the most part, it is used in the form of jams and jellies or even the stewed cranberries which our grandmothers served with native wild turkey and other seasonal fowl.

Mrs. Fay D. Patton, of 506 South Clifton Terrace, wins the $5 prize this week for the best recipe with a delectable cranberry salad recipe. In submitting her entry Mrs. Patton wrote: "I am inclosing a recipe for cranberry salad that I served with my Thanksgiving dinner, and have since had several requests for the recipe. A friend suggested that I enter it in your weekly "Best Recipe" contest or for what use you may find for it. The recipe follows:

Cranberry Salad.

1 pint cranberries, ground
1 cup sugar
Grated rind and juice of 1 orange

1 box lemon jello dissolved in ¾ cup hot water.

Let jello cool and combine with cranberry mixture. When cold add a few tender celery stalks, chopped, and ½ cup chopped nut meats. Chill in 9-inch square pan. Cut into 8 servings, serve on lettuce with salad dressing, garnished with whipped cream. In your refrigerator this salad will keep for several days.

Antiquities Group Plans January Election Meet

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 15 (Spl.). The annual meeting of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities will be held January 6 in the John Marshall House.

New officers and members of the directory board will be elected at this time, and the directors of the Virginia branches will give their annual reports. The business session will be followed by a luncheon to be served by the John Marshall House committee, of which Mrs. John Dunn is chairman.

The year book of the A. P. V. A. will be dedicated to Mrs. J. Taylor Ellyson, president, in recognition of her services to the association.

Socialite Asks Reno Divorce.

Reno, Nev., Dec. 15 (AP).—A divorce from Charles K. Cummings, jr., was asked in a complaint filed here today by Elizabeth Russell Cummings, who is prominent socially in Boston and New York. Mrs. Cummings charged cruelty. They were married June 21, 1924.

Turkey at 22 and 25 Cents a Pound Is Week-End Special.

Another week-end rolls around. So the Marketer will give you the week-end prices.

The leg o' lamb for Sunday sells at 18 to 20 cents a pound and rib roasts are 17 cents a pound. A shoulder cut of beef costs 18 cents. This is suitable for a pot roast. A good oven roast is the sirloin tip, which, although not inexpensive at 25 cents a pound, is a good buy, for it contains no bone.

Steaks are 30 cents a pound for the porterhouse, and 23 cents for the round steaks. One market butcher is having a special on turkeys at 22 and 25 cents a pound.

Jonathan apples are 25 cents for 5 pounds; Delicious, 4 pounds for the same price. Florida oranges are 15 cents a dozen and California oranges 25 cents for two dozen. Grapefruit sells at four, five and six for a quarter; lemons are 10 cents a dozen.

String beans are 10 cents a pound; spinach, 2 pounds for 15 cents. New cabbage is 15 cents for 2 pounds; broccoli, 20 cents a bunch. Lettuce is 10 cents a head; celery hearts, 10 cents a bunch.

Apple Snow.

2 sour apples
1 teaspoon lemon juice
About 1 tablespoon sugar
2 egg whites.

Peel the raw apples; grate into a bowl; add lemon juice; sweeten the grated pulp. Beat egg whites until stiff; beat in the apple pulp gradually; continue beating until the mixture is very fluffy. Pile lightly into individual serving dishes, chill thoroughly. Serve with cream or with soft custard.

Sachets Revived With Bicycles and Flounces

All of them revivals of the moment! The return of sachet is particularly interesting. It turns our minds back a hundred years to the Victorian era when there was so much tucking away of linens in scented closets, and withdrawing of handkerchief and glove from cases fragrant with sweet elusive sachet scents.

Today when our clothes closets are miracles of architectural efficiency with their built-in drawers for "undies," stockings, shoes and hats, the only thing left to perfecting them is the sachet introduction. And it's here now!

The use of this "perfume in powder form," as it's been called, gives a single harmonious scent throughout a wardrobe.

Christmas Trees Costly in Gotham

Crop Curtailed by Early Northern Snows.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—There's a forest of a million trees in New York tonight—balsam firs and spruces. They've been brought to the city for Christmas and the tree markets are humming with activity.

They've captured the waterfront freight yards and the fragrance of the north woods has conquered the usual smell of the waterfront.

New Yorkers, say the men who cut and brought the trees to the city, will be paying more for them this year. Good trees, they say, are scarce this year and early snows in the North surprised many cutters who had to abandon their work.

Just the same, Manhattan's markets are filled with buyers walking the long green aisles between flat cars banked high with evergreens and posted with white birch logs.

Dr. Miller Gives First Sermon Tomorrow at National City Christian Church

Noted Speaker Comes Here To Fill Pulpit

Bishop Freeman Will Confirm Class at St. Andrew's.

Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller tomorrow morning will preach his first sermon at the National City Christian Church, to which he comes from a 14-year pastorate at the Independence Boulevard Christian Church, of Kansas City.

For many years an outstanding minister of the Disciples of Christ, Dr. Miller has come to be recognized as one of America's great preachers. In his recent book, "American Preachers of Today," Edgar DeWitt Jones, of Detroit, listed him as one of 32 National ministerial leaders, and predicted his choice as the minister of the National City Church.

The Kansas City Times comments editorially on Dr. Miller's relations with the church there:

"Few ministers form such deep attachments among their members as Dr. Miller has acquired. Few have combined so successfully the functions of the pulpit and the duties of the pastor. Few incumbents or congregations have found the breaking of ties so difficult as is the breaking of ties, now imminent, at the Independence Boulevard Church."

Tomorrow evening a dramatization of Dudley Buck's Christmas cantata, "The Coming of the King," will be presented at the church under the direction of Prof. H. Augustine Smith, director of the fine arts in religion of Boston University. More than 100 persons will take part in the drama, including the chorus choir, directed by W. E. Braithwaite, and representatives from departments of the church school.

Notices of Christmas Music Due Wednesday.

Choir directors who desire to have their Christmas music programs included in the Christmas music page of The Washington Post on Sunday, December 24, are requested to see that these notices reach the music department of The Post not later than Wednesday noon.

Bishop Will Confirm Class at St. Andrew's.

Bishop James E. Freeman will make his annual visitation to St. Andrew's parish, New Hampshire avenue and V street, at 11 a. m. tomorrow to administer confirmation to a class which has been prepared by the rector, the Rev. Alfred J. Wilder. Bishop Freeman will preach at this service.

There will be holy communion at 8 a. m., Sunday school and adult Bible class at 9:30 a. m. and a meeting of the Young People's Fellowship will be held at 7:30 p. m. There will be a celebration of the holy communion at 11 a. m. Thursday.

"White Christmas" Service At Fifth Baptist Church.

A "white Christmas" service will be held at Fifth Baptist Church tomorrow night when gifts of money and groceries wrapped in white will be brought down the aisles and placed upon the altar to provide baskets for the poor at Christmas. There will be songs, shepherds, wise men and kings. At the close of the service the pastor, Dr. John E. Briggs, will administer the ordinance of baptism.

Dr. Sizoo Concludes Sermon Series on Russia Tomorrow.

Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo will preach tomorrow morning at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church on the subject, "Who, Then, Are Christian?" Tomorrow evening he will continue the discussion of "What Shall We Think of Russia?" concluding the series of talks on that land. Early in the new year Dr. Sizoo will begin a series of discussions of Germany and the Christian attitude toward the nation.

The Christian Endeavor Society will hold a fellowship tea at 6 p. m tomorrow in the parish hall.

The white Christmas service will be observed at the midweek prayer service Thursday. A social hour will follow.

The Wednesday Morning Guild will hold its Christmas meeting in the Lincoln Chapel. Dr. Albert Evans will speak.

Covenant Sunday School Gives Cantata Thursday.

"Jesus and His Four-Fold Program" is the subject of Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney's morning sermon at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church.

The Sunday school will present a cantata at 7:45 p. m. Thursday instead of the regular prayer meeting.

The Society of the Covenant will meet Wednesday at 11 a. m. in the church chapel. Dr. J Cristy Wilson, missionary from Persia, will be guest speaker. Luncheon will be served at 1 p. m.

The Sadler Missionary League will meet at 1408 New Hampshire avenue Tuesday, at 8 p. m. The guest speaker will be a missionary from India.

A new troop of Girl Scouts, led by Miss Louise Brown, meets in the church house, 1229 Connecticut avenue, Fridays at 7 p. m.

A new Boy Scout troop organized under the leadership of Maynard P. Shoemaker, jr., meets Fridays at 7:30 p. m. at the Massachusetts avenue chapel of the church.

Dr. Stockdale Will Speak At Two Services Tomorrow.

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, will speak at both services tomorrow. His subject at 11 a. m. will be "Christ the Hope of the Lost." At 8 p. m. he will preach on "What Is a Black Sheep?" The vested choir of 60 voices under the direction of Ruby Smith Stahl will sing at both services. Paul DeLong Gable will be at the organ. Immediately after the evening service, a short sing will be held in the East Parlor.

The Congregational Club will hold its first meeting of the year on Tuesday at 6:30 o'clock at the church. Dinner will be served at that hour. Dr. Lynn Harold Hough of Drew University will speak on "Two Great Congregational Leaders."

The topic for the Calvin Coolidge men's class, which meets at 10 o'clock at the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, will be "Framing Paul and Furthering Christ." The discussion will be opened by the leader, Dr. B. B. James.

Paul Combats Caesar in Rome

By William T. Ellis.

Out of wide travels, adventure-filled, in the far places of the earth, I unhesitatingly select the journey down the Appian Way, from Rome to Naples, as the greatest single day's trip possible to a traveler. Now that Mussolini has reclaimed the Pontine marshes, this route will become a commonplace tourist experience, but it was deemed dangerous when I made it, and I could scarcely procure a car and driver, none that had ever made the trip being available. Of course, I was following the footsteps of the Apostle Paul.

Similarly, in more than 50 steamship voyages on the seven seas, the most interesting water travel I have ever known was on the route of the Apostle Paul, as he sailed the Mediterranean, an ambassador to Rome—in bonds. So with peculiar sympathy I welcome this lesson which comprises the stirring, excitement-filled last two chapters of the Acts. No reader should fail to study these dramatic passages with which Luke, peerless reporter and historian, concludes his book.

Paul's Awesome Program.

As the first great Christian imperialist, a statesman of highest rank, Paul was ambitious to go to Rome, where Caesar sat in control of the world. He had gone up against other great cities of his day, and had planted in them the conquering leaven of Christianity. His restless spirit would not be content until he had also essayed Rome. Moreover, he had received supernatural assurance that he should go to Rome. So Paul's purpose was also God's program. This meant certain destiny.

Here enters the high and inspiring truth that God's will always works out. If not in one way, then in another, the Divine purposes are fulfilled. Since Paul could not go to Rome as a free traveler—his life was not safe once the protecting shield of Rome was removed—he should go in the custody of the eagles. A prisoner he was, but no less an ambassador. He had been denied his own way, but in God's way he was bound for Rome.

"Local color" abounds in this stirring story by vivid-penned Dr. Luke. It is full of place names and of shipping terms, all of which have been checked up and found correct. Like a good journalist, Dr. Luke gives the names of the principal fellow passenger, Aristarchus, and tells of the ports of call, and what Paul did when permitted to go ashore.

For a landlubber, Dr. Luke did wondrously well with his nautical descriptions. I have talked them over with captains when sailing the same seas. For, due to the rashness of the thrifty ships' officers, and despite Paul's warnings, the vessel ran into a terrible storm. As an Austrian sea captain once said to me, when we were in the same zone, "The wind comes down this way like a wild animal; and another wind comes up that way, and they meet in the middle and fight terribly."

"Kill the Prisoners"

Under stress of the overpowering storm, the ship cast overboard, first it cargo, and then its spare rigging. For fourteen days of darkness and fierce wind they helplessly battled the elements. Paul reassured the company that, although the ship would be lost, every man aboard would be saved. In rare detail the author describes the scene, until the vessel ran upon the shore of the Island of Malta, which now is a British naval base in the mid-Mediterranean.

Military usage prescribed that prisoners should be killed if there was danger of their escaping. This course the soldiers advised with respect to Paul and his fellow prisoners. But big-hearted Centurian Julius, who had not been fraternizing with Paul for naught, forbade this. He knew that Paul was the wisest man aboard.

So, at the break-up of the ship, the company cast themselves into the sea, some to swim, and some to cling to floating wreckage, and all made shore in safety.

For long centuries after Paul's day, dwellers on dangerous coasts made spoil of persons shipwrecked. But the Maltese "showed us no little kindness." They kindled a fire for the resuced mariners. And here we have a sidelight upon Paul's character. Great man and distinguished prisoner that he was, he did not hold himself aloof from the drudgery of commonplace helpfulness. He helped gather fuel, for he would warm himself at no fire which he did not help keep alive.

That act of simple usefulness precipitated a sensational incident. Out of his bundle of sticks a viper was drawn by the warmth of the fire and fastened itself upon Paul's hand. The natives expected a swift death for him, interpreting the incident as a punishment from the gods for some great crime. But Paul shook the creature off into the fire, himself entirely unharmed. Thereupon public opinion swiftly changed and he was acclaimed as a god—no new experience for him, who must have recalled the incident at Lystra.

Soon Paul, whom no high concerns could divert from deeds of kindliness and succor, was ministering to the sick of the neighborhood.

Finds Friends on the Way.

At last Paul was in Italy, and on the direct road to Rome. The Divine purpose was working out. Paul's arrival was soon news among the Christians in Rome, and they sent deputations to meet him at Appius Forum and Three Taverns, sites that are only uncertainly identified on the Appian Way. But no Roman emperor, returning in triumph to his capital, had ever been greeted by such deputations of sincere appreciation and friendship. Wonderful has been the communion of saints throughout the ages.

With deep feeling, the travel-battered missionary "thanked God and took courage." If there were more exhibitions of fellowship among Christians, there would be more weary workers heartened. Paul's coming meant much to the Roman Christians; but they meant no less to him.

Rome did not mean rest for the weary apostle. He was granted the favor of permission to dwell in his own hired house—how gladly the brotherhood paid the rent!—and there he at once took up his labors. He first called the leaders of Rome's Jews into council and tried to lay a foundation of good relations with them; and they proved open-minded.

For two years Paul lived in Rome, preaching, teaching, counseling, organizing and writing. His physical limits were the walls of his own hired house, but his spirit soared to all the far-flung Church of Christ, and from this period came some of the great letters which make up so large a part of our New Testament. The irresistible purpose of God, which destined Paul for Rome, was worked out.

Roman justice was slow, but eventually Paul was freed. Again he took up his mighty journey and visited once more the churches that he had founded, in Greece and Asia Minor. But bloody Nero was on the throne, and after the burning of Rome, persecution of the Christians broke out fiercely and Paul again was arrested, carried to Rome and cast into a dungeon. In due time he was led out and beheaded—and the beautiful Church of St. Paul without the walls, now stands on the traditional site of his execution. Dead? Yes; but alive today, in a power over human hearts which no Roman emperor ever wielded; and in a world larger than Rome ever dreamed.

Atwood, financial editor of the Saturday Evening Post; Dr. Arthur C. Christie, chairman of the board of the Washington Y. M. C. A. and of American University, and Huston Thompson, Washington attorney who served as a member of the Federal Trade Commission under President Wilson. A fourth speaker will be announced.

Christian Science Churches.

"Is the Universe, including man, evolved from atomic force?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from John 1:1, 3: "In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God. All things were made by Him; and without Him was not anything made that was made."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible:

"For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind. But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create: for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy." (Isaiah 65:17,18).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spiritual understanding unfolds mind, life, truth and love, and demonstrates the divine sense, giving the spiritual proof of the universe in Christian Science.

"This understanding is not intellectual, is not the result of scholarly attainments; it is the reality of all things brought to light." (page 505).

The Greater Treasure.

Into a vault he put his gold
And kept it under lock and key;
Its whereabouts to none he told,
Lest it by thieves should stolen be.

He never hired a man or maid
For him to do some trivial task
But what, of wickedness afraid,
For references he'd always ask.

Upon his business day by day
He kept an ever watchful eye,
Lest into it by chance should stray
The cheater with his methods sly.

And yet he left his children out
Within the commonest stranger's reach,
Nor ever seemed to think about
The practices which he might teach.

'Tis odd that one at every turn
Should give his money so much care,
Yet blindly let his children learn

Ritchie Okays Montgomery's Sunday Films

Various Measures Given Veto in Post-Session Study.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 15 (Spl.).—Moving pictures and amateur athletics on Sundays in Montgomery County were legalized today when Gov. Albert C. Ritchie gave his approval to the bill passed at the late special session of the General Assembly.

Another Montgomery measure was among the few bills vetoed by the governor. This was the proposal to give the Mayor of Glen Echo powers of a justice of the peace to try violations of town ordinances. The bill to set up separate regulations for tax exemptions in Allegany County was also vetoed.

The Sunday movie bill was signed as chapter 20. It was the only measure that brought forth an eleventh-hour request for veto, and opponents and proponents were given a formal hearing.

Representative of the Lord's Day Alliance and other church groups were the chief opponents. The preponderance of sentiment throughout the county, however, favored a relaxation of the Sunday laws. The governor was informed that the federation of 51 civic organizations favored the bill by a 3-to-1 ratio.

Permits Dance Extension.

Delegate Marvin Farrington was author of the bill, which allows movies and athletic sports after 2 p. m. Sundays, and permits Saturday night dances to extend until 1:30 a. m.

The governor met this afternoon with Senator Walter J. Mitchell, Charles County, president of the Senate, and T. Barton Harrington, Baltimore, speaker of the House, and passed upon the batch of special legislation. Three bills had previously been signed and a total of 114 rceeived sanction today.

Previous approvals were the State-wide liquor control bill, the primary object of the extraordinary session; an emergency measure for Harford County, relating to retirement of bonds, and a special liquor law for Allegheny County. Today's signings included some two dozen measures embracing the administration's six-point program, repealers and new liquor control laws for various counties not governed by the State-wide measure.

Frederick Referendum.

During the session approximately 200 bills were introduced, but more than 50 failed of enactment in either house.

Of the various liquor laws, Frederick was the only county to put the issue of hard liquor up to a referendum next year. Garrett County is the only bone dry area in the State. Most of the counties adopted certain limitations. The tendency was against the open saloon, except in Baltimore City and County.

The Allegany tax redemption bill was vetoed because of conflict with existing laws covering the subject, the governor said. The State law provides for redemption within a year upon payment of the amount paid by the purchaser, with interest at 10 per cent annually and the governor regarded it as unwise to have a State act changed for only one county.

In three other instances the veto was applied to bills that were duplicates passed in both Houses.

Loudoun Attorney May Get U. S. Post

Crawford Case Finish Is Believed Awaited.

John Galleher, Loudoun County, Va., State's attorney directing the prosecution of George Crawford for murder, may find a Government job awaiting him when he finishes the present trial.

Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant Attorney General, said he had recommended Galleher for an attorney's post in the Department of Justice.

"He's capable, young enough to be aggressive and experienced enough to be seasoned," Keenan said. He also pointed out that Galleher had had considerable experience in prosecuting for the Government.

Galleher was largely instrumental in founding the Young Democrats' clubs in northern Virginia. It was intimated that he would accept the post if it were offered. William Stanley, Assistant Attorney General in charge of appointments, was out of Washington yesterday and the exact status of the Galleher recommendation could not be learned.

Hawaiian CWA Chief Quits in Wage Fight

Honolulu, Dec. 15 (AP).—Richard H. Cooke, president of C. Brewer & Co., Ltd., today resigned as Civil Works Administration chairman for the Territory of Hawaii, following refusal of Washington headquarters to permit the local body to fix its own wage rates.

Cooke's attitude was understood to be that, with conditions "less rigorous" here than on the mainland, lower wage rates would be sufficient and that if the Federal rate were paid it might result in men already employed otherwise leaving their jobs to take C. W. A. employment.

Andorra Retains Rulers.

Andorra, Dec. 15 (AP).—The coprinces of Andorra, who are the President of France and the Bishop of Urgel, Spain, retained their control of the tiny Republic of Andorra today as a result of legislative elections in which the new universal suffrage was applied.

Prince Georges Rum Body Deaf To Wets' Pleas

Four Cities to Remain Dry Until Sentiment Is Determined.

Holding to its earlier decision to issue no liquor licenses in four towns, the Prince Georges County Liquor Commissioners yesterday turned a deaf ear to a delegation of 75 "wets."

"The real sentiment has not yet been determined," said A. Gwynn Bowie, attorney for the Commissioners, "and until it is, no temporary licenses will be issued Mount Rainier, Hyattsville, Riverdale, or Laurel, Md.

The delegation that visited Upper Marlboro spoke in behalf of Mount Rainier alone. Speakers included Attorneys J. Wilson Ryon, Louis Lebowitz, Robert W. McCullough, and Frank Hall.

A petition, said to bear more than 600 signatures "of persons living in the vicinity of the prospective liquor stores," was presented the commissioners.

"Scarecrows" in the form of visions of saloons on every corner are being held up before the commissioners by the "drys," the delegation argued.

Jeremiah J. Crowley, chief of the county police force, testified he believed there were no more arrests for drunkenness since the advent of liquor than had been formerly recorded.

Bird H. Dolby, corporation counsel for Mount Rainier, acted in behalf of the town council, which has assumed the "dry" viewpoint.

Rockingham Fixes Survey of Veterans

New Market, Va., Dec. 15 (Spl.). A complete survey of unemployed veterans in Rockingham County and adjoining communities will be made by Rion-Bowman Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Harrisonburg, to determine if any veterans and their families are in real need.

Plans are under way for seeing every former service man in the county, the welfare committee of the post having designated a member in each locality to make a survey. Jobless veterans will be asked to register at either the Harrisonburg or Rockingham office, since ex-service men will receive preference in any public projects undertaken for relief.

E. J. Lonergan was appointed chairman of the welfare committee. He will be assisted by William Phalen, J. W. Sandy, Gus Julias, and Jack Denton.

Middies Start Yule Vacation on Dec. 23

Get Nine-Day Leave for Trips From Academy.

Annapolis, Dec. 15 (Spl.).—Yuletide holidays for midshipmen will begin December 23 and extend until evening roll call on New Year's Day, officials of the Naval Academy have announced.

The liberty carries with it the privilege of going home or to nearby points and will be granted all students not under restrictions. Many of the middies are making plane reservations.

The midshipmen, pursuant to custom, are planning their annual Christmas celebration, which includes gathering around a lighted tree and singing carols, followed by a turkey banquet in Bancroft Hall, on the eve of their leave taking.

Unlucky Ride

The savings of a lifetime, to be used for a new start in the Capital, after their owner got depression-bound in Griffin, Ga., were lost in a taxicab yesterday by Mrs. Anna Sullivan, of 1514 Seventeenth street northwest.

In quest of a job, Mrs. Sullivan arrived Monday and brought all her savings, amounting to $544, with jewelry valued at $827.

French "Joker" Hits U. S. Fruit

Importers Say Proposed Licenses Would Void Quota Reciprocity.

Paris, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—American fruit importers claimed today to have discovered a tax "joker" in the French plan to admit more fruit in return for larger wine quotas in the United States market.

During a day of dickering in this "wine-front" battle, the French ministry of agriculture decided to increase the American apple and pear quota four times the amounts in recent years—and increase the duties to 125 francs per hundred kilograms on apples and 175 francs on pears.

But the "joker" to which they objected lay in an alleged plan by the French to impose what the Americans here regard as prohibitive import license taxes on dealers in fruits, which would make impossible, they declared, the importation of fruit from the United States at all.

The French offer was to raise the quota on apples and pears for the first three months of 1934 to four times the quotas of last year, if the United States raised the quota on wines from France.

Property Boom Has Hit Orient, Lecturer Says

C. C. Batchelder Talks on China's Charm, Food and Customs.

The real estate boom has struck staid old Orient. Waterfront properties in Shanghai, metropolis of China, now sell for almost as much a foot as real estate in New York City, Charles C. Batchelder said last night in an illustrated lecture sponsored by the National Geographic Society at Constitution Hall.

Shanghai still has its street porters, 'rickshaw, and itinerant jugglers, however, said Batchelder, a former United States Government official in China. Throngs still patronize the tea houses and native Chinese theaters, but another section of Shanghai has jazz bands and hotel dances.

Western Ideas Spreading.

Batchelder declared that the greatest revolution in all history is taking place in China. While millions still live under the same primitive conditions as did their ancestors, Western ideas are seeping in through sea ports, and Western influences are being spread by the young Chinese as well as by foreigners.

Old China, however, should be given credit for many excellent ideas and customs, he added. The Chinese are second only to the French as cooks. The "100-year eggs," which are really only 20 years old; birdsnest soup, dog meat, and grasshoppers, which we hear so much about are really delicacies eaten only by the rich, the speaker declared. Ordinary Chinese folk eat food somewhat like ours, only they have a greater talent for making bulky foods tasty, he declared.

The chief curse of China today is overpopulation, Batchelder continued. Where our wealth is used to increase our standards of living, most of China's wealth means more children. China is cursed today with 3,000,000 wandering soldiers who have taken up military life because no other means of livelihood are open to them. Most of these soldiers are utterly useless as fighters, and they gain most of their food and other necessities by levies on inhabitants.

Peiping Is Fascinating.

Peking, now Peiping, the ancient capital, is one of the most fascinating and "different" cities in the world today. Surrounded by a great wall, it is really several cities in one. Most gorgeous of all the areas inclosed is the Purple Forbidden City, once the home of China's emperors, said Batchelder. Today tourists may walk through marble courtyards where foreigners once were shot on sight.

As China has almost no highways, most of the commerce of the country is carried on boats, and, if going overland, by camel, cart or wheelbarrows. One of the most unusual of the lecturer's pictures showed wheelbarrows moving along a muddy road, with bulging sails above the 'barrows helping to move them along.

Fall From Automobile Proves Fatal to Girl, 6

Huntington, Ind., Dec. 15 (AP).—Annell Ambrose, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ambrose, of Detroit, Mich., was injured fatally late today, when she fell from her parents' automobile on a road east of here. She died at a hospital here an hour later.

20 Home Loans Granted Here During Week

Twenty applictaions for loans totaling $143,729 were approved by the local office of the Home Owners Loan Corporation during the week ending December 8, it was announced yesterday. Nine loans, amounting to $56,382, were closed by exchange of bonds.

Fifteen loans, totaling $112,116, were approved with reduction, and 5, totaling $31,613, were approved without reduction. Twelve mortgagees agreed to accept bonds amounting to $88,006. Eighty-one applications, amounting to $134,815, were rejected before a preliminary appraisal was made. Nineteen, aggregating $134,815, were rejected after preliminary appraisal. Three, totaling $17,070, were rejected after detailed appraisal.

The total number of loans closed since the office began operating in August is 64, amounting to $348,372. The average loan amounted to $5,443.

In Maryland, 172 applications amounting to $386,281, were approved after a detailed appraisal. Eighty-nine loans, amounting to $277,471, were closed by exchange of bonds. Three loans, amounting to $3,240, were closed on a 40 per cent cash basis. The total number of loans closed since the office began operating is 525. They amounted to $1,541,231. The average loan was $2,936.

In Virginia, 266 applications amounting to $730,576 were approved after a detailed appraisal. Loans were obtained by 104 applicants through exchange of bonds amounting to $346,102. One loan of $302 was closed on a 50 per cent cash basis.

Fairfax Given $42,735 More For CWA Jobs

Jail Repairs Included With Schools in New Projects.

Mrs. Eleanor W. Aud, Civil Works administrator for Fairfax County, Va., was notified yesterday of the approval of Civil Works projects totaling $42,735.55.

Among the projects were $31,872.10 for county schools; $9,520.45 for an addition to the county jail, and $1,343 for laying of sidewalks and improvements on the courthouse grounds.

These projects are in addition to the work in the town of Falls Church and in the town of Herndon, totaling $9,784, approved earlier in the week.

Projects not yet approved by the State C. W. A. board are repairs to the present county jail; the tearing down of the old clerk's office building and building a new wing on the courthouse with the salvaged material, and the construction of a retaining wall along the front of the courthouse grounds.

Mrs. Aud says work on the projects is being started as rapidly as material can be obtained and crews organized. The work will be carried on under the direction of F. N. Larkin, engineer assistant administrator.

Ministers Donate $50 for Charities

Alexandria Association Lauds United Effort.

The Alexandria Ministerial Association has forwarded to Francis H. Fannon, treasurer of the Alexandria United Charities, a check for $50.

The Rev. Ernest W. Aaron, in forwarding the check, stated, "The Alexandria United Charities has filled a special need among the people of Alexandria, and the pastors of the different churches have been very pleased to give evidence of the high regard in which they hold this united effort on the part of the Alexandria people to relieve distress wherever it is found."

Arrangements are now being made for the drive for funds which will take place in January, but officers of the United Charities will receive any donations made prior to that time. The United Charities was reorganized recently to supplement work of the local welfare office, which is conducted with Federal funds.

More Projects To Employ 98 In Arlington

5 Approved Include Part of Extension Toward Arlington Bridge.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Five civil works projects for Arlington County providing employment for 98 men were approved yesterday, Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, administrator, announces. Work will start at once.

The projects include the construction of a major part of the Wilson Boulevard extension to the Arlington Memorial Bridge, a sidewalk along Wilson Boulevard from Virginia avenue to Rosslyn and a storm sewer for Rosslyn. They will cost $18,686.66.

Efforts for more than three years have been made to provide an adequate approach to the Memorial Bridge. While the Richmond office of the C. W. A. has not approved all sections for the bridge approach, it is expected that within the next few days the remaining sections, including the construction of the Washington avenue section and the extension of Harlow avenue in Rosslyn, will be approved.

The second week's C. W. A. pay roll for the county, released last night, totaled $8,370.35 for 582 men. In addition there are 105 men from the county being employed on P. W. A. projects not included in the above pay roll.

The Week-Before-Christmas Screen and Stage Programs That Opened Yesterday

A Comic Opera Film Plus Big Revue at Fox

Lilian Harvey, John Boles Co-Star; Bancroft in a Comeback at Palace.

"MY LIPS BETRAY." Fox picturization of the play, "Der Komet," by Attila Orbok, adapted to the screen by Hans Kraly and Jane Storm, costarring Lillian Harvey and John Boles, with El Brendel, Irene Browne, Henry Stephenson, Maude Eburne and Herman Bing. Directed by John Blystone. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Immediately one has glimpsed "His Majesty's Car," which was the title of the American stage version of "Der Komet," by the way, he has a fair index to the opera bouffe plot that is to be unfolded in the latter scenes of this opulent picture.

The special custom job executed for H. R. H. King Rupert of Ruthania, is the dream of an automobile innovationist gone mad. Cream color with silver trimmings, this fabulous car is to all intents and purposes a fashionable duplex apartment on wheels, transcending anything ever gazed upon by the eyes of man in the way of modern conveyance. The odd part of it all is that it seems to run!

Striking thus a keynote of Graustarkian extravagance for everything that is to follow, this blocklong juggernaut is a symbol of the picture's consistently delightful exaggerations.

All in Spirit of Fun.

There is nothing about "My Lips Betray" that may be taken in the least as an essay at realistic drama. It is a regally mounted adventure amid the fanciful romanticisms of a new Cinderella that takes itself no more seriously than it evidently expects the spectator to take it, but has a perfectly splendid time poking fun at the legendary tale of a slavey in love with a king. Perhaps not exactly a slavey, but at any rate a singing waitress who is summarily dismissed from Herr Weininger's Volk's Biergarten for a particularly bad performance, is taken pity upon by the king's susceptible chauffeur, who runs her home in that prodigious car, and thus gets talked about as "the king's favorite."

Apprised of the gossip that is going around and the deleterious effect it is having upon his ostensible romance with a princess of a neighboring kingdom, King Rupert masquerades as a captain in his own army and does a little wooing incognito on his own account—with the anticipated results that are conventional in such cases.

Tuneful and Gay.

It is all very gay, very frothy, very amusing and, when it goes musical, tuneful and well orchestrated. There is about some of the movements of the comic opera plot a suggestion of Lubitsch's deft direction and utilization of music as an aid to both narrative and sprightly tempo, which speaks eloquently for the skill of John Blystone's direction.

Lilian Harvey and John Boles are well-chosen principals, who play with an obvious relish of the tasks to which they have been so agreeably assigned. Miss Harvey is, if anything, more vivacious and more believable than she was in "My Weakness," which, for some reason not clear to this observer, was released ahead of the present subject, although made after it. Mr. Boles, a Washington favorite, sings again in this colorful production, song-writing being among the king's minor vices when not engaged in a futile attempt to balance the budget—finally made unnecessary by the discovery of rich oil deposits in them thar hills.

Maude Eburne, as Miss Harvey's grasping landlady-manager, El Brendel, as the king's naive chauffeur, and Herman Bing, as the heavily accented beer-garden proprietor, contribute the bulk of the comedy, with Henry Stephenson and Irene Browne playing with comic seriousness the roles of Prime Minister and Queen Mother.

"Scandals" Just So-So.

George White's refurbished condensation of his last "Scandals," originally presented in the Washington Auditorium a year or so ago, constitutes the sum total of the stage entertainment for the preholiday week.

Shaw and Lee are the principal comedians of the revue, with the Loomis Sisters, Virginia and Maxine, singing "Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries" and one or two other familiar numbers; Ross McLean doing Everett Marshall's "That's Why Darkies Were Born" and Rudy Vallee's "This Is the Missus;" Lucille Page executing her unbelievable acrobatic dances and the chorus of 20 personable young women doing their black and white hand drill and finale, "March of the Amazons."

While the major features of the "Scandals" are present, the whole thing seems to lack tempo and spontaneity and gives the impression of being done in thoroughly desultory fashion.

The Fox Movietone News, Phil Lampkin's heroic attack on Dvorak's "New World Symphony," with only 18 instruments—an experiment that comes off remarkably well, everything considered—together with the seasonable screen announcements complete a bill in which the screen has a slight advantage.

Earle

"CHANCE AT HEAVEN." RKO-Radio picturization of a screen play by Julian Josephson and Sarah Y. Mason, from the story by Vina Delmar, featuring Ginger Rogers, Joel McCrea and Marian Nixon, with Andy Devine, Lucien Littlefield, Virginia Hammond and George Meeker. Directed by William Seiter. Reviewed Friday morning.

A placid little story based upon the familiar rich girl-poor boy formula is here set down without flourish, attempted greatness or any pretension beyond affording an hour of pleasant entertainment.

It is the small-town tale of a filling station operator in love with a home-town girl, who permits his head to be turned by the metropolitan blandishments of a slightly rattle-brained daughter of a wealthy and snobbish mother. Married impulsively, they are "put asunder," contrary to the probably overestimated injunction of the ceremony by which two hearts are usually momentarily converted into one, by the girl's seriously outraged mammy that her child should have done such a thing! Just a country lout, and more to the same effect!

So, after the unsuccessful pursuit to the big city, Blacky Gorman comes back to the girl who can bake the elegant chicken pies. And that is all there is, there isn't any more!

The story is modestly staged, as becomes an epic of the crossroads, and interpreted without frills by a youthful cast that is quite equal to all of its trivial demands. Joel McCrea and Ginger Rogers are the simple village folk who love, lose and love again, and Marian Nixon is an especially ingenuous interloper who, for the time being, very successfully spills the beans. Others in the cast are of no consequence whatever, in the large view. Or the small view, either.

On the Stage.

On the stage, a similarly simple and unpretentious four-act vaudeville bill is introduced by the stunningly gowned Miss Audrey Sieber, mistress of ceremonies.

The Five Jansleys open proceedings with an exhibition of Risley work—which is to say an interval of acrobatics, in which two of their number display a swift and unerring bit of upside-down foot juggling of the other three. Not even the Japs excel this quintet in the accuracy and rapidity of their casting and spinning.

Next come Jane and Katherine Lee, those former incorrigible screen juveniles, who have grown up into two deft and effective singing comediennes whose methods are long since familiar and popular with Washington audiences. Don Ruiz and Bonita add their colorful dancing at this juncture, to lend the bill one more touch with which the Capital is thoroughly acquainted.

Melton a Hit.

James Melton, tenor of the NBC networks, is a vocal headliner worthy of the name. His voice is a fine, full tenor which he discloses a little at a time by singing a group of songs of constantly increasing demands. His first is Irving Berlin's "I Can't Remember," followed in the order named by "Just a Little Love, a Little Kiss," "Without a Song," "Shortnin' Bread" and "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?" The last two but one, favorites in Lawrence Tibbett's repertoire, were rousingly received. In fact, Mr. Melton's was the one outstanding hit of the entire program.

Auxiliary features include a Harry Langdon comedy, "A Roaming Romeo," a Looney Tune cartoon comedy, "Buddy's Show Boat," and the Universal News, with Graham McNamee's running comment.

C. Frederick Clark and his orchestra complete the bill with a lively "Nautical Fantasy" overture in celebration of Joe E. Brown's advent next week in "Son of a Sailor."

Palace

"BLOOD MONEY." United Artists picturization of a story by Rowland Brown, starring George Bancroft, supported by Judith Anderson, Frances Dee, "Chick" Chandler and Blossom Seeley. Directed by Mr. Brown. Reviewed Friday morning by Isabel Harraman Mangum.

And this, for you who like underworld stories, is one of the better gangsters-and-their-molls, bank-robbery, jump-your-bail sort of films.

George Bancroft makes a long-deferred return to the screen in the character of Bill Baily, who puts mayors into office, gets bank thieves out of jail, has a pudgy finger in a lot of different pies, and hands out big, black cigars labeled "Bill Baily for Bail," all with a chuckling and good-natured braggadocio.

Bill's one big mistake in the picture seems to occur the instant he falls for Miss Francis Dee, who appears as Elaine, a society girl with a predilection for taking other people's property and a morbid underworld complex. Elaine, with wide-eyed joyousness, proceeds to complicate matters in a really big way.

A Gal With Ideas.

She encourages Bill, runs away with a bank robber, plants some registered bonds in Bill's care, and seems to have no cognizance at all of the old slogan, "honor among thieves"—which, incidentally, prompts the bank-robber Romeo to smack her none too gently on her jaw, an act which not alone pleased the audience, but restored our faith in the knightly behavior of the better class of thief.

Judith Anderson plays the role of Ruby, the woman who admittedly picked Bill "out of the gutter" and made him into the big bail-bond king whose interests are so far-reaching. "If you could forget like you can remember," says Big Bill Baily to Ruby, "we could be swell friends."

But friendship isn't enough for Ruby, and although she puts her man on the spot for his desertion of her and his prosecution of her brother, who is the bandit who both robs the bank and elopes with Elaine, she takes him back into the fold, and the picture ends with a lightly romantic touch.

Bancroft at Best.

George Bancroft as Bill is at his best. Judith Anderson, a new screen personality, was last seen here in person in the cast of "Mourning Becomes Electra." Her stage training has given her a surety of touch and a poise which make her characterization of Ruby a delightful performance.

Frances Dee is well-suited to the part of Elaine, and the rest of the cast are uniformly excellent. Blossom Seeley appears as an entertainer in two brief sequences, and retains all the "it-ness" of her vaudeville headliner days.

On the supplementary bill is a new Walt Disney Mickey Mouse. This time Mickey is telling a bedtime story called "Giantland." You'll like it. Laurel and Hardy present one of their amusing travesties and have named the hilarity that ensues "Dirty Work."

A Fitzpatrick Traveltalk entitled "British Guiana" and a Metrotone News complete the program.

New Heroine of the Waterfront

Judith Allen, one of the comparatively new screen beauties, who appears opposite Richard Arlen in "Hell and High Water," newest of Max Miller's dramatic depictions of dour doings along the quays. "Hell and High Water" is currently on view at Loew's Columbia

Columbia

"HELL AND HIGH WATER." Paramount picturization of a story by Max Miller, featuring Richard Arlen and Judith Allen, with Charles Grapewin, Sir Guy Standing and Suisei Matsui. Directed by Grover Jones and William Slavens McNutt. Reviewed Friday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

Not so much a sequel as another episode in the lives of wharf dwellers, "Hell and High Water" continues Max Miller's coverage of the waterfront. The same seamy locale obtains, and the characters who pursue their daily routines in this subject bear a more than slight resemblance to those of the earlier picture.

Lacking much of the interest and the rapidity of movement of the first Miller yarn (as presented on the screen, that is), the current work, nevertheless, presents another facet of waterfront life which, though the characters do sometimes behave contrary to expectations, still retains an air of authenticity.

Drama of Ambition.

Cap'n Jerico has charge of the naval station's garbage disposal and, while conducting his daily task, lays plans "to get ahead." One day he rescues a would-be suicide, and from then on, Sally persists in disrupting his domestic tranquillity. Jerico would like to own a shipping line, and, to get his start with a new boat, goes tuna fishing. Returning, the ship is wrecked, and he is the only one saved. Back at home, and through the ministrations of the Navy's rear admiral (whose life Jerico had once saved), Jerico attains his boat—and Sally!

It is all rather obvious, and the fact that the cap'n has eyes and sees not does not add to the fascination of a story laid in such squalid surroundings. That both Richard Arlen and Judith Allen so conduct themselves in the principal roles that deficiencies of the Miller story are practically negligible is, indeed, tribute to their ability. Sir Guy Standing is the rear admiral, and an imposing, stately one he makes.

New Jap Actor.

As one of the cap'n's cohorts, Joe, Suisei Matsui makes his debut before American audiences. His ability to get all tangled up in the translation of American into pidgin English, and his good looks, spot him at once as a valuable addition to Paramount's roster of Oriental character actors.

Others in the cast include Charles Grapewin, Esther Muir (the blonde menace), William Frawley (the male menace), and Charles Knettles (the baby, Barnacles).

Paramount News heads the line of auxiliary attractions, that includes "Polly Tix in Washington," a Baby Stars comedy, and "Million-Dollar Melody," a song-writer farce, with Lillian Roth, Eddie Crane, and Leo Donnelly.

Metropolitan

"DISRAELI." Warner Brothers' picturization of the famous play, adapted to the screen by Julien Josephson, starring George Arliss, supported by Florence Arliss, Joan Bennett, Anthony Bushnell and Doris Lloyd. Directed by Alfred E. Green. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Here is vividly demonstrated that priceless possession of the motion picture—permanency, its ability not only to catch moments of drama, excitement and fine acting, but to hold them for years.

Warner Brothers have rendered a distinct service to the moviegoer and drama-lover in re-releasing "Disraeli," for, three years or so after its first showing, it remains exciting, intelligent entertainment, blazing up to dramatic heights through the very great performance of George Arliss.

If you missed this in '29-'30, if you saw it and have forgotten it, if you saw it and remember every juicy bit—here is a picture to be seen again and again.

Its hero is Disraeli, that amazing man who was England's prime minister and his Mary's "Dizzy," who fought against all odds and won the Suez Canal for England and the title of Empress of India for Victoria.

Great Star and Cast.

All, and everything, that can be said of Arliss in this is that he is Disraeli, brilliant, shrewd and human, and Disraeli is almost all of the picture. There is, however, a splendid performance by Anthony Bushnell, as a most upright young Englishman who suddenly becomes a man of action; a touchingly, gentle portrait of "Dizzy's" Mary by Mr. Arliss' wife, Florence Arliss; and well done supporting roles by Doris Lloyd, David Torrence, Joan Bennett and Ivan Simpson, who is always present and welcome in Arliss' plays.

The only possible fault to be found is that in spots the film shows its age, being just a trifle worn and wan.

Subsidiaries include a sprightly and amusing Technicolor short, "Girl Trouble," featuring Mitchell and Durant, Gordon Westcott and enough lovely girls to explain the title, and a Paramount Newsreel.

"Disraeli" comes at a most opportune season—it is a very pleasant gift and should be accepted over and over again.

RKO-Keith's

"LITTLE WOMEN." RKO-Radio picturization of Louisa May Alcott's novel of the same name starring Katherine Hepburn, with Joan Bennett, Frances Dee, Jean Parker, Paul Lukas, Edna Mae Oliver, Douglas Montgomery, Henry Stephenson, Spring Byington and John Davis Lodge. Directed by George Cukor. Reviewed, fourth week, by W. A. Whitney.

Still forging ahead and more firmly establishing itself as the greatest box office picture ever screened, at the Fifteenth street house, "Little Women" enters its fourth and final week.

It is entirely superfluous at this time to say that this picture should be on everyone's "must" list; the distinguishing attributes—and there are many—of "Little Women" have been discoursed upon at great length earlier in these columns, so that now all that is left is urgently to suggest to those who have not seen the picture that the period in which to do so rapidly is drawing to a close.

"Little Women" is a picture for everyone, regardless of age, sex, or place of birth; a story that brings the spirit of youth to the screen as no other in easy recollection has done.

From Katharine Hepburn down to the most insignificant "bit" player, the drama is expertly cast. Director Cukor and his technical staff have given the story the most sympathetic treatment. The result is an extraordinary production that the lovers of really fine drama, be it on stage or screen, can ill afford to miss Walt Disney's "Three Little Pigs" continues its run, and a release of Pathe News completes the list of attractions.

League Allots 45 Nations Narcotics

United States Assigned 9.8 Tons of Morphine.

Geneva, Dec. 15 (AP).—Spokesmen for the League of Nations today termed as proof it is not impotent the acceptance by all nations of the league's judgment as to their total requirements for narcotics and drugs.

Agreement by 45 countries, including the United States, to allotments for medical and scientific purposes was said by supporters to demonstrate that the league could work out a watertight international system of narcotic control if given the power.

The United States estimated its morphine needs for 1934 at 9.8 metric tons, only 2 tons of which will be used in morphine form. The remainder will be converted into other narcotics.

Capital Group Acclaimed for Worthy Acting

Washington Drama Guild Repeats Howard Play Tonight at 8:40.

With carefully studied precision the Drama Guild of Washington last evening presented at the Wardman Park Theater its second play of the season, Sidney Harold's highly dramatic "Ned McCobb's Daughter," before an enthusiastic audience.

Blending the better elements of melodrama of the old school in an up-to-date story, the Howard play presents sufficient meat to test the dramatic worth of any organization; a combination of dramaturgic elements which lends itself to excusable exaggeration.

It is, accordingly, to the great credit of the cast that the obvious pitfall is carefully avoided, Caroline McKinley making good the near-hysteria of the title role, with Marvin Beers, as the husband, and Harold A. Weinberger as the brother-in-law, delineating the other pivotal parts with equal vehemence.

Chooses Difficult Plays.

The Drama Guild, it would appear, delights most in selecting as its productions those which make the most exacting demands. "Ned McCobb's Daughter" surely is one such drama. High pitched and played with amazing speed, notwithstanding moments of verbose philosophizing that are not, however, without their significance to the action, the play requires much—and the players are far from wanting.

Others in the cast, whose several parts are essential to the action, though not particularly "fat," are John L. Stewart, Haword Frederick, J. Martin Scranage, Wilma Wright Flood, James O. Porter and Anton Hardt. Maurice Jarvis, who appears only in the first act, should be especially mentioned for his splendid impersonation of Ned McCobb.

In the large view "Ned McCobb's Daughter" is as professional a production as the guild has presented.

The play will be repeated this evening.

Bullitt Honored At Soviet Dinner

High Officials Attend Elaborate Event.

Moscow, Dec. 15 (AP).—Economic, diplomatic, and financial leaders of the Soviet Union were hosts tonight at an elaborate dinner for American Ambassador William C. Bullitt and his staff in the official foreign office house, once the palace of a millionaire textile merchant.

Maxim Litvinoff, commissar for foreign affairs, acted as toastmaster. I. Rosenholtz, commissar for foreign trade; I. E. Lubimoff, commissar for light industry, and G. F. Grinko, commissar for finance, were present.

The dinner followed an official visit by Mr. Bullitt to Premier Molotoff, with whom he spent almost an hour.

Tennessee Colored Youth Is Lynched

Sheriff Told to "Come and Get Body."

Columbia, Tenn., Dec. 15 (AP).—The body of Cord Cheek, 20-year-old Negro whom the grand jury had refused to indict following his arrest for an attempted attack on an 11-year-old girl, was found hanging from the limb of a tree near here tonight.

The sheriff said he received an anonymous telephone call that he could find a "dead Negro at the forks of the road" and to "come and get him."

The "Real Stuff" Same As Bootleg, Doctor Says

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—Liquor just like the bootlegger used to make is being sold in Chicago as the "real stuff," according to tests made by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, city health officer.

"Much of it is sold 24 hours after it is made," Dr. Bundesen said today.

"In some samples of what was called blended whisky we found as little as 2 per cent whisky," he said. "The rest was alcohol, water and prune juice."

Found Guilty, Slayer Goes to Cell Singing

New Orleans, Dec. 15 (AP).—Louis Kenneth Neu, 26, of Savannah, Ga., night club singer, tonight was convicted of the murder of Sheffield Clark, sr., Nashville (Tenn.) business man. The penalty is death by hanging.

The jury deliberated 4 hours and 39 minutes. Neu went out of the courtroom singing after the verdict was given. An appeal will be taken to the State Supreme Court.

Aluminum Firm Loses $9,000,000 Suit Move

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 15 (AP).—Judge Carroll C. Hincks today denied a motion by the defendant for a directed verdict in the $9,000,000 suit of the Bausch Machine Tool Co. against the Aluminum Co. of America.

The judge's action clears the way for arguments to be presented to the jury Monday and it is expected the case will be given the jury next week.

Rogers Explains Wage Views

Errors of British in Paying Excessively for Similar Public Programs and Damage Done to Industry Cited by Professor.

The text of James Harvey Rogers' statement relative to his remarks in Cininnati follows:

Because of undue emphasis given by some to a few incidental remarks which occurred in my address on money problems at Cincinnati on the evening of December 14, I take this opportunity of elaborating my statement with regard to unfortunately high wages being paid by Public Works and Civil Works in a number of communities throughout the country.

In no sense can my remarks be construed as an attack on the National Administration or on the administrators of these two important public functions. I have been from the beginning, and am still, a friend both of Public Works and Civil Works. In my opinion, if properly operated, they, as perhaps nothing else, provide the soundest way both of relieving depression and of stimulating recovery. When the capitalist machinery, for one reason or another, gets into a jam and refuses to provide a livelihood for considerable sections of the people, the chief loss to us as a nation comes from keeping our labor and our machinery idle. Like the dinners which we have missed in the past, such losses can never be made good.

While, therefore, the industrial machine refuses to operate for us as individuals, the intelligent course would be to let it operate for us as a collectivity. This being true, whatever our economy produces under such operations is to us as a Nation just that much pure net gain. The financial arrangements necessary to prosecute them simply cancel out among us.

Unfortunately, however, as in England, in Australia and in many other parts of the world where such programs have been put into operation, for humanitarian or other reasons unduly high wages have been paid. The bad effect has been uniformly the same. Not only do excessive wages raise costs to struggling local industry and agriculture, but in some cases private enterprises built up on low wage costs are forced even to close, and thereby not only to increase unemployment, but to take away the livelihood of others dependent upon such enterprises for their incomes. Knowing the history of such public endeavors in other countries, I have fought hard to prevent similar damaging errors in their operation in this country, and because I have been and am a sincere friend of this type of relief, I am particularly grieved at the repetition of these errors in the United States.

Gang Merger Seen by Police

Touhy and Dillinger Are Thought to Have Joined in Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—Evidence that the "Terrible Touhys" and the band headed by John Dillinger, escaped Indiana convict, had merged to form a new and powerful Midwestern gang, was claimed by authorities tonight.

Police Capt. John Stege said that four men, supposed members of the Chicago gang headed by Roger Touhy, were sought along with two members of Dillinger's clan as those responsible for the daylight robbery of safety boxes at the closed Unity Trust & Savings Bank Wednesday.

Joseph Kinch, who, with four others, was bound and held prisoner while seven men took four hours and used sledge hammers to smash open deposit boxes, identified John Hamilton, lieutenant for Dillinger, and Charles Mackley, another member of the gang, as among the robbers.

Hamilton also is sought for the slaying yesterday of Police Sergt. William Shanley when the officer sought to arrest him.

Spanish Extremist Dies In Attempt at Revolt

Mellila, Spain, Dec. 15 (AP).—One Extremist was killed and three were arrested today, when a group of seven made an unsuccessful attempt to seize the military barracks of Batallon Cazadores No. 2.

The attempt was made to emulate the rebels who captured the Villa Nueva Serena Barracks last Saturday, but the alertness of a sentinel thwarted it.

$5,000 Blaze Hits Chestertown Farm

Horses, Cows, Dog Perish on Copeland Estate.

Chestertown, Md., Dec. 15 (Spl.).—Five valuable horses, three Jersey cows and a dog were burned to death tonight on the 2,600-acre farm of DuPont Copeland, of Bridgeport, Conn., a mmeber of the DuPont family of Wilmington, Del., when defective electric wiring started a fire in one of the stables.

The dwelling of Eugene Thornton, of Middletown, Del., caretaker, caught fire, as did another stable, but they were saved by Chestertown firemen, who rushed 10 miles. A herd of valuable Aberdeen Angus cattle was removed to safety, as were 50 dogs. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

Dog Grateful

Rescuers Brave River to Save Spaniel.

Portland, Oreg., Dec. 15 (AP).—A movement at the base of the precipitous opposite shore caught the eye of R. C. Randall, a driftwood gatherer on the Willamette River, yesterday. He rowed across the swollen current to investigate.

On a ledge a foot above the rising river a black spaniel shivered, near exhaustion from hunger and exposure. Randall tried to lift the dog into his boat, but the animal snarled.

The spaniel was still marooned today, so Randall called the Oregon Humane Society.

Abe Olsen and C. E. Smith went to the scene. Despite his frightened protest, they pulled the animal into the boat. Then the dog licked their hands.

Duce Will Rule All Education

Colleges, Science Bodies and Research Work Now Coming Under Him.

Rome, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Chamber of Deputies had before it today a measure placing every institution of education and research in the country under the thumb of Mussolini.

Universities, colleges, scientific societies and all other cultural organizations, from those of national importance down to the smallest local body, will be fascistized by virtue of the project.

The president of each institute and the members of his staff will be obliged to swear allegiance to the Fascist government, and means of control will be created to see that the institutions are run in strict accordance with blackshirt principles.

Cleaner Says Prices in Code To Aid Rackets

Test of Law in Court Will Be Taken if Rules Stand.

A court test of the 65-to-95-cent minimum prices for cleaning suits was promised last night by Bernard Shotkin, owner of a chain of Philadelphia cash-and-carry shops, unless Gen. Hugh S. Johnson revises the price provisions of the cleaning code by today.

Shotkin told newspaper men the minimum prices which cleaners must now charge are so exorbitant they inevitably will lead to more racketeering in the industry.

Shotkin said the higher code prices foster racketeering because the low profits of the precode era made protection collections difficult. He submitted evidence to show he made 9 cents on every suit he cleaned during 1932 for 39 cents.

After a conference with him, however, Gen. Johnson said he did not believe there is much difference in the cost of operations between the cash-and-carriers and those who call for and deliver garments, though the former are demanding a differential to compensate for their lesser service, claiming that when the code forces them to charge the same as the call-and-deliver men their trade is jeopardized.

Stating that he had been in conference with cleaners all day, Gen. Johnson said their figures and representation were so "inconsistent" he ordered subordinates to conduct their own survey of costs to determine whether a differential is justified. He said he would take no action on the demands until the survey is completed.

Meanwhile, the situation in the Washington area remained unchanged, with the Morningside Laundry of Silver Spring, a former price violator, contending it will be forced to give the local 95-cent minimum a trial and depend on bigger concerns to test the code in the courts. Harry S. Wender, operator of a valet shop, has joined the cash-and-carry men in asking for a local differential.

Allen Orders Move to Feed Needy Pupils

Goads Officials to Task Hopkins Approved 2 Months Ago.

Work Is Hurried to Give Lunches to Those in Poverty.

Spurred to action by Commissioner George E. Allen more than two months after the authorization for such a plan was made by Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, school officials and principals were in the midst of a rush assignment last night to determine how badly lunches are needed for poverty-stricken school children.

On October 4 Administrator Hopkins instructed relief officers in the 48 States and the District of Columbia to establish a program under which children of families on relief rolls would be given a meal daily at schools.

Since then two surveys conducted in local schools have revealed that 403 children were absent because they did not have sufficient clothing. These surveys were made by Miss Fay L. Bentley, director of school attendance and work permits, on the request of Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, vice president of the board of education.

In the first survey covering the week of October 20—two weeks after Mr. Hopkins made his authorization—211 children were absent. The second survey, during the week of November 24, revealed that 192 children were absent.

Food Lacking, Too.

Although relief was administered to the homes of these children, no provision was made by relief agencies for supplying them with lunches at school. The only way these children have been assured of lunches while at school has been through the altruism of teachers and pupils. During the week of November 24, a total of $42.28 was spent by the schools themselves on behalf of the needy children.

No move was taken toward the establishment of a relief program until 10 days ago, when Commissioner Allen called Supt. Frank W. Ballou to the District Building for a conference. Nothing further was done, so far as can be learned, until Thursday, when Dr. Ballou conferred again with Leroy Halbert, Federal emergency relief director in the District, and Commissioner Allen.

This last conference resulted in Dr. Ballou summoning the heads of public schools to the Franklin Administration Building, where he told them to bring in by noon today every available fact in regard to feeding needy children.

List of Pupils Asked.

The superintendent asked for a list of elementary schools and the number of pupils in these schools needing hot lunches in the middle of the day.

Heads of the teachers' colleges and junior and senior high schools were asked to tell what they are now doing toward supplying lunches for needy pupils, and whether they can continue this work with their present resources.

The extent of cooking facilities in schools and outside for preparing lunches also will be determined.

Today's report also will include the schools that served lunches to needy pupils last year and the number of pupils thus aided. The meals were supplied last winter by private charity, but the funds fell short before the end of the season, school principals said.

Allen to Plan System.

All this information will be gathered into a single report as soon as it is submitted, and presented to Commissioner Allen. Then he will decide how the relief work is to be administered. The most likely plan will be that recommended by Administrator Hopkins early in October.

During the week of November 24 the schools served 509 free lunches. In the elementary schools, 145 milk and cracker lunches were supplied, 141 hot lunches in the junior high, 125 in senior high and 98 in vocational.

Mrs. Doyle said she intends to have the survey of needy children repeated in the near future. Miss Bentley does not believe families which have benefited from employment under the Civil Works Administration have had time to catch up with their expenses to allow enough for clothing for their children and lunch money.

Orders Nursery Survey.

Prior to the conference with the school principals, Dr. Ballou held another one with heads of domestic science departments, at which he instructed these school officials to conduct a survey to determine the number of rooms available for nursery schools. This is in preparation for a program also made available through Federal relief funds. Jobless teachers would be employed to conduct the nursery classes and to instruct the mothers of the infants in proper feeding.

Such a program will not be put into operation, Dr. Ballou said, unless there are a sufficient number of jobless teachers in Washington to justify it.

Ohio Liquor Monopoly Voted.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 15 (AP).—A liquor control bill providing for a State monopoly on package liquor and for sale by the glass in "wet" communities was passed by a vote of 97 to 17 by the Ohio House of Representatives late today.

With entrance denied to violin makers and temperaments soothed by whiffs of catnip, 175 cats of every breed, color and classification, ranging from "Mehitabels" of the back fence to "Djer Kisses" of the boudoir, preened their silken coats in dignified competition at the Fourth Annual Cat Show of the Columbian Cat Fanciers yesterday.

Lady cats, gentleman cats and cats which would look askance at a rat mingled with the proletariat—short-haired domestic to you—which appeared to be not above the stalking of a starling or a moonlight frolic and howling spree.

But not a howl was howled nor a claw bared; green eyes, orange eyes and blue eyes of Siamese, Tortoiseshell, Blue, Cream, Smoke, Red Tabby, Chinchilla, Shaded Silver roamed indolently around from cage or judging table—grinning all the time—like Cheshire Cats.

The show is at the Lee House, and will be concluded today. Among the entries are many cats of Washington owners, in addition to some of the leading cat breeders and fanciers of other sections of the country.

The following compose the show committee: Mrs. Annette H. McCarthy, Mrs. Martin K. Metcalf, Mrs. Edith Sickles Wood, Miss Mary Fogarty, Miss Emma Payne, Mrs. E. W. Martin, Mrs. Frank Hobson, Mrs. John Marshall, Miss Dorothy Hobson, Mrs. V. J. Pedone, Miss Helen Koehne, Miss Mary E. Hantzmon, and Mrs. Elizabeth Walsh.

Winners judged yesterday included: White cats—Mrs. Amelia M. Olmsted's White Temple of Tempest, Mrs. Thelma Howard's Rummy, Mrs. Thelma L. Barton's Skippy, Mrs. Olmsted's May Vaughn Du Pree, Mrs. Retta J Wandell's Teddy, Mrs C. E. Johnson's Silvermoon, Mrs. Lucille A. Purnell's Rosebank Strange Interlude, Miss Emma Payne's Rosedere White Hope, Rosedere Peggy Winter and Rosedere Jasmine, and Mrs. Harry Helwig's Zuzu.

Blue cats—Mrs. P. S. O'Neil's Patrick Superb of the Seven Elms, Mrs. Mabel LaFayette's Blue Splendor of the Seven Elms, Mrs. M. B. Ruling Delayed In Liquor Test By D. C. Judge

Plea That Repeal Nullifies Volstead Act Under Consideration.

Advocates of legal liquor for the District before Congress convenes were set back yesterday when motions in the second "test" case were taken under consideration by Police Judge Ralph Given, who failed to indicate when he would give a decision.

This is the second case in which pleas of abatement have charged that repeal of the eighteenth amendment wipes out prohibition enforcement laws in the District.

Yesterday's case came before Judge Given when Attorney S. Joseph Donoghue, defending Louis Oliver Taylor, colored, contended that there is no law in the District on which to try his client. Taylor was arrested after repeal.

Counsel contended that the recent opinions of Attorney General Cummings and Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride, upholding the validity of the Volstead act in the District, were given only "because they knew if they followed the law an unfortunate condition would result."

Assistant United States Attorney Dave A. Hart based his argument on the contention that Congress expected prohibition would remain in force in the District until the Volstead act was specifically repealed.

A similar case has been under consideration by Police Court Judge Gus A. Schuldt for several days.

Dewey Widow's Fan Collection Sold at Auction

An echo of the days when fans were a part of the costume of every lady was heard yesterday in the auction rooms of C. G. Sloan & Co., when dozens of fans, of lace, brocade, fine parchment and satin, belonging to the late Mrs. George Dewey, wife of the admiral of the Navy, were sold to the highest bidders.

Many of the fans were presented to Mrs. Dewey by royalty, and have a historical, as well as an intrinsic and artistic value.

Among the fans sold was a white satin brocade one trimmed with fine lace and with pearl sticks, which was Mrs. Dewey's wedding fan.

Sentiment again was present in bidding yesterday. A set of binoculars inscribed with the name of Admiral Dewey brought a high price. Many of the other articles used by him were purchased by his former aid, now Rear Admiral Spencer Wood, retired.

The peak of the day's sale was reached when a mahogany case grand piano presented to Admiral and Mrs. Dewey by a Boston manufacturer, was sold to Rear Admiral Wood for $275.

An oil painting by Rufus Fairchild Zogbaum, depicting Admiral Dewey on the bridge of the U. S. S. Olympic during the battle of Manila Bay, went for $80 to Mrs. Margaret Blue of this city.

A colored print of Dewey and his officers brought $8 under the hammer, but a silver container for a whisky bottle brought $14.

Light on Starlings, Smack In Eye With Million Watts

At last some light—a million and a half watts, in fact—will be thrown on the starling problem if a plan suggested yesterday to Clifford Lanham, the District's chief in matters of trees, parking and starling chasing, materializes.

The war on starlings, you see, has subsided considerably and the birds are taking advantage of the respite. Two weeks ago an army of 100 civil workers, permanent District employes and firemen was intimidating the birds into avoiding the District Building, Pennsylvania avenue trees and F street shops and theaters.

But the battle with the birds could not continue at such a furious pace, with firemen pouring streams of water at them and workmen shaking pebble-filled tin cans in trees and others waving telephone books. A letdown was inevitable and now that it has arrived the starlings are returning to their old haunts.

Relatively few roosted on the District Building last night, or in sycamores along the Avenue, but the F street theater sector again has almost as many as ever.

Phone directories continue to dangle from roofs but no longer keep ledges clear. Indeed, the starlings seem to enjoy them and may use the C. & P. tomes to play the numbers game. C. & P., Come and Play.

Oh, yes the light solution. Mr. Lanham disclosed yesterday that a retired general recommends the use of a huge Army searchlight, which might be obtained from Fort Myer. One and a half million watts, flashed smack into their eyes after they had retired for the night, would send the birds winging and if the treatment was repeated when necessary, they would not return, the general believes.

Suggestions, complaints and other correspondence on starlingania continue to pour into Lanham's office. He looks with favor on the searchlight idea, which would literally put his arch enemies "on the spot," and said it will be given a trial if the situation again becomes serious.

Aerial Circus Today Honors Wrights Here

Bid for City Landing Field Precedes Two-Day Show.

As preparations for Washington's great aerial show today in memory of the Wright brothers' first flight 30 years ago neared completion, a movement for a municipal airport was pushed by the Washington Air Derby Association.

The association petitioned the District Commissioners that money be obtained from the Civil Works Administration for the construction of a proper air landing field under District government control.

The "Aviation Day" celebration will open this afternoon at 12:45 with a great aerial circus by Army, Navy and Marine fliers. About 104 planes will execute maneuvers and climax a 2-hour show with an attack on Hains Point, which will include actual bombing of a target in the river.

The Army will hold open house at Bolling Field in the afternoon, with nearly 40 planes "on the line" for inspection of visitors.

An excellent view of the air demonstration will be afforded from Haines Point, where air activities will focus.

Hawks Will Seek Record.

The demonstration, which is sponsored by the National Aeronautic Association, will be followed tonight with a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel, where many of aviations' notables will gather.

The banquet will include a 30-minute National broadcast. Speakers will include Capt. A. C. Read. U. S. N., commander of the NC-4 on its Atlantic hop; Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison, Lieut. Eric Nelson, Eugene L. Vidal, Frank M. Hawks, James G. Wedell, Lieut. Comdr. T. G. W. Settle, and many others.

The Thompson Trophy won by Wedell at the National Air Races last summer, will be presented to the builder of his plane, Harry Williams, while Wedell himself will receive the Thompson Plaque.

For tomorrow a show of commercial planes at the College Park Airport and Capt. Hawks' attempt to break the 2,000 kilometer closed course record, at present claimed by Germany, are scheduled.

Hawks will fly over Kittyhawk, N. C., scene of the Wright brothers' triumph, and Dayton, Ohio, their home, in his flight, which is to bring him back to College Park in slightly over five hours.

Apex Building Site Discussed

Anacostia River Bridge Design Approved.

The Fine Arts Commission yesterday approved a design for a new Pennsylvania Railroad bridge over the Anacostia River and plans for two bathing pools at a meeting in Philadelphia.

Location of the Apex Building, which will form the tip of the Federal Triangle in Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues, was discussed by the commission with Louis Ayres and Chester Aldrich, architects, and A. A. Weinman, former sculptor of the Fine Arts body."

The armillary sphere for Rock Creek Park was inspected at the Roman Bronze Works.

3 Justices to Sit In Duke Hearings

Three justices of the District Supreme Court will sit Monday to take testimony in the disbarment proceedings instituted against Jesse C. Duke, attorney, by the grievance committee of the District Bar Association.

Chief Justice A. A. Wheat yesterday announced that he and Associate Justices Jennings Bailey and Daniel W. O'Donoghue would sit in the case.

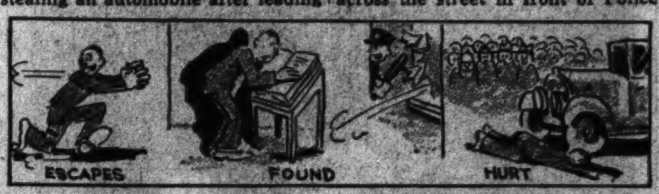
Duke is being tried on charges of unprofessional conduct in that he made accusations against United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Justice F. D. Letts of the District Supreme Court.

Christmas Flight Fails

Boy, 15, Eludes Police, Juvenile, Hospital Authorities After Seeking Release of Friend, but Finally Lands Back in Industrial Home.

An agile 15-year-old youth, who wanted to speed Christmas at home and not at his enforced domicile, the Industrial Home, led police, juvenile and hospital authorities on a hair-raising chase yesterday afternoon.

Several weeks ago Thomas Hambleton was arrested on a charge of stealing an automobile after leading detectives a break-neck chase. Then taking to his heels he outwinded two detectives in a foot race. Later they found him miles away.



Hambleton was sentenced in Juvenile Court to the Industrial Home out on Wisconsin avenue. Sunday he disappeared.

Yesterday he walked boldly into the Juvenile Court office and blandly asked John Casey, clerk of the court:

"Would a friend of mine in the Industrial Home be able to go home for Christmas?"

Casey started to answer the question, but decided his interrogator's face was familiar.

"What's your name?" he said.

"John Wilkinson," said young Hambleton to Casey.

"Oh, yeah," said Casey. "Well, I know who you are," and he pinioned the lad. Hambleton then admitted his identity. He heard Casey speak over a telephone.

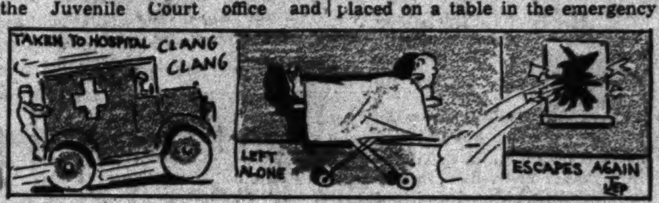
Then, like a flash, Hambleton bolted from the room. At the sidewalk he met Jerry Chapin, another court attache, who also recognized him.

Mr. Chapin was carrying a large sack of oranges. With one hand he made a flying tackle at Hambleton. The youth sidestepped and down went Chapin and the oranges.

Then came near tragedy. Just across the street in front of Police Court, young Hambleton came into contact with a car driven by P. J. Vanderanburg.

Leaping to elude the oncoming car, Hambleton was struck and plunged apparently senseless to the street. A crowd gathered and an ambulance was called.

At the hospital, Hambleton was placed on a table in the emergency room. Apparently he still was unconscious. The nurse and interne turned to another case for a moment.



When the hospital attaches looked again, Hambleton had gone.

Then police and Industrial Home authorities again took up the hunt. A telephone rang. Some neighbor tipped them off that Hambleton was at the home of his aunt, Miss Violet Hambleton.

The boy had gone home for Christmas. But the men from the detention home came and got him and so late last night he was back in custody for Christmas.

Job of Moving Trees on Mall Starts, Stops

"Woodman, Spare That—" Seems to Have Won, But Only Reprieve.

Preliminary work on the $600,000 public works projects which will transform the Mall into a scenic gem of trees and roadways got under way yesterday, and then, under occult circumstances, was abruptly halted a few hours later. Workmen received instructions yesterday to start removing trees for transplanting. Scarcely had the job begun when they were ordered to suspend.

Countermanding of the order is believed to have been due to complaints from tree lovers, protesting the removal of the oaks, maples and other specimens in which they have a sentimental interest. Practically all of the trees must be taken out to make way for the development. Several hundreds of elms, however, will be set out in their place, forming eight majestic rows between the Capitol and the Monument.

Arno B. Cammerer, director of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations, who ordered the work stopped, said it will be resumed eventually, but he did not know when.

Bids for construction of the proposed Mall roadways already have been opened, but the contract has not been let. Bids for the drainage and water supply system will be opened December 27. Plans approved by the Fine Arts and National Capital Park and Planning Commission include four roadways, with stately rows of elms lining either side of each.

Danger Great On Span Job, CWA Warned

Unskilled Men May Lose Lives, Union Agent's Complaint Says.

Wrecking of Aqueduct Bridge by inexperienced workmen may result in death or injury, according to a complaint laid before the civil works employment center here.

Criticism of the office's methods in hiring and placing employes was made by Leslie L. Myers, business agent for the iron workers union. He charged that men who are not qualified for the job of tearing down the old span near Key Bridge have been put to work there.

Myers asked that iron workers be hired for civil works projects through the union. No union iron workers have been employed to date at Aqueduct Bridge, John Locher, secretary of the Washington Building Trades Council, said yesterday.

Among other controversies which clouded the horizon of local organized labor yesterday were the strike of carpenters and iron workers at the Central Heating Plant, a jurisdictional dispute which is delaying completion of the city postoffice addition, and a contracting mixup on the new power plant job at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Fourteen union carpenters who walked out at the heating plant five weeks ago have been replaced by nonunion men, it was learned. The strike was called in protest against the Rust Engineering Co., contractors, alleging running an open shop in erecting a distillery near Pittsburgh. Ironworkers joined the strike a week ago.

2 U.S. Judges Take Appeal On Pay Cuts

Retired Jurists Assert Status Governed by Constitution.

Supreme Court May Hear Cases in January Term.

Further protest against the 15 per cent salary cut for judges was contained in an appeal filed yesterday with the Supreme Court by two retired Federal judges.

Judge Wilbur F. Booth, of the Eighth Circuit Court and Judge Charles F. Amidon, of the District Court of North Dakota, are claiming compensation for the 15 per cent reduction which has been withheld from their salaries since the passage of the Federal economy act last spring.

Although both judges are on the retired list they claim they are eligible for service on the bench and are frequently summoned to take over judicial duties.

Claims Services Used.

Their appeal will be based on the claim that they are constitutional judges and are entitled to the protection of the Constitution which provides that Federal judges shall not be subject to any reduction in compensation during tenure of office.

The Supreme Court has already laid down the principle that salaries of constitutional judges shall not be affected by the pay cut decreed for all Federal employes. The question involved in the present case will be whether judges, although technically retired but still liable to calls for duty, should be given the same exemption constitutional judges not retired, enjoy.

Hearing in January.

Judges Booth and Amidon originally filed suit in the Court of Claims for compensation, but that body certified the case to the Supreme Court. The appeal will probably be heard in January.

Test cases revolving about the salaries of judges of the District Supreme Court, Court of Appeals and the Court of Claims resulted in Supreme Court decisions that they were exempt from pay cuts.

Dr. C. T. Wilson to Tell "What Drys Plan Next"

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Public Morals, tomorrow morning will address the congregation of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Fifth street at Seward Square southeast.

"Where the Twenty-first Amendment Leaves Us and What the Drys Plan Next" will be his subject.

Flee in Style

Reformatory Prisoners Take Chief's Auto.

Two prisoners escaped in style from Lorton Reformatory yesterday, using the automobile of Capt. M. M. Barnard, general superintendent of the District penal institution.

The men are Wilbur Broadway, serving for grand larceny, and Raymond Betts, sentenced for housebreaking. Capt. Barnard said that the car had been parked in front of his office a few minutes before it was taken.

The men were thought to be heading toward Washington.

4,000 See Browning Throw Roebuck in 22 Mins. at Toy Fund Show

Leg Scissors Brings End To Bout

Champ Has Easy Time With Big Indian From Outset.

WITH last night's rassle bouts being staged in the name of sweet charity—The Post's Doll and Toy Fund drawing a slice of the top portion of the intake—the boys seemed to give everything they had and, as a result, the 4,000 crowd present surely was given a big run for its money. Some of the matches were not particularly good from a competitive standpoint, but there were some features in all of them which seemed to strike the fancy of the cash customers.

They thrilled at the last roundup as Jim Browning, looking every inch the champion he claims to be, answered a moot question by twirling the 271-pound Tiny Roebuck around his head and slamming him with his famous airplane spin and leg scissors.

Has Midget Manager.

They shed copious tears as the veteran, Tommy Draak, begged for their sympathy before bowing to George Manish; they laughed when Jim Clinstock, a giant Indian, brought a midget manager to the ring with him, who gave signals throughout the bout which netted a draw with Strangler Lewis, and they were awed when the Masked Marvel, with a distinguished manager, marched into the ring all dolled up with a military cape and yards of gold braid.

But the big punch of the evening's entertainment was when the Marvel's manager began giving signals with a deck of playing cards. He must have slipped the wrong one out of the pack, though, for his man suddenly was catapulted out of the ring into the orchestra pit by Rough Rudy Dusek, his foe. Referee Bennie Bortnick would have given the Marvel five minutes in which to recover, but the other masked man jumped into the ring and started mixing it and this gave Rough Rudy the decision without further ado.

Takes Bout on Lewis.

This was not the only extra bout on the card, for Clinstock's midget pilot also suddenly thought he was a he-man and attacked Lewis at the end of this bout, but this fracas comes under the classification of comedy. The fact is that the only match staged along straight lines was the curtain-raiser in which Scotty McDougal decisioned Bruno Gorasini.

It was a tough night for the two Indians on the card. Although one is a Cherokee and the other a Choctaw, both did an exceptional amount of sqawking which sounded exactly alike to the fans. Clinstock managed to get a draw with Strangler Lewis, but he absorbed about twice as much punishment as did his aged foe. And what Roebuck failed to receive in the way of torture is not worth mentioning.

Browning roughed Tiny unmercifully at the very start and took all of the fight out of him, and then covered him like a tent. The bout was not even close and ended in 22 minutes. Browning used but four airplane spin leg scissors holds. Three scared Roebuck almost to death and the other finished him.

Managerial Strategy.

Managerial strategy was introduced locally for the first time—and it did not seem to help much. At the start of the Clinstock-Lewis bout, the Indians' midget pilot climbed up on the second ring-rope and whispered something in his man's ear. Throughout, he was most excitable as he gave signals with his fingers so much so, in fact, that he climbed all over Col. James Lake, the announcer, and forced him to change his seat. He set the precedent of jumping in the ring to help his man, but simply added a comedy touch as Lewis batted him away as though he were a fly.

But it was different, when the Masked Marvel's card-shuffling adviser did his stuff and several of Maj. Brown's "finest" had to be called on before he could be quieted.

All in all, it was a good show, though, and not only gave the paying guests a run for their money but also will help make Christmas really mean something to hundreds of Washington's needy kiddies.

Londos Retains Claims.

And So Does Don George.

Boston, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—Ed Don George, Java, N. Y., retained his world wrestling title tonight by throwing Jumping Joe Savoldi, formerly of Notre Dame, two falls out of three at Boston Garden.

Savoldi won the first fall with his drop kick in 21 minutes 15 seconds. He tried it again in the second fall, but George was against the ropes and Savoldi bounded back, striking his head against the floor. George pounced upon him to win the fall with a top body press, in 15 minutes 30 seconds. Savoldi acted as though he was hurt, and George won the next fall and match.

Greenleaf Ungentlemanly, Match Awarded to Caras

RALPH GREENLEAF, defending his world pocket billiard title, who lost by forfeit yesterday when the referee penalized him for "unsportsmanlike conduct" in refusing to drop a claim of foul.

Champion Dealt 5th Loss in Tourney; May Not Be in First Five.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (AP).—An outburst of temperament today brought Ralph Greenleaf his fifth defeat in the tussle for the world pocket billiards championship and virtually ruined his chances of finishing among the first five.

The New Yorker, who has held the title for the last four years and with few exceptions since 1919, lost his engagement with James Caras, of Wilmington, Del., by forfeit, after he had refused to drop a claim of a foul. He charged that Caras had shoved the ball in making a point, and continued his argument so long that Referee Joseph Ferguson, of New York, declared the match forfeited.

The match had progressed for 12 innings, with Caras leading 52 to 8 when Ferguson, on advice of Clyde A. Storer, president of the National Billiard Association, sponsor of the tournament, decided the forfeiture on grounds of ungentlemanly conduct.

Caras bounced back into a tie with Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, for second place at four victories and one defeat. Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, leads with six straight triumphs.

George Kelly, another Philadelphian, and holder of the national title, also suffered a serious setback, losing his third decision in seven matches. His conqueror was Bennie Allen, of Kansas City, who needed 16 innings to win by 125 to 29. Allen had a high run of 36, to a 7 for Kelly.

Andrew Ponzi, stubby Philadelphia shotmaker, tonight suffered his first defeat of the tournament, losing to Frank Taberski, veteran Schenectady, N. Y., star, 125 to 93, in ten innings. Ponzi, the leader, previously had won six straight matches.

The standings:

Player	W.	L.	HR.	BG.	TP.	TI.
Ponzi, Philadelphia...	6	1	68	8	843	99
Caras, Wilmington...	4	1	74	14	595	66

Greenleaf Seeks Divorce.

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, world's champion billiard player, today filed suit in the Superior Court for a divorce from his wife, Amelia. He charged her with repeated cruelty since their marriage in Maryland in 1925 and declared that on two occasions she struck him.

Greenleaf is engaged now in a championship match here. He has been world's champion for 13 years, including 7 consecutive years, from 1923 to 1930.

Cubs Buy Benny Tate, Former Nat Catcher

Chicago, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—The Chicago Cubs today announced the purchase of Benjamin (Benny) Tate, a catcher, from the Montreal team of the International League.

Tate made his major league debut with the Nats in 1924, having been bought from the Memphis Southern Association Club, and remained here until traded to the White Sox along with Pitcher Garland Braxton for Art (the Great) Shires, in June of 1930.

Hurt Hockeyist Faces Crisis Today

Bailey Lapses Into Coma; League Heads Reach Boston for Quiz.

BOSTON, Dec. 15 (AP).—Doctors literally held their breaths today and hoped for the recovery of Irvin (Ace) Bailey, Toronto hockey player, who underwent a major operation yesterday.

Bailey was operated on to relieve the pressure on his brain, caused by a severe skull fracture which he received Tuesday night when he was knocked to the ice by Eddie Shore, of the Boston Bruins, during a hockey game.

The injured man was in a coma throughout the day and was fed with fluids. Dr. Donald Munro, one of the doctors who operated on him, said it would take until about tomorrow afternoon to tell whether the operation had been a success.

In Natural State.

He said Bailey became conscious for a short period during the early part of the day, but did not say anything. He then lapsed into a coma, a natural state after so severe an operation. Late in the day he was said not to have been "so well as he was this morning."

Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, and Frank Patrick, its managing director, came to Boston today to investigate the accident. They said a meeting of league governors had been called for next Wednesday night in Montreal to take action on the case. Disposition of the cases of Shore and "Red" Horner, Bailey's teammate who dropped Shore with a punch to the jaw after Shore had knocked Bailey down, also will be discussed. Both are under suspension.

Mickey Cochrane Saved by Walberg

Tiger Pilot Nearly Drowned While on Hunting Trip.

Baltimore, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—The story of how Rube Walberg, southpaw pitcher recently traded to the Boston Red Sox by the Philadelphia Athletics, saved Mickey Cochrane, new manager of the Detroit Tigers, from drowning, came out of the Maryland duck-hunting country today.

They were hunting ducks off Deals Island and Cochrane rowed out in a boat to retrieve a wounded bird. The boat began to fill with water and Cochrane jumped and tried to swim in his heavy hunting costume. Walberg heard Cochrane's cries for help and waded out and rescued him.

Cordovano Is Winner.

Detroit Places Cochrane Under $100,000 Insurance

DETROIT, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Detroit Baseball Club tonight had a $100,000 opinion of its new Tiger manager, Gordon Stanley Cochrane.

Two insurance policies totaling that amount were taken out during the afternoon on Cochrane's life, the insurance on the former star catcher of the Athletics being divided betwen two Detroit companies.

"Mickey," who is on his way home to Philadelphia, stopped in Detroit after the baseball meeting in Chicago, full of enthusiasm for his new managerial post, and confident that when the Tigers take the field next spring they will be nothing if not a scrapping, aggressive bunch of ball players.

Cochrane appeared in the pink of condition during the insurance physical examinations. He weights 175 pounds and believes that he will catch about 125 games next season.

He said he felt fine about the deal in which Leon (Goose) Goslin will come to the Tigers and Jonathan Stone goes to Washington. Goslin, Cochrane believes, will supply the punch he needs next season, and after that the new manager plans to take steps to look to younger ball players for future Tiger teams.

Check Shows 45 Players Traded

30 Figured in Deals of American League, 15 in National.

Rookies Reach Majors as Many Veterans Slip to Minors.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (AP).—As the hum and the roar of the baseball mart died down and the club owners scattered back to their ball parks, a recheck today disclosed that 45 major league players had been shuffled about to new scenery in the wild trading and selling spree since the close of the 1933 season.

Topped by the important five-star deal of Connie Mack, the American League clubs, once noted for their reluctance to swap players among each other, gained a two-to-one edge over their National League rivals in the big exchange. A total of 30 players were shifted by the American League clubs to 15 by the National League teams.

Many Rookies Added.

Promising rookies broke into both major leagues in large numbers, forcing some of the old stars of the big show back to the minors.

American League.

New York—Obtained Grantham and Pitcher Joe Bowman from Portlan; traded away Pitcher Spencer.

Boston—Reported to have closed deal for Outfielder Chick Hafey, of Cincinnati, in cash transaction.

Brooklyn—Obtained Pitcher Phil Sage from Seattle and Pitcher Bob Edwards from Albany.

Primo Meets Loughran Feb. 22

$30,000 Arena at Miami Will Be Rebuilt for Title Battle.

Italian Off for Home, But Plans to Return Next Month.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (AP).—Primo Carnera and Tommy Loughran have been matched to fight in Miami February 22 for the heavyweight championship, first title bout in that class in Florida since Jim Corbett knocked out Charlie Mitchell at Jacksonville 39 years ago.

Loughran has agreed to the bout and today Carnera roared approval of Madison Square Garden's arrangement before he sailed back for Italy after a stay of less than two days, spent chiefly in bankruptcy court. All that is needed now is the approval of Louis Soresi, comanager of the champion, in Italy.

That, Carnera said, will be easy to get inasmuch as he wants the fight, and Billy Duffy, his American manager, approves.

Calls Baer Conceited.

"I want to fight everyone," the huge Italian declaimed aboard the Conte de Savoia. "I want to fight Loughran, then in June Max Baer. I lick Baer, too. He's too conceited."

Carnera said he would return in January.

The verbal agreements of both Loughran and Carnera are for the usual percentage of challenger and champion, 37½ for Primo, 12½ for Loughran. The Garden estimated it will spend approximately $30,000 reconstructing the Miami bowl, which was built for Jack Sharkey's fiasco with Phil Scott in 1930.

The Garden's first Florida venture, in 1929, was staged in Miami Beach, following the death of Tex Rickard. That first "Battle of the Palms" brought together Sharkey and Young Stribling, and netted the Garden a fine profit on a $400,000 gate.

Reports of better times in Florida, and Loughran's rehabilitation as a challenger by his defeats of Sharkey and Ray Impellittiere, led the Garden to revive the custom Rickard planned as an annual winter feature.

Primo's Second Title Defense.

Carnera's title defense, if Soresi agrees, will be his second since winning the championship from Sharkey last summer on a knockout in six rounds. It will be the first heavyweight title match staged in the winter months since Jack Dempsey's knockout of Bill Brennan in the old Garden over a decade ago.

Carnera, who outpointed Paulino Uzcudun in Rome in a title fight a few weeks ago, seemed anxious for as many bouts as possible. He barred Max Schmeling, former champion, as an opponent.

"For years he kept me waiting," Carnera said. "Then he refused to give me a chance. Now I won't give him a chance. I won't fight anyone who fights him, either."

A part of the bitterness of Carnera's feelings is due to the fact that the law courts decided recently the bond of $25,000 Schmeling put up in 1931 guaranteeing the Italian a title match is worthless.

Canzoneri Outpoints Locatelli in New York

New York, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—Tony Canzoneri moved a peg closer toward a return bout with Barney Ross for the lightweight championship of the world tonight by outpointing Cleto Locatelli, of Italy, in a 10-round joust in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Some 10,000 customers watched the fight, which, for five rounds, was the dullest thing seen in these parts since the Messrs. Jack Renault and Pierre Charles staged their immortal Blue Danube number here several years ago. But beginning with the sixth—and, incidentally, the boys in the lobby were betting even money the European champion wouldn't last any longer than that—Tony and Cleto went to work and made a fight of it.

Catholic Five Wins 3d in Row, 24-21

Goals by McVean, White Defeat St. Joseph's in Final Minute.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 15 (Spl.).—Two spectacular field goals, within the last minute of action, earned for Coach Cotton's Catholic University courtmen a 24-21 victory over St. Joseph's College on the Palais Royal floor here tonight as the Washington collegians made it three straight for the short basket ball season.

Facing a 1-point deficit with the score 21-20 against them as the final minute dawned, Capt. Eddie White and his Cardinals staged a whirlwind finish to land the verdict. Bob McVean, a reserve, caged the first goal that put the Cottonmen out in front, 22-21, and then White, a Philadelphian, who starred at Catholic High here, furnished a goal for good measure.

In their showing tonight, Catholic U. proved that its 33-31 victory over Duke's Southern champions on Thursday extracted quite a bit of their stamina and they'll have tough sailing when they meet the LaSalle College passers here tomorrow night.

Foul Shooting Decisive.

With each combination scoring seven goals from the floor, it was better foul shooting that earned the margin of victory for the Capital collegians. Catholic U., which gained a 14-8 half-time lead and wasn't able to score from the floor for nineteen minutes of the second half, tallied ten fouls out of fourteen chances.

Starting with a rush, the Washington collegians outplayed St. Joseph's during the first 20 minutes of action, rolling up a collection of six points against one in the first half of the session. Then they were able to match the drives of the Hawks and maintain their advantage at half time.

In the second half, St. Joseph's played better basket ball and appeared to have the decision sewed up until that final splurge when McVean and White collected the twin pointers.

Bernie Lieb, center for Catholic U., and Joe Morrow, St. Joseph's forward, each made seven points to share the scoring laurels. Capt. White was the only Cardinal able to pick up more than a single field goal, while Morrow had three for the Hawks.

Kipke Assists Columbia in Practice

Tells Little's Team What He Knows Regarding Stanford's Style.

Kipke dropped in at the armory to lend Lou Little, Columbia mentor, a hand at analyzing the Stanford style of attack for a team to use against the Lion Varsity in practice and to help figure out a defense as well. The Columbia coaches have very little first-hand information about the Stanford offense and the Michigan coach was able to add what "dope" his scouts had gleaned while watching Northwestern play the Cardinals.

A couple of changes were made in the Columbia line-up in the stiff workout. Migliore replaced Jackel at one tackle post while Richavich continued at the other. Newt Wilder played center through the entire drill instead of alternating with Ciampa.

Practically the entire drill was devoted to defense. Following the usual blocking drill and line scrimmage at the start, the first team lined up against the "Stanford" combination for a long scrimmage. Then the second team tried the same thing while the regulars went into a huddle to determine for itself how the defense was shaping up and to lay plans for defensive tactics.

The regulars came back again and tried out their theories in a half-hour dummy scrimmage, which found the coaches using frequent passes.

The itinerary for the squad on its return from California was announced today. Leaving Los Angeles the evening of January 3, the players will halt at Denver the next day for a luncheon given by the Denver alumni. An overnight stop at Chicago is scheduled for January 6 and another alumni group will welcome the players at a dinner. The team is to reach New York the morning of January 8.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

CLARK C. GRIFFITH, of the Griffith Stadium Griffiths, who was in the market for a pitcher at the Chicago trading sessions and made good his escape with only an outfielder in tow, is still on the trail of an addition to his mound staff.

Manager Joe Cronin remained in Chicago to talk trade before returning to his home on the Coast, and the addition of a pitcher to the Nats' staff is expected over the week-end. Griffith, who was telling the world a few weeks ago that he was willing to stand pat on his 1933 line-up, now is not so willing and admits it.

The rub, as it is known in some of our best circles, is that the Nats have little, if anything to offer in trade. With Goslin departed to the Tigers, Washington's trading material is exhausted as far as quality is concerned. The quantity comprises Moe Berg, Johnny Kerr, Cliff Bolton and two rookie pitchers.

Griffith's Troubles.

Griffith's search for a pitcher at Chicago and his return with an outfielder recalls his famous hunt for a right-handed hitting outfielder. The acquisition of an outfielder who hits from the right side of the plate was an obsession with Griffith through the managerial regimes of both Bucky Harris and Walter Johnson, covering eight years.

Griffith even tried his luck at the draft meetings, but the only thing he could pull out of the baseball grab bag was an outfielder who hit from the port side.

Finally, after eight years of fruitless search for the particular species of outfielder, Griffith gained a right-handed hitter from the Browns in the person of Fred Schulte. The rub in that instance was the fact that he had to give up another right-handed outfielder, Carl Reynolds, to get Schulte.

Loses Oratorical Battle.

Griffith came back from his oratorical battles at Chicago with none of his three-fold plans fulfilled. He campaigned against what he called the three evils of baseball—radio, synthetic double-headers and the chain store system.

Aligned with Griffith against radio broadcasting and the synthetic twin bills were the owners of all Eastern big league teams, except the Braves. But in executive sessions, Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, and Judge Fuchs, owner of the Braves, squawked so long and so loudly that Griffith's gang failed to carry their points.

Especially vehement was Griffith against the synthetic double-headers scheduled by owners who hope to catch additional dollars on Sunday dates by moving up regularly scheduled games during the week. "They are ruining week-day baseball," says Griffith. "Fans are passing up the week-day games for the week-end double-headers. Baseball was meant to be played every day in the week."

Terps' 78-Yard Scoring Pass in Duke Game Was Longest in Nation Past Season

Heroic Grid Feats of '33 Recorded

Howell, of Alabama, Is Credited With Punt of 80 Yards.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (AP).—Parke H. Davis, nationally recognized football historian, announced today with his annual compilation of outstanding plays of the season and for the second straight year records a scoring play which carried more than the length of the field.

Charles Caspar, star half back of the Texas Christian Horned Frogs, took the honors with a 105-yard run-back of a kick-off against Texas University. Last year Robert Gibb, of Nebraska Wesleyan, ran 107-yards on the same kind of a play against Oklahoma City.

Two of the Rose Bowl rivals, Newt Wilder, Columbia center, and Bill Corbus, Stanford's All-American guard, break into the records among those who kicked three field goals during the season.

Dick Nelson ad Willis Benner put Maryland in the list of record achievements in the game against Duke, when Nelson threw a pass to Benner that accounted for 78 yards and a touchdown, the longest scoring pass of the year. Both Nelson and Benner formerly starred with the McKinley Tech High School of Washington, D. C.

Most points scored—Peter Young, Bluefield, 108.

4 Court Officials For School Series

Mitchell Duo, Enright and Kail to Share Duties.

At a meeting of the Interhigh School Athletic Association held at Eastern High School yesterday, it was decided that four officials will handle the association's basket ball games this year, instead of two as in the past. The officials selected to handle the games this year are Joe Mitchell, Orrell Mitchell, Ben Kail and Morris Enright.

Under the new arrangement, only two officials will cover the two games scheduled each playing day, but they will divide playing dates with the other duo of arbiters.

The selection of Walter Haight as official scorer for the association was also approved at the meeting and the opening date for the series was set for January 9.

Western Beaten, 35-24, By Baltimore City Five

Western High School took a thumping at the hands of Baltimore City College yesterday on the Western court, 35-24. Batalion, raven-haired center for the Baltimore team, was the outstanding star, with three field goals and two fouls. Corcoran and Frank featured for the Western quintet. The game at the half was 22-15 in favor of the visitors.

Overconfident Blues Bow, 16 to 15

OVERCONFIDENCE, the sports boogyman, joined hands with an aggressive Maryland State Normal five to drag Gallaudet down to its first defeat of the season last night at Kendall Green. The score was 16-15.

Loser by an overwhelming count to Catholic U. Tuesday night, Normal didn't figure to stop the Blues, but Gallaudet regarded the enemy too lightly, and found itself woefully outclassed in the first half which ended with Maryland leading, 10-3.

Wheeler Locates Basket.

Bill Wheeler, Normal's steady center, led the victory parade, locating the bucket for three field goals and five fouls, 11 points. Gallaudet outscored its rival from the field, 6-4, but Maryland had an 8-3 advantage in foul-tossing.

With Burdette and Brown showing the way, the Blues in the second stanza, outplayed Normal all the way But with only a minute left to play, and leading by one point, the visitors sucessfully "froze" the ball to win the verdict.

Portner's Arena Dark During Yule Holiday

Because of the Christmas holiday, Portner's Arena will remain dark Tuesday, December 26, but will reopen Tuesday, January 2, with Marty Gallagher and Les Kennedy in the feature bout.

Central Meets G.W. Frosh in Opener

CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL'S basket ball team will open its 1933-34 campaign tonight, meeting the strong George Washington freshman team in the Little Colonial gym. The tap-off is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

The Mount Pleasant five is the last of the local public high units to start play, and much interest is aroused in its prospects for the interhigh league crown.

The team has suffered the loss of sterling court stars in the personages of Bill Burke, Ollie Tipton, Jack Moulton and Carroll Shore, but the material on hand is such that the team has visions of the championship.

Face Old Team Mate.

Among the list of available courtmen for this season's grind are Buddy Nau, Mario Gregario, Bill Bryant, Bits Keyser, Rube Hayman, Nick Pistolas and Len De Lisio.

The Central quintet tonight will be up against one old team mate in Bill Burke, and three foes of former years in Everett Russell, former Tech ace, and Walt Johnson and Dick Nichols, stars of Bethesda-Chevy Chase a year ago, who are now gracing the collegians' line-up.

One other high school tilt is slated for tonight. Alexandria entertains Oakton High School on the Twins' Court.

Preps Seek Grid Game.

Md. Veterans Open With Michigan

Old Liners for Monday's Game; Big Ten Team Has Good Record.

MARYLAND tapers off two weeks of intensive training this afternoon with a stiff scrimmage against the Freshmen as its opening game of the season with Michigan heaves in view. The Wolverines invade College Park Monday night.

A veteran quintet will bear the Old Line colors into battle. Rufus Vincent, Bucky Buscher, "Spider" Chase, George Weber, and Bob Snyder, seasoned campaigners, probably will start. Roy Yowell, Al Rabbitt, and Bernie Buscher comprise Maryland's reserve strength.

Michigan plays Temple at Philadelphia tonight, then resumes its trek to Washington. It will be Michigan's first game below the Mason-Dixon line.

Invaders' Record Good.

Finishing in a tie with Iowa for third place in the Big Ten last season, holding its opponents to 296 points for the year, an exceptionally good record in Midwest basket ball, the Wolverines seem headed for an even higher ranking this season.

Gone are Ed Garner, who scored 104 points, and Bill Eveland, who tallied 80, but with a wealth of material to draw from, their loss will not be a death blow to the team's hopes. Capt. Fred Petoskey, guard; Fred Allen, center, and George Ford, forward, are the mainstays of the quintet.

Maryland will have an advantage in height, although the Westerners are considerably heavier than the Terps, and this, together with the fact that it will be playing before a home-town crowd, assures Maryland of at least an even chance of winning.

The court game will be followed by a match between Maryland and the University of Richmond boxing teams. It will be the opening skirmish for both squads.

2 Extra Period Game Won by St. John's

McHugh, Substitute, Is Hero as Foul Finally Beats St. Joe, 36-35.

IN a nip and tuck battle that lasted through two extra periods, St. John's successfully repelled the invading Mt. St. Joseph's quintet last night, winning, 36-35, in a thrill-packed game played before 500 fans in the Cadets' gym. It was the victors' second triumph of the young season.

Going into the second half on the short end of a 14-12 count, and with its ace, George Koppenick, reposing on the bench because of too many fouls, St. John's appeared to have little more than an outisde chance of winning the ball game. But the "Little Cadets" came back fighting to take the decision.

McHugh in Star Role.

Vincent McHugh, substituting for Koppenick, was the hero of the fray. Playing in his first high school game, the slim youngster pocketed the goal that deadlocked the score at 29-29. Again in the first overtime period he came through with the two points that tied up the issue at 31-31.

Counselman sank his fourth double-decker of the evening, McHugh netted his fifth, and Horn dropped one in for Mt. St. Joseph's as the teams battled into the last 15 seconds of play, running neck and neck. The Baltimoreans called for time out, and were assessed a free toss for taking too many rest periods. Joe Henley made good on the try, giving the Cadets their one-point margin of victory.

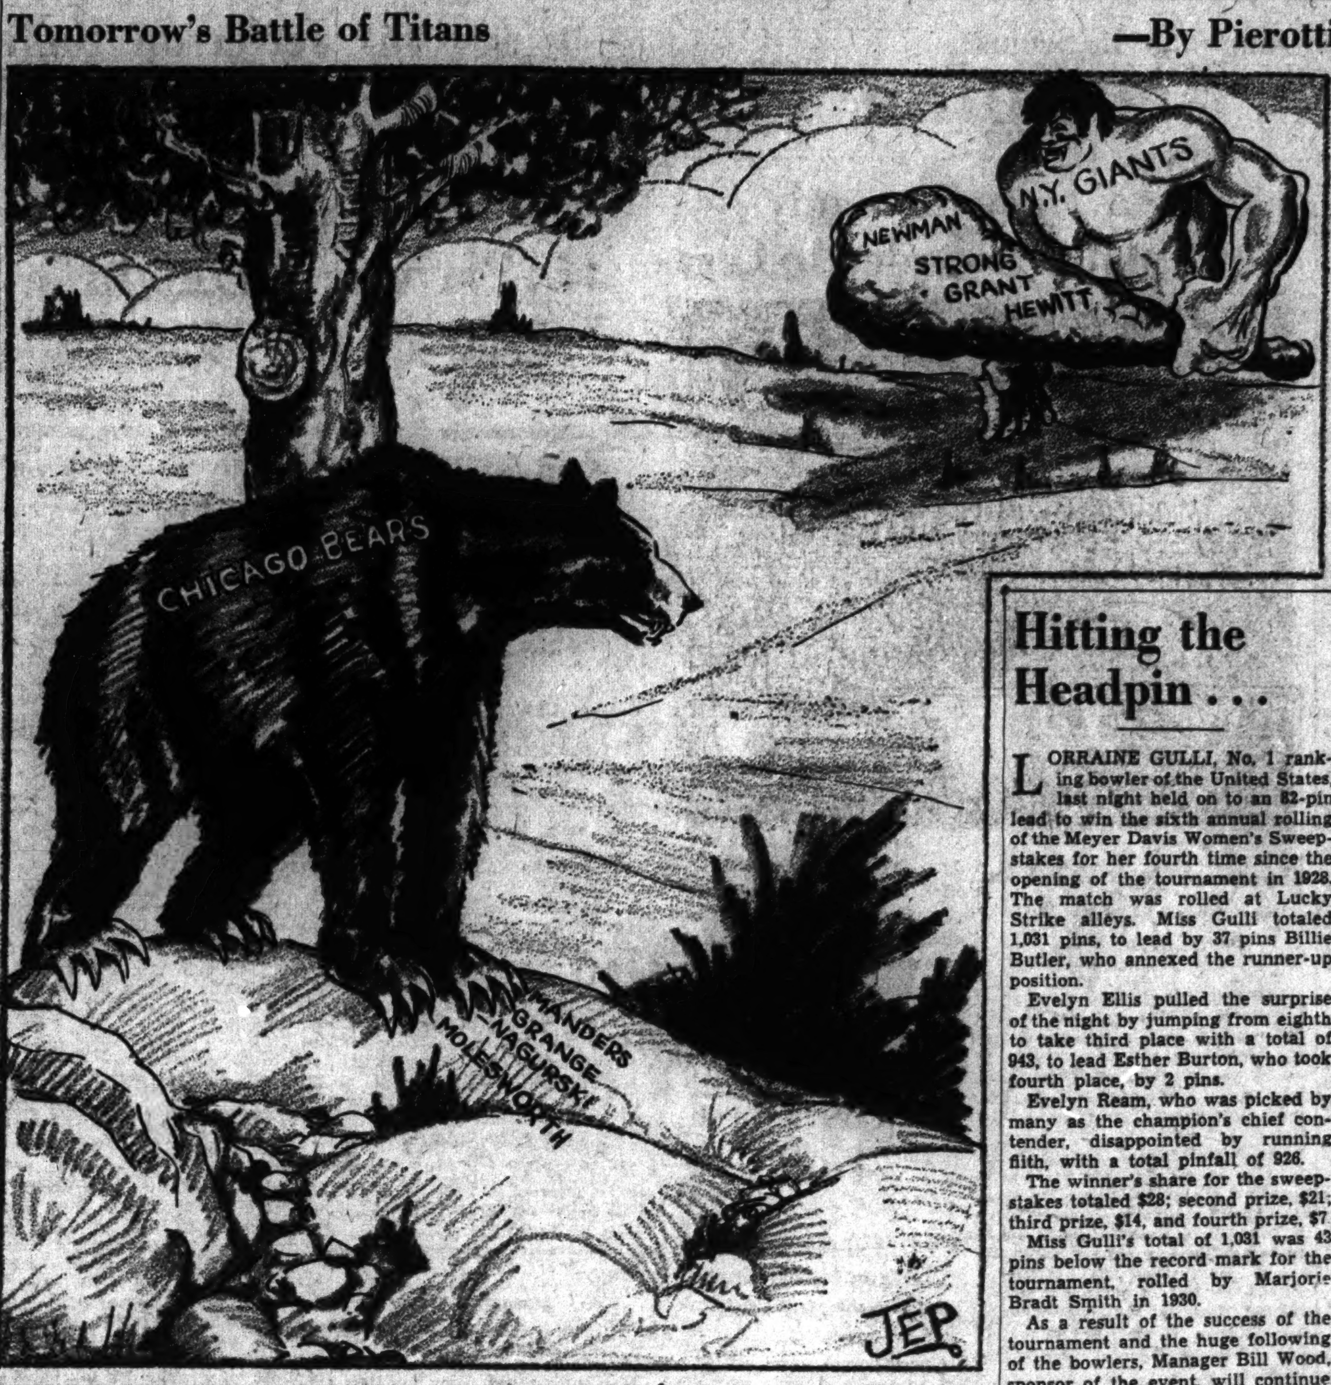
Tomorrow's Battle of Titans —By Pierotti



High-Priced Managing

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (Spl.).—The heavyweight champion of the world, the man that Joe Humphries calls Prime-o Cannerio, skinned in and out of our town very quickly. He is aboard the Conte di Savoia at this writing, the same boat that brought him over here for his brief visit of yesterday and I imagine even at this moment he is patting his pockets, feeling for his watch and examining his back teeth to see if the gold is still there.

Da Preem has had some very curious experiences in our country with money printed apparently with vanishing ink. Carnera made two or three fortunes in this country, but never seemed to be able to get any of it. He testified that he got $360 out of his championship fight with Jack Sharkey. If this is true, one can understand why Carnera went home on the same boat. He probably had an idea the boys might be around to get the $360 away from him. They got all the rest.

The vanishing dollar has been a source of great pain to the big Italian. I think he must have been afraid that if he stayed here very long the boys would take his watch, his signet ring, his clothes and perhaps even his title away from him.

I am afraid that before he is done Signor Carnera will find the heavyweight championship a considerable liability. If he defends it in this country the boys take all the money and if he defends it in Italy Mussolini gives him only a medal. Was ever a champion so bedeviled? There is also the embarrassing factor that he must at all times observe the utmost care in selecting opponents if he is to keep the title long enough to make anything out of it.

By remaining in Italy he can keep away from any possible chance of assault being committed upon his person by some of our rough young men. He is also some place where Will Duffy and Charley Friedman and Abe Attell and Owen Madden and the rest of the advisory board can not get at him. Those are the boys who made Da Preem what he is today. The only trouble seems to be that they charged him a rather stiff fee for becoming champion.

Of course it is barely possible that Carnera is only fooling when he says that he got $360 for the Sharkey fight, because he was answering questions in a bankruptcy proceeding. When you are being questioned in bankruptcy you do not say, "Why, they paid me a million dollars for that fight. Wanna come home and see my diamonds?" And then it is also possible that they paid Carnera exactly what he was worth in that fight, the same being $360 as quoted. And then there is the third possibility, namely, that before he left the country the boys rendered him an itemized bill for services rendered.

As every one knows and as it is a matter of public record, these services were considerable and were such as Primo could not have performed for himself. Everything that he has achieved he owes to the young and old men who handled him and who were always prepared and could be relied upon to step into the breach.

There was the time in California when the coast representatives made a brilliant emergency arrangement whereby pepper or some other blinding substance was rubbed into the eyes of a frisky African named Bombo Chevalier between rounds as he was preparing to smack Carnera down. There was another time in Philadelphia when another Senegambian named Ace Clark was amusing himself by punching Da Preem around and a hasty ringside meeting was organized to point out to him the error of such unbecoming conduct. Then there was the instance of another fractious Ethiopian in Newark, N. J., who had to be shown articles known along certain parts of Broadway as "The Convincer, or the Old Equalizer."

Then, too, there were all the business arrangements that had to be made with Primo's early exhibitions. Opponents with presence of mind, such as Big Boy Peterson, who appeared against Carnera in Madison Square Garden, had to be selected. It was Peterson who discovered that Carnera was having a terrible time getting off his own feet so that he could move over and hit him.

When Primo finally got going and aimed a couple of punches at him it became apparent to Peterson that Carnera was going to be able to strike him with sufficient violence to enable him to collapse decently and with a semblance of verity, so with great presence of mind Peterson hit himself a resounding whack on the jaw with his right hand and knocked himself out.

All of these are valuable services and not to be procured for nothing. Without them, Da Preem would still be a circus freak and not the heavyweight champion of the world. The boys can not be blamed if they feel that Primo still owes them a little bill. And Primo can not be blamed if he kept looking behind him nervously the few hours that he was on American soil this trip and went home to the safety of Fascist rule. At least Mussolini gives him a medal when he fights.

Chicago Bears Face Giants For Title

Tomorrow's Encounter in New York Seen as Toss-Up.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (Spl.).—The Chicago Bears will meet the New York Giants in the play-off for the world's professional football championship Sunday afternoon in Yankee Stadium.

The Bears, champions of the Western division of the National Professional League, clinched the right to represent its section by trouncing the Green Bay Packers last Sunday in Chicago, 7-6. The team, coached by George Halas and boasting such outstanding performers as Red Grange, former Illinois star; Bronko Nagurski and Dick Manders, plunging full back twins who formerly starred for Minnesota, and Carlton Monesworth, hard-running back and spearhead of the club, has won 10 games, lost 2 and tied 1.

Won Over Eagles.

The New York Giants earned the right to clash in the championship battle by subduing the Philadelphia Eagles last Sunday, 20 to 14. The team is owned and operated by Tim Mara, nationally known sportsman, and has as its better known stars Harry Newman, the former Michigan quarter back, and Ken Strong, ace New York University satellite of the past. The Gotham eleven shows a record of 11 wins and 3 loses in 14 starts.

The game takes on the aspect of a toss-up, due to the trick weather condition at this time of the year On a dry field the Bears would be the heavy choice.

A full house is anticipated. Interest in the professional game during the past year has grown with leaps and bounds. Concluding the regular season schedule last Sunday, attendance figures show an increase of 40 per cent over last year. At the same time, college gates showed an increase of 14 per cent.

Alexandria Routed By Eastern, 44 to 10

Nolan, With 10 Points, Is Leading Scorer.

Alexandria, Va., Dec. 15 (Spl.).—Eastern High School, of Washington, defeated Alexandria High tonight in the Alexandria Armory, 44 to 10. Tommy Nolan, forward and captain of the invading five, rang up five field goals, to lead the scoring.

The visitors' tight defense held the Twins to 3 points in the first half, while Nolan and his mates were garnering 32 points. It was the first game of the season for Alexandria.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

LORRAINE GULLI, No. 1 ranking bowler of the United States, last night held on to an 82-pin lead to win the sixth annual rolling of the Meyer Davis Women's Sweepstakes for her fourth time since the opening of the tournament in 1928. The match was rolled at Lucky Strike alleys. Miss Gulli totaled 1,031 pins, to lead by 37 pins Billie Butler, who annexed the runner-up position.

Evelyn Ellis pulled the surprise of the night by jumping from eighth to take third place with a total of 943, to lead Esther Burton, who took fourth place, by 2 pins.

Evelyn Ream, who was picked by many as the champion's chief contender, disappointed by running fifth, with a total pinfall of 926.

The winner's share for the sweepstakes totaled $28; second prize, $21; third prize, $14, and fourth prize, $7

Miss Gulli's total of 1,031 was 43 pins below the record mark for the tournament, rolled by Marjorie Bradt Smith in 1930.

As a result of the success of the tournament and the huge following of the bowlers, Manager Bill Wood, sponsor of the event, will continue to run the sweepstakes, which is a sister event to the Howard Cambpell Sweepstakes and dedicated to Meyer Davis. A crowd of approximately 300 witnessed the event. Scores:

One of the most hotly contested matches of the season was the battle for second place in the National Capital League at the Lucky Strike Alleys last night between "Whip" Litchfield's Book of Washington team and Hokie Smith's King Pin crew. The match, a gruelling affair, was taken by King Pin with two victories against one defeat. The victims, rolling their tenth straight set over 600 and totaling a 1,915 set, 20 pins more than their rivals, rolled a 673 in the second game only to lose when King Pin chucked in a 681 game, the highest for the night.

Al Woods and Bill Miller, youthful King Pin stars, turned in a 417 and 416 set, respectively, the latter rolling a 167 game. Perce Wolfe, with 419 and "Whip" Litchfield's 408 set was high for Book of Washington.

The leading Silver Spring Skating Rink team increased its lead by taking all three from Fountain Hams. The Skaters games were all over 600 for a 1,845 set.

In the other matches, Lucky Strike took the odd game from Judd & Detweiler, and Bob Shanklin turned in a 389 set in Star Service Station's 2-to-1 victory over Peoples Life Insurance.

Kenny Thorpe, a veteran of many star matches and one of the most popular men among the bowlers, rolled a 373 set for the Life Insurance team.

Aided by O'Dea's 118-game and 317 set, the Construction team of the Quartermaster Ladies League, at the Columbia drives, carried away team honors with a 482 game and 1,331 set.

Kennedy (Towers) pounded the maples for a 145-game and 333 set to lead the list of individual feats in the Quartermaster Men's League at Columbia. Tower's 555 game and Design's 1,553 set were the best team efforts.

Old records went into oblivion and the establishing of new marks featured the rolling of the District Government League at the Arcadia alleys last night. Highway No. 2 furnished all the fireworks in sweeping its match with the Water Department team. Aided by Charlie Bernhardt's high individual set record of 404, the team rolled a 642 game and 1,786 set for new high scores. Joe Marcellino, of the record-breaking aggregation, had a 152 game.

Joe Freschi helped the D. C. Butchers to maintain their lead at the top of the Building Contractors League at the Arcadia runways, rolling a 134 game. Jack Gray (Minte Paint) annexed high individual set with 352. D. C. Butchers and Minte Paint shared team laurels with a 588 game and 1,690 set, respectively.

Columbia took the odd game from Beaver Dam in the Golf League at the Lucky Strike drives, aided by a 1,694 set. Billie La Bille (Beaver Dam) annexed individual honors with a 142 game and 380 set. His team rolled a game of 609, high for the night. DeSibour's 135 game and 344 set featured Chevy Chase's odd-game victory over Congressional.

Baney (Cardinals) and Mooers (Eagles) shared the honors in the Federal Trade Commission League at Arcadia, turning in a 122 game and 321 set, respectively.

Valuation led the rolling in the Interstate Commerce Commission League at the Arcadia alleys, scattering the maples for a 587 game and 1,602 set for the best team scores. Detterer (Mails & Files), with a 138 game, and Feldman (Statistics) having a 355 set, were the individual stars.

A. U. Five Tries New System This Year

All of Last Season's First Team Lost, But Coach Is Optimistic.

A NEW system and a new team is the combination that Coach Walter H. Young is depending on to put American University's colors over the top in basket ball this winter. The Eagles open their season Monday night at 8:15 o'clock when the Maryland State Normal comes to Washington for the third time in a week.

Graduation wrecked American's quintet, removing high scoring Oscar Sells and the clever Lionel Dick from the roster along with the rest. They are certain to be missed this season, but the enthusiasm and determination of the current squad prevent Young from waxing pessimistic. He views the season through rose-colored glasses.

Spirited Fight For Posts.

The men who will start against Normal are Howard Reinard and Ed Porter, forwards; Harold Sampson, center; Stan Dove and Mel Wheatley, guards. The line-up is tentative only, and the spirited bidding for posts may bring about a revision before game time. Two Washington boys, Bob McRae and Marty Allwine, are on the squad and likely will see much service.

American trounced Normal, 32-16 last season, but the Teachers are weaker this year and Eagle supporters do not anticipate a hard game. Catholic U. walloped Normal and Galludet turned in a good performance against it last night.

Pixlee Goes West, Seeking '34 Games

California Or Stanford Tilt Believed Objective.

Coach Jim Pixlee, of George Washington University, departed last night on a schedule-making trip that is expected to carry him to the West Coast in search of games for the Colonial team of 1934.

Pixlee's leave-taking on the eve of the annual G. W. football banquet tonight is regarded as of deep significance, inasmuch as he was to officiate at the fete.

A game with either Stanford or the University of California is believed to be the prime motive of Pixlee's junket.

E. W. (Chip) Roberts, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, a former Georgia Tech star, will be principal speaker at the football dinner to be held at the Broadmoor. Both alumni and the public are invited.

Mercury, Dixie Fives Win in Center League

Led by "Curly" Taylor, who scored 19 points, enough to win, Mercury handed St. Joseph's its worst trimming of the season last night, 64-14, in Class A, Southeast Community Center Basket Ball League, in Hine Junior High School.

In a Class B game, the Dixie Five surprised the league-leading Christ Church team by winning, 25 to 15. Julian and Harry Graham put the game on ice in the last few minutes of play.

Teams in the league are requested to read this paper on Sunday in order to get the corrected schedule for the coming week.

Takoma-S. S. Passers Bow to Friends, 23-14

Friend School opened up its basket-ball season yesterday afternoon by trouncing Takoma-Silver Spring High School on the Springer floor, 23 to 14. Busby, sterling forward of the Preppers, was the outstanding star of the battle, hooping four field goals and two free throws for 10 points. The game at the half was 16 to 6 in favor of the Friends' five.

Chatterfol Vigorously Ridden in Front-Running Victory at Charles Town

Gelding Wins As Catrone Shines

Jockey Comes Back to Ride Dull Race on Wahoo in Final.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent)

CHARLES TOWN, W. V., Dec. 15.—Jockey F. Catrone, who yesterday was accused of napping when Bongo was beaten by Slipper King in the final strides, rode a million-dollar race to get Chatterfol home for Trainer Willie Booth in today's outstanding race. However, I will have to interrupt the story of his stirring victory on Chatterfol to report that he didn't ride ten cents worth on Wahoo in the last race.

Chatterfol, running in the colors of the Argosy Stable, finished a good length and a half ahead of C. C. Smithson's Miss Morocco, with Mrs. A. M. Hall's Kingbird third in the field of eight, competing over the mile and a sixteenth course.

Every Ounce of Speed.

Catrone was busy as a traffic cop at the barrier. He kept close tab on the line-up and seemed to anticipate when Starter Cassidy would let the field get away. He broke Chatterfol winging and rode like a demon to bank the first turn in front of the field. Once in the lead, Catrone appeared to have two sets of arms and legs. He was all action as he got every ounce of speed out of his charge.

There was no catching the front-running Chatterfol and the front-riding Catrone. Miss Morocco made a few threatening jestures, but the busy Catrone and the equally busy Chatterfol stayed in front of the field. The Argosy Stable gelding was well supported and 't was a popular victory.

In distinct contrast to his ride on Chatterfol, Catrone appeared to be a "Lazy Bones" on Wahoo. This horse had two straight victories to his credit and was installed the favorite.

Wahoo broke slowly and Catrone rode sluggishly. He trailed the field passing the stands the first time and he had one horse beat at the finish.

It is just possible that Catrone rode so vigorously in the feature race that he was all tired out for the seventh.

The program, again studded by upsets, drew the best crowd of the week A warm sun shone and the mountains glistened behind the back stretch.

Niggertoe Gets Home.

Niggertoe, a son of Peanuts, made it two victories in a row in the first race, taking the lead behind the rock pile in the 5-furlong opening sprint to top the remainder of the distance. Conflagration, one of the chief chasers, was second and Manager Bill was third. The last named had a rough trip.

Free, representative of P. S. P. Randolph, won the second race at 6½ furlongs, defeating Teenie R by a head in a thrilling stretch drive. Noras' Grace, heavily played, was third. Teenie R appeared in the act of stealing the race for most of the route, drawing out to a 5-length advantage nearing the swing for the stretch. However, Free, always second, moved up on the tiring pacemaker in the stretch to win going away by a head. Free was well bet and paid $7.60.

An easy victory for Dornoch and a mishap in which both horses and riders escaped injury, marked the third race. Dornoch bounded out in front at the break, and was never threatened. Sage was pulling up through the final sixteenth and won by five lengths from Renaissance. Jane Ellen was third. Suspicious lost Jockey Knapp and War Saint fell with Jockey Watters. The accident occurred behind the rock pile and out of sight of both customers and press. Both boys walked back to the jockeys' room. The riderless horses made three trips around the course before they tired and were caught by stablemen. Dornoch was a startling $14 mutuel.

Fair Billy in Victory.

Fair Billy, the property of W. I. Newmarch, provided a big shock in the fourth race when he awoke to score a smashing victory over a field of 10 at a mile and one-sixteenth. He was two lengths in front of Dunair and three ahead of Hosain. Fair Billy stayed close to the pace until the final drive. Knapp, tossed in the previous race, rode the winner, which paid $47.20.

On the United States Government pay roll is the name of Jamalul Kiram II, the Sultan of Sulu. He is the modern ruler of the Sulu Archipelago, between the Phillippine Islands and British North Borneo—ruler, that is, so far as religious leadership among the Mohammedans within his sultanate is concerned. Nevertheless, he gets paid for it, $3,000 a year by the U. S., and he is accorded all the ceremony and respect due a Sultan. Strange as it seems, Jamalul Kiram is head of a dynasty that is older by 150 years than the Government of the United States. His throne dates back to the early fourteenth century.

Michigan's great team of 1901 played an entire 11-game schedule without being scored upon. In all they piled up a total of 550 points for a 50-point average that year against such teams as Indiana, Northwestern, Ohio State, Chicago, Iowa, and Stanford. The team was the first of five great teams that took the field from 1901 to 1905. During these five years Michigan played 55 games, scoring a total of 2821 points against 40 points for their opponents.

In these 55 games Michigan suffered one defeat, and that by a safety. They were tied just once, and won the rest with an average score—including the tie and defeat—of a little more than 50 points. Their opponents averaged less than one point per game.

Jefferson Rain Fails to Halt Bosom Pal

Dixiana Stable's Gelding Leads All Way and Returns $5.60.

JEFFERSON PARK, Dec. 15 (AP). Rain, for which the Crescent City is noted, made its first appearance during a racing program since the meeting began here today, beginning just prior to the running of the fourth race. The Dixiana Stable's gelding, Bosom Pal, paid no attention to the elements, and topped his field for the entire six furlongs, to register a driving victory. Just a head away came A. P. Canale's poorly ridden Busy Spain, to save the place by a length from J. J. Greely, jr.'s Night Brigade.

Eddie Arcaro, who rode a double yesterday, turned the trick again, giving Bosom Pal a perfect ride. This combination was a close second choice to Busy Spain, returning $5.60 for $2. The time was 1:14-4-5.

Break Is Delayed.

Night Brigade and White Man delayed the break by their bad post antics. The start, however, was good, and Bosom Pal jumped to the front in a few strides.

Arcaro nursed his mount along with fine judgment, while Night Brigade and Busy Spain followed, right at the pacemaker's side. Night Brigade faltered in the final drive as Bosom Pal held on with fine courage, Arcaro outriding Hanka on Busy Spain. Yaupon lost his stirrup irons early, and was pulled up.

Emerson Team Routs G. U. Prep Five, 51-25

With Ollie Tipton leading the assault with eight field goals and two fouls, the Emerson Institute five defeated Georgetown Prep yesterday afternoon on the Boys' Club floor, 51-25. Waverly Wheeler, with 15 points, and Knocky Thomas, with 10, were other stars in the Emerson barrage.

Capt. Maury Nee was the outstanding performer for the losers, scoring three field goals and a trio of fouls. It was the first defeat suffered by the Garrett Park quintet in four starts.

At the Post . . .

Dear Fred: Charles Town Race Track, Dec. 15.

This meeting will be extended to New Year's Day if weather allows, General Manager Boyle said today . . . it is rumored that all purses will be cut to $300, starting Monday . . . the entry of Chlo Boy will be refused for the remainder of the meeting . . . because of bad post actions . . . this horse was likewise dealt with at Bowie . . . and there are at least five worse barrier actors here . . . Jockey Munoz was given the meeting for rough riding today . . . Jockey Prain, who fell from Bye and Bye, is recuperating . . . expects to ride Monday . . . H. G. Bedwell, once the leading trainer, saddled his first winner of the meeting today . . . Fair Billy . . . and Owner W. I. Newmarch arrived in time to see the race . . . Uppish broke down in the fourth heat . . . and Jockey Thurber walked back to the steward's stand . . . something always happens to the favorite . . . see you tomorow.

BILL.

First race—Eyota is gifted with much early speed and should make full use of the No. 1 post position. Fowler will ride and I would not be surprised if he made every pole a winning one. The other contenders are on the "also eligible" list. Belle Fille set a track record mark last out and Mobile has been far too consistent to ignore.

Second race—Peedeeque seems ideally suited by conditions in this race. However, the filly is not a lock. Had a little hoof trouble the other day after running on the hard track. However, the figures place her on top. Triolet has been an unlucky racer. Clear sailing would find this one close at the finish. Her Gold to show.

Third race—The farther they go the better Mainsheet likes it. This plater has run some creditable races this fall and appears to be the best bet of the day. Redivivus might find the mile and a half a suitable route. Dark Star for the show end.

Fourth race—Luck In is something of the 2-year-old champion hereabouts. Appears capable of giving weight to these. Chrysmute would prefer a longer route but can be dangerous. Troyer for the minor award.

Fifth race—Phantom Legion won two in a row here. Finds himself in a good field but appears to have the foot necessary to get home on the front end. Gloritone will appreciate the small field. Ran a much improved race last out and is dangerous. Kindacorn has a world of finishing power. May pick them up in the stretch.

Seventh race—Thermopylae is as fit as hands can make him and appears nicely placed in this mile and a half. Recent race was good. Angry Lass and Kaffa to complete the money picture.

Kitchen Good Passer.

Walter Kitchen, quarter back on the freshman football team at Wake Forest College, was successful in 18 of the 24 passes he attempted in a game wtih Duke University frosh.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NIGGERTOE, $9.00, $4.60, $3.40; CONFLAGRATION, $7.80, $3.80; MANAGER BILL, $3.80.

NIGGERTOE, away forwardly and showing good speed, raced TRYWHITT into submission in the first eighth mile to assume command, but had to be hard ridden to outstay CONFLAGRATION The latter, always a forward factor, made a bold bid when straightened out in the stretch and was wearing the winner down. MANAGER BILL, slow to find his speed, made up considerable ground and closed fast. SECULAR finished well, but was never a serious threat. TRYWHITT showed brief speed. MERRIE MARIE broke slowly and could never get up. MINT MISSION was squeezed back right after the break and did not recover. JANE PORTER was eased up for the last half mile when her bandages came loose.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:00. Off at 2:02½. Winner, P. S. Randolph's b. g. (3), by Sun Flag—Duchess Kathleen. Trained by F. White. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:16, 1:23 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FREE, $7.60, $5.60, $2.80; TEENIE R., $8.20, $3.60; NORA'S GRACE, $2.60.

FREE, rated from the early pace of TEENIE R., gradually wore the latter down in the run through the back stretch and, closing fast, just got up. TEENIE R., taken out into a long lead from the outset, saved ground all the way, but tired at the end. NORA'S GRACE, well in hand in the early stages, closed a good gap. TRIESTE, a forward factor from the start, saved ground on the inside, but could not get up. DID SHE was away slowly and closed a good gap. THE DREAM met with some trouble on the back stretch.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:23. Off at 2:27. Winner, W. G Merion's ch. g. (4), by Donnacona—Dearie. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48, 1:14 2-5, 1:21 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DORNOCH, $14.00, $7.00, $3.40; RENAISSANCE, $6.00, $3.80; JANE ELLEN, $5.80.

DORNOCH, fast to break, raced head and head with SUSPICIOUS into the first turn, where the latter lost his rider, drew out into a safe lead and was never threatened for the balance of the journey. RENAISSANCE followed the pace of the winner most closely after the fall, easily held the others safe, but was no match for the winner. JANE ELLEN raced evenly, but could never improve her position. SEMESTER had no excuses. CHLO BOY refused to break with his field. WAR SAINT fell at the first turn. The race was not truly run.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:49. Off at 2:49½. Winner, W. I. Newmarch's ch. g. (3), by Fair Gain—Speedy Girl. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:15, 1:42 3-5, 1:49 3-5.

CANTER LIGHT	106	6	8	6^h	8^h	9^2	9^2	10	Fellows	20.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR BILLY, $47.20, $13.60, $6.60; DUNAIR, $4.80, $3.40; HOSAIN, $3.00.

FAIR BILLY, restrained from the early pace, moved up courageously when called upon while leaving the back stretch, came to the outside of the leaders and was going away at the finish. DUNAIR, closest to the pace in the first part, took command when CHLOEDAIR stopped and hung on well when challenged. HOSAIN, away well, was slow to find his best speed, worked his way up gradually and closed well. NUTLET worked her way to the leaders on the inside, saving ground all the way, but was not good enough MEEK stopped, as did CHLOEDAIR.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:12. Off at 3:14½. Winner, Argosy Stable's ch. g. (3), by Chatterton—Polo Negri. Trained by W. Booth. Value to winner, $375; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:41 2-5, 1:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHATTERFOL, $6.40, $4.20, $3.00; MISS MOROCCO, $3.60, $3.00; KINGBIRD, $4.80.

CHATTERFOL, away well and racing on the inside, took a short lead from MISS MOROCCO from the outset, was rated well for the entire trip and had enough left to draw away at the finish. MISS MOROCCO raced lapped on the outside of the winner until straightened out in the stretch, where she weakened slightly and was hard ridden to hold KINGBIRD The latter was taken far back in the early stages, moved up fast on the inside when called on and finished with good courage. JUST FUN raced within easy distance of the leaders on the outside for six furlongs, but weakened. PORTDEN showed a good effort, but tired. LOUGH PORT was never prominent.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:38. Winner, R. W. Randolph's br. or blk. g. (3), by Happy Time—Irish Grace. Trained by M. Zahn. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15 2-5 1:43, 1:49 4-5.

FLAGEOLET	111	1	1	4^{nk}	$7^{1½}$	7^1	8	8	Fowler	5.00

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRACIAS, $12.60, $3.80, $2.80; BOKIE B., $3.40, $3.80; FUSCO, $8.60.

GRACIAS, rated behind the leaders until leaving the back stretch, moved up steadily when asked, came to the outside and wore BOKIE B. down in the drive. The latter displayed good early speed to set the pace, saved ground throughout, shook off JUSTA MOMENT and MONEY WILD and held on well. FUSCO, away slowly and lacking speed in the first part, moved up with a rush when called upon and closed fast. MONEY WILD raced within easy distance of the leaders, moved up threateningly in the stretch, but faltered at the end. JUSTA MOMENT showed some speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:08. Winner, J. M. Beil's ch. c. (3), by Jim Gaffney—Electric Light. Trained by H. R. Smith. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 3-5, 1:54 3-5.

BRIGHT DAY	103	9	9	9	$8^{1½}$	8^h	9	9	Merritt	32.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELECTRIC GAFF, $13.60, $6.80, $5.00; WAR BANNER, $15.00, $7.80; MAKE BELIEVE, $10.40.

ELECTRIC GAFF, hurried to the front and having good speed, withstood stiff contention all during the running and, under severe urging, outstayed WAR BANNER. Latter, going in improved fashion, responded strongly to punishment and was wearing the winner down slowly at the end. MAKE BELIEVE, outrun for the first six furlongs, circled his field and closed full of run. SISKO went well placed and had no excuses. NISIA raced well. FOOTSURE was never a factor. GLEN BURNIE could not stay. WAHOO broke slowly and raced in disgraceful fashion. His race should not be considered.

Mercs to Seek Mohawks' Grid Title

THE Mercurys will take a crack at the Mohawks' unlimited football championship tomorrow in a postseason game of great interest, to be played at Gonzaga Field. Despite the fact that the Mercs were able to nose out the Marions by only a 6-to-0 margin, while the Mohawks handed them a 25-to-7 shellacking, many believe the Hawks will emerge from this struggle shorn of their crown.

In the game against the Marions, the Mercurys had in their line-up only one outstanding player—Nig McCarver, former G. W. star, but in Sunday's tilt with the Mohawks they will be reinforced by Hardy Pearce, Zuzu Stewart and Johnny Baker, all twinkling stars of this year's George Washington team.

Other Stars on Team.

The Mercury line-up also will boast the presence of Laas Neilson, former George Washington tackle, and Ike Licarione and Eddie Hooff, who played against them in the Marion game.

The Mohawks will go into the Sunday engagement with virtually their regular line-up, Byrne calling signals, Stipe and Buck O'Brien at the ends, Scully and Reynolds, tackles; Leventhal and Schwartzman at guard, Delaney at center and Parks, DeLabre and Clark, backs.

The game is scheduled for 2:30 p. m., on the gridiron at Thirty-first street and Benning road, and an admission fee of 50 cents will be charged.

Parkview Booters Conquer Fillmore

Win, 3-0, But Held Scoreless Most of First Half.

Fillmore proved surprisingly strong and held the Parkview team scoreless for most of the first half, Lynard and then Francisco notching points near the intermission, giving Parkview a 2-0 lead. Peel and De Saussure were the big factors in keeping Parkview from scoring.

In the last half Fillmore maintained its steady playing and frequently came dangerously near Rudden's goal. At the other end of the field, over-anxiety spoiled some fine openings, Francisco and D. Rudden both missing easy chances. Just before the final whistle, Hankins succeeded in slipping the third goal past the Fillmore defense.

Stocks Yield 1.3 Points on Light Selling

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Reports of rising trade volume failed to hold out much inducement to stocks today. Volume was light and the market was fairly steady until afternoon when a dribble of offerings found buyers scarce and the net result was an average net decline of slightly more than a point.

Some share traders may have been disappointed because the Government, after reaffirming its intention of holding to present monetary policies, did not resume the gold price advance.

Selling Evenly Distributed.

Selling was rather evenly distributed, but purchasers did not appear enthusiastic about making bids and the market inclined toward thinness.

American Telephone dropped under 114 for a net loss of 1½ on a continuation of the offerings which followed the communication merger proposal. American Can, Du Pont, Union Carbide and Western Union were off about as much. New York Central, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Smelting, U. S. Smelting and Case yielded fractions to around a point.

Several rails improved for a time, then eased. Armour of Illinois preferred rose 2⅛ net. American Woolen preferred more than canceled Thursday's rise. Sales totaled 1,173,382 shares, the week's smallest volume.

Progress in Trade.

The Dun & Bradstreet Review said Nation-wide reports on trade indicated that "more progress now is being made than at any time in the last three months, with a complete reversal of the attitude assumed at this time a year ago."

Christmas buying, it added, is the best in three years. Government enterprises such as the C. W. A., are expanding purchasing power, while prohibition repeal has stimulated some lagging businesses, including hotels.

Freight traffic last week maintained the record of greater volume than a year ago, and was naturally higher than that of the preceding week, which included Thanksgiving Day.

Money markets took placidly the heavy turnover of funds incident to Treasury receipts and disbursements. The Government required an overdraft at the Federal Reserve Bank of about $25,000,000, a comparatively small amount.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Investment stocks and metal shares were the best sections on the stock exchange today. The market was rather quiet, business being checked by the approaching holidays. Transatlantic issues were irregular and speculative shares eased on profit taking. The market closed dull.

Paris—Reflecting the budget balancing difficulties that are reappearing in Parliament here, prices on the bourse developed irregularity. Rentes, however, were firmer and international issues showed a steady tendency. The market closed resistant.

Berlin—Quotations on the bourse opened firm, electric and dye shares improving. Business slackened later, however, and the market closed below the best.

Gold-Buying a "Bluff"?

Curious Explanation of Failure Of the Policy to Raise Prices

By Ralph West Robey.

Walter Lippmann in one of his current interpretative articles gives what seems to me is the most curious explanation yet offered for the failure of the gold-buying program to raise prices. In a word, it is that we have not had a gold-buying program, but a mere bluff. In other words, as he sees it, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation simply "chalks up its official price and then does nothing more."

To support this thesis, Mr. Lippmann compares the price for gold quoted by the R. F. C. and the price prevailing in the London market. In this comparison, the significant aspect is that on many days the London price has been below the R. F. C. price. Thus on Tuesday the London price was $31.75 an ounce, while the R. F. C. price was $34.01. This could mean only one thing, as Mr. Lippmann views it. That is that the "R. F. C. has not really been buying gold at the price it names." This is the "practically conclusive" evidence upon which the conclusion is based that the policy has been a bluff.

From this conclusion Mr. Lippman goes ahead "to perform some deductions in the manner of Sherlock Holmes." These are equally interesting. Before getting to them, however, he throws in an additional fact. This is that at about the time the spread between the two prices became apparent, we had the outburst of opposition to the policy and the publication of the opinion of Dean Acheson questioning its legality.

Administration Stopped On Legal Considerations.

The first of the Sherlock Holmes deductions is that the "Administration has not bought gold because it does not feel sure it has legal power to do so." Secondly, since no gold was being purchased and it appears there was no legal authority for making such purchases, London realized that the whole thing was a bluff. In consequence, it was useless for the R. F. C. further to advance its price, for now that London was on to the game, such action merely would increase the discrepancy between the R. F. C. posted price and the real price. This, then, "explains why the R. F. C. has practically not advanced its official price for such a considerable time."

From this we get the final conclusion of Mr. Lippmann on the policy. This is simply that "If the Warren doctrine is right, the President has to make the R. F. C. the real price. He has to buy all the gold that is offered at the price he names." This will mean, in turn, that the President must "ask Congress to give him power to buy gold at more than the statutory price of $20.67 an ounce."

In brief, then, here is the case: First, prices have failed to rise as a result of the gold-buying policy because gold has not been purchased; secondly, it has not been purchased because the Government does not feel sure that it had legal authority to do so; and finally, now that the bluff has been called, we must get additional legislation and buy all the gold that is offered.

R. F. C. Has Been Buying And Announcing Its Purchases.

As stated above, I think this is the most curious explanation for the failure of the program to lift prices that has been offered. One of my reasons for thinking this is that it all rests on the contention that the R. F. C. has not bought any gold, while the fact is that the R. F. C. has been buying gold continuously. It has not bought much, it is true, but it has taken the entire newly mined output of this country—which is all it ever announced it would do in the domestic field—and has bought an undisclosed amount abroad.

It seems to me, therefore, that Mr. Lippmann's whole case falls to the ground as an explanation of the failure of the policy. I am willing to grant, of course, that if the United States opened a gold market at above the London price and agreed to take all metal offered there necessarily would be a drop in the value of the dollar sufficient to equalize the two prices. This, too, would cause the price of some international commodities to advance. It always has been my understanding, however, that the policy was designed to raise the price level, not just to depreciate the dollar in the foreign exchange market and thereby affect the value of a few commodities whose price is set abroad.

I think it rather unfair, therefore, for Mr. Lippmann to label such a series of deductions as "in the manner of Sherlock Holmes." It has been some years since I read Sherlock Holmes but as I recall, he always was more careful about the accuracy of his premises. If he had not been he would have needed more than one Dr. Watson to sing his praises.

Wool Market.

Boston, Dec. 15 (A.P.) (United States Department of Agriculture).—Buyers are inquiring for wool and are making some purchases. The improvement in the actual movement of wool, however, is very moderate and scattered. Most of the sales are on finer grades of territory wool. Recent transactions have included 58s, 60s, ½-blood territory wools at 81@83 cents scoured basis for strictly combing staple and at 79@81 cents for French combing. Average French combing 64s and finer territory wools sell in original bags at 81@82 cents scoured basis, while good French combing and average strictly combing staple in original bags bring 83@84 cents.

Federal Bonds Turn Firmer; Market Sags

Corporate Loans Ease in Quieter Sale of $12,233,000.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Although United States Government securities improved moderately in today's bond market, the general run of corporation loans displayed a rather irregular tone.

Trading was even a little quieter than yesterday, sales totaling only $12,233,000, par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues declined two-tenths of a point.

The domestic gold price was again unchanged, and the dollar resisted further selling in foreign exchange dealings.

Further Depreciation Seen.

At the same time, word from Washington that the Administration contemplated no change in its gold-buying policy apparently was viewed as an indication that further efforts would be made to depreciate the monetary unit.

While the Treasury 3s and one of the 3⅜s declined 5-32 of a point each, other listed Federal loans showed gains of 1-32 to 5 1-32 of a point.

Among the more active rail losers of fractions to around a point were some liens of Santa Fe, Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Central Pacific, Burlington, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Denver & Rio Grande, Great Northern, Erie, Louisville & Nashville, New Haven, N. Y. Central, Northern Pacific, Frisco, Southern Pacific and Wabash.

Communications Lose.

The communications companies transformed their yesterday's gains into losses. Issues of International Telephone, Postal Telegraph and Western Union were off 1 to 2 points.

Small advances were held by loans of U. S. Rubber, Utah Power, Portland General Electric, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Crown-Zellerbach and Standard Oil of New York.

In the foreign division, recoveries of 1 to 3 or more points were recorded by obligations of Argentina, Dutch East Indies, France, Germany, Japan and Switzerland. Bonds of Australia, Austria and the United Kingdom were a little heavy.

Germany Will Buy Walnuts From U. S.

American walnuts which were introduced into Germany for the first time this year have succeeded in gaining a strong foothold in that market, according to a report from Consul Lester L. Schnare, Hamburg, made public by the Commerce Department.

Approximately 80,000 sacks of the American product, the report shows, will be available for the Christmas trade, an amount considerably greater than that reported for any of the European varieties.

Because of crop failures or damage as the result of unusually heavy rains during the growing season, the European walnut crops generally are expected to be much smaller in quantity and poorer in quality than usually, the report states.

Stocks—Reports of rising trade volume failed to halt stock losses. A dribble of selling whittled prices and the market closed with an average decline of 1.3 points. Sales decreased to 1,173,832 shares.

Bonds — Firmness in Federal loans prevailed, but the market sagged two-tenths of a point on easier corporate issues. Trading was quieter. Sales volume declined to $12,233,000.

Curb—Prices drifted lower after holding steady. Some issues moved against the trend. Metals were heavy; alcohols steady to firm. Sales volume decreased to 254,000 shares.

Wheat—Federal buying orders sent wheat prices on the climb and the market closed higher. Forecasts of a cold wave also stimulated prices. Other grains declined. December wheat sold at 83; May, at 85¼.

Cotton—Opening advances in cotton were followed by reactions, but prices rose again in the late trading on a renewal of trade buying and covering. March sold at 10.16. The general market advanced 3 to 6 points. December sold at 9.99; January, at 10.00.

Rubber—Crude rubber futures closed steady, 6 to 10 points higher. December sold at 8.70; January, at 8.80.

Sugar—Raw sugar was quiet and unchanged at 3.19; refined was also unchanged and sold at 4.40.

Gold—The bar gold price was unchanged and stood at $34.01 per ounce. It sold in London at 126 shillings and 7 pence, an advance of 6 pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar advanced again on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.11¼ to the English pound; 6.12 cents to the French franc, and 37.30 cents to the German mark.

Goods Market.

New York, Dec. 15 (A.P.).—It was understood today that print cloth production will not be curtailed in January. Percales were firmer on unconfirmed reports that the Government may become a purchaser for C. W. A. purposes. Silk merchants expect that permission will be granted next week to hold production down 25 per cent from NRA highs. Rayon sales are showing some increases in the fabric division. Shipments orders for burlap were larger to Calcutta.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Cement—November production of 4,672,000 barrels was 27.7 per cent below that of the same month last year, according to the Department of Commerce. Shipments from mills totaled 4,463,000 barrels, a decrease of 6.7 per cent from November of last year.

Gasoline—Advices to the New York trade indicate some slight improvement in demand in certain Eastern and Midwestern sections. Prices are described as steady with fewer reports of shading.

Tinplate—Leading mills are reported operating around 75 per cent of capacity, a considerable reduction from the rate of preceding months.

Chemical colors—Contract rates on the varnish and lacquer grades of carbon black for the coming year show increases over 1933. The trade expects upward revisions on other leading items, But it is believed that the advances will be smaller than appeared likely a month ago.

Foods—It is reported that wholesale distribution of groceries and provisions is being maintained close to the high levels attained during the Thanksgiving season.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—The analyst index of business activity shows a decline of 3.2 points for November. The preliminary level is 69.2 against 72.4 for October, 89.5 for August (the year's high) and 64.7 for November, 1932. A sharp drop in steel production was the principal factor in the recent decline.

Sales of Simmons Co. for November totaled $1,018,665, an increase of 17 per cent over a year ago.

New State and municipal financing scheduled for next year totals $8,796,222, reports the Daily Bond Buyer. The largest award is a $2,750,000 issue of State of Texas 4 per cent relief bonds, set for Thursday.

Raw sugar stocks in licensed New York warehouses decreased more than 100,000 bags from December 7 to December 15, acording to the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange. This decrease, said the exchange, "is in line with the recent drop of 11 points in spot sugar," buyers decided to purchase sugars here because of their inability to get prompt supplies from producing countries. Stocks on December 15 were 515,547 bags.

New life insurance production in November amounted to $681,049,000 compared with $671,242,000 in November, 1932, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents reported today. This marks the second time this year in which monthly production has run ahead of the corresponding period last year.

The Western Union Telegraph Co. has appointed Rear Admiral C. P. R. Coode, of London, vice president and general manager in charge of European operations, it was announced today. He succeeds Stanley J. Goddard, resigned.

Air Brake Company Gets Biggest Order in Years

Watertown, N. Y., Dec. 15 (AP).—A $1,300,000 order for new air brakes, announced today by the New York Air Brake Co., here, is the largest of that nature in four years, the company said.

The order includes the manufacture of air brake equipment for more than 8,000 freight cars for the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Nickel Plate and the Erie, and is a result of Government loans to the railroads to enable them to purchase new rolling stock. The air brake company has been closed down during the week to permit inventory, but today its force was called back to rush the order.

Curb's Prices Decline After Holding Steady

Some Issues Resist Trend; Sales Volume Drops to 254,000 Shares.

New York, Dec 15 (AP).—Stocks drifted to a lower close on the curb exchange today after holding a fairly steady course in earlier dealings. A few scattered issues moved against the trend, but recessions of fractions to more than a point predominated.

Metals were somewhat heavy, while oils and utilities yielded minor fractions Alcohol shares finished steady to firm, Canadian Industrial Alcohol A and B advancing 2¾ points each in active dealings

Parker Rustproof, Newmont, New Jersey Zinc, A. O. Smith and Aluminum Co. of America were off around 2 points. Shares fractions to a point lower included Columbia Gas & Electric preferred, Swift & Co., Electric Bond & Share and Standard Oil of Ohio.

Hiram Walker was a shade improved, while Fisk Rubber preferred and Singer Manufacturing gained about 2 each.

Wool Prices Hold Firmly; Sales Decline

Boston, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin will say of the wool market tomorrow:

"The wool market continues to mark time this week. Sales have possibly been smaller than in the two preceding weeks, when little over a million pounds weekly were sold. Prices, nevertheless, keep very firm for all descriptions, in view of the short supplies of wool in sight.

"The foreign markets also keep very firm with good clearances continuing to be effected in the primary markets and prices rather against the buyer.

"The manufacturers are still turning out a considerable yardage of goods, although production has, of course, lessened somewhat. There are still fair weights of tops and yarns to be delivered into the first quarter of next year. Meanwhile, advices from various points in the country report improving demand for clothing.

Cotton Prices Gain After Early Drops

December Closes at 9.99 as General Market Rises 3 to 6 Points.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—A slight opening advance in cotton was followed by reactions today, but prices steadied up again in the late trading on a renewal of trade buying and covering.

March contracts after advancing to 10.19 at the start, eased off to 10.11, and closed at 10.16, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 3 to 6 points.

Initial prices were 5 to 7 points higher on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool and the earlier advance in foreign exchange rates. In addition to local commission house and trade buying, there seemed to be some buying here through brokers with foreign connections at the start.

It was supplied by realizing or a little Southern selling, however, and the market soon turned easier with the volume of business tapering off during the middle of the day.

Foreign Exchange Falls.

The failure of foreign exchange to hold its early advances, combined with reactions in grain and stocks, probably led to some reselling by early buyers, and the market worked off to 9.93 for January and 10.25 for May during the early afternoon or a point or two under yesterday's closing quotations.

Offerings were light, however, and the market stiffened up again during the last hour on the rally in wheat and sterling. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best for the day on most positions.

Exports today, 40,203, making 3,611,043 so far this season. Port receipts, 31,702. U. S. port stocks, 4,105,168.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was steady in the early trading today on covering and scattered commission house buying on the steadiness of crude oil. Later prices eased partially under realizing, closing 3 points higher to 1 net lower. The easiness of lard and hogs offset the steadiness of cotton and the late sharp rally in grains. Sales were 82 contracts, of which 58 were in the way of switches. Bleachable spot, nominal; December closed, 4.30; January, 4.33; March, 4.56; Mary, 4.74; July, 4.95.

Wool Goods Buying Gains In Past Week

New York, Dec. 15.—Wool piece goods markets registered further improvement this past week, according to the New York Wool Top Exchange Service.

Scattered orders for spring men's wear were received by a number of mills, and several large contracts were placed. Demand for women's wear materials showed pronounced betterment, with checks, plaids, and tweeds leading sales.

Floating stocks of piece goods were substantially reduced as garment manufacturers picked up odd lots of women's wear for filling-in purposes. Mills disposed of small stocks to jobbers who readily sold them to the needle trade.

Reports from all sections of the trade were to the effect that the menace of stocks has been removed. A few sales of overcoatings were reported.

"Frigid weather across the continent stimulated sales of heavy garments in many communities," says the Exchange Service. "The market undertone is much stronger. The industry is determined to stop merchandising practices that had been undermining the price structure.

"Prospects for spring are becoming brighter. Considerable business remains to be done in men's wear, and women's wear business has just started. There is a general belief that mills will be operating full time about February 1."

Government Seeks Sand to Stop Imports

At the request of another branch of the Federal Government, the Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce, is conducting tests on domestic sands in an effort to determine if a sand can be found to replace that now being imported for use in foundries producing fine precious metal and bronze ornamental work, it was announced today.

The imported sand has a peculiar combination of grain and bond which gives it high permeability and refractoriness and the current tests are being conducted to ascertain if domestic sand is available which possesses the same desirable qualities, it was stated.

Although many unsuccessful attempts have been made in this country to find a substitute for the imported product, recent laboratory tests at the Bureau of Standards shows one of the several samples of sand received from domestic producers to be very promising in that its physical properties approximate those of the imported sand now being used.

When the laboratory tests have been concluded, actual shop tests of the sand will be conducted at the Washington Navy Yard in cooperation with the Navy Department.

Reed Enters Insurance in Capital Field

Waggaman, Brawner & Co. Point to Regularity of Bank Dividends.

A change of interest in local business circles has just taken place in the establishment of a new office by William T. Reed, jr., for a general insurance business, with all forms of protection available through old line companies of sound and unquestioned responsibility. Mr. Reed has selected the American Security Building as headquarters of his agency.

Mr. Reed has had a long and varied experience in business life. For the past four an one-half years he has managed the insurance department of the well-known firm of Boss & Phelps, realtors, having come to them from the American Security & Trust Co., where he served in the same capacity.

Prior to this, he had been employed in the United States Department of State and the Merchants Bank & Trust Co. Mr. Reed is a native of Washington, where he received his education and holds a degree of master of laws from National University.

Trade Board Member.

He is a member of the Washington Board of Trade and the University Club, and was recently elected to the vice presidency of the Insurance Club of Washington, which is composed of a majority of the leading insurance agencies in this city.

He is also a member of the National Association of Insurance Agents. Mr. Reed has always taken a keen interest in civic and social activities of his city and is one of the younger generation of business men who are succeeding in their careers.

Fidelity Investment Association, with local offices in the Shoreham Building, announces that its income reserve plan has been approved by the Industrial Commission of the State of Wisconsin for the handling of unemployment reserve funds created under the Wisconsin Unemployment Compensation Act, the first act of its kind to be passed in any State. All securities purchased for this purpose are deposited with the State of Wisconsin, which holds them in trust for employer and employe.

Approving Fidelity Program.

In approving the Fidelity program, the Wisconsin Industrial Commission wrote in part as follows:

"The Industrial Commission has now officially approved the use of the Fidelity Investment Association of Wheeling, W. Va., program for handling unemployment reserve funds under approved voluntary reserves and compensation act.

As reported in a bulletin by Waggaman, Brawner & Co., Inc., investment bankers, most of the large New York clearing house banks have declared their regular dividends for the last quarter of 1933. Atlanta Mule Market Trade Hits High Peak

Atlanta, Dec. 15 (AP).—The mule market, criterion of prosperity for Southern agriculture, became bullish today to an extent that reminded veteran dealers of the trading days of the World War.

Selling at an average of $130 a head, more than 2,200 mules changed hands in a record session of the Atlanta stockyard auction, which involved a total sum in excess of a quarter million dollars. Cliff Ragsdale, son of a former Mayor of Atlanta and a widely known mule trader, said the volume of business was the greatest for a single day in more than a decade.

Cohill Named Credit Chief in Fruit States

Federal Official to Meet Growers at Martinsburg Next Wednesday.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 15 (Spl.).—Production Credit Corporation, United States Farm Credit Agency, which is to care for all short-time crop production loans, seed loans, &., under the new Federal fiscal arrangement, has selected J. Andrew Cohill, Hancock, Md., orchardist, to handle the work of organizing fruit growers of the Baltimore region, which includes Shenandoah-Cumberland-Potomac apple belt, into one production credit association, it is announced.

The Baltimore district embraces five States: Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia. The purpose of this single association will be to make loans for crop production.

Meeting at Martinsburg.

A general meeting of all interested fruit growers of the five-State district has been called for Wednesday morning at 10:30 at Martinsburg at the courthouse.

The purpose of this meeting will be to organize the belt-wide fruit crop association. All growers having any interest in crop production loans are asked to present themselves.

Prior to this general meeting, Mr. Cohill will visit the various sections of the orchard belt, conferring with county agents and growers, to outline the general purpose of the association. He was in Martinsburg Wednesday and met with a score of leading growers and bankers here.

Allotment of $500,000.

An allotment of approximately $500,000 for the Fruit Growers Association capital stock will probably be made available to the members.

Agricultural Credit Corporation of Baltimore, which has been serving the credit needs of the farmer and fruit grower, will make no further loans and is liquidating. Mr. Cohill has been a worker for the fruit growers' interests and has had a wide experience in the industry. He was a former president of West Virginia Horticulture Society.

An effort will be made to have the office of the corporation established in this city, regarded as the hub of the producing belt.

Northern Pacific Buys Ten New Locomotives

St. Paul, Dec. 15 (AP).—Negotiations for the purchase of ten steam passenger locomotives, costing $1,250,000, from the Baldwin Locomotive Works, of Philadelphia, were concluded today, C. C. Kyle, purchasing agent of the Northern Pacific Railway, said.

Mr. Kyle said he expected construction of these locomotives would be completed and that they would be delivered for the summer travel of 1934.

Wheat Values Climb on New U. S. Buying

On the down swing of values, wheat went to around the lowest point reached since the Washington Administration started its gold-buying programe.

Bearish sentiment was expressed in some quarters as a result of word that the Administratio gold purchase policy would be continued indefinitely. Statements by Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture, advocating increased Federal regulation of grain exchanges were also construed by numerous traders as bearish.

Wheat Closes Nervous.

Wheat closed nervous, ½ to 1⅛ above yesterday's finish; corn, unchanged to ⅜ lower; oats, unchanged to ¼ off, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents decline.

Wheat prices were doing a nose dive when shortly before the day was ended, the downward course of the market was completely reversed through a timely application of purchase power.

An immediate result was to whirl wheat up nearly 2 cents from the day's low point. Liquidation which had preceded the quick final jump of the wheat market was ascribed partly to weakness of securities and of cotton.

Cold Wave Influence.

Forecasts of a cold wave over the United States winter crop belt were a stimulating influence earlier, together with a sharp rise of sterling. Much notice, too, was taken of reports that Kansas yesterday had experienced one of the worst dust storms of the year. Some points in Kansas said wind and dust yesterday did more damage to wheat than anything which had happened heretofore this season. There were also reports that rains in Australia had been causing delay to harvest operations and impaired the quality of wheat.

Export Value Of Cotton Up; Volume Drops

Although the volume of cotton exports from the United States in November showed a decline as compared with the same period of 1932, the value rose by approximately $10,000,000, according to figures compiled in the Commerce Department's textile division.

Total cotton shipments during the November, 1933, period amounted to 915,000 bales, valued at $48,335,000, compared with 1,012,000 bales, valued at $38,428,000, for November of last year. The value increase for November of the current year, it is pointed out, was accounted for by the higher prices which prevailed in that month as compared with November a year ago.

Total shipments for the four months of the cotton season—August to November—aggregated 3,360,000 bales valued at $175,480,000, compared with 3,206,000 bales and $128,040,000 for the corresponding period of 1932, an increase of 156,000 bales and $47,440,000.

For the four months of the current season, as compared with the corresponding four months of 1932, larger shipments were shown mainly for Japan, United Kingdom, France, Italy, China and Canada, while smaller shipments were recorded for Germany, Spain, Belgium and The Netherlands. Detailed figures of these countries for the four months in question appear below:

	Bales		Dollars Figures in millions
	1933	1932	1933	1932

New York Central Line Car Loadings Increase

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—New York Central's freight loadings last week totaled 84,000 cars against 79,224 the previous week and 80,961 a year ago.

The Pennsylvania's loadings last week aggregated 77,040 cars against 72,145 the previous week and 75,618 a year ago.

Norfolk & Western's freight traffic last week totaled 15,300 cars against 15,121 the week before and 17,207 in the 1932 period.

Silver Price Advances ¼ to 43½ Per Ounce

Freight Loads Increase to 537,503 Cars

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended December 9 totaled 537,503 cars, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced today.

This was an increase of 42,078 cars above the preceding week this year, when loadings were reduced owing to the observance of Thanksgiving holiday. It also was an increase of 16,896 cars above the corresponding week in 1932, but a reduction of 76,118 cars under the corresponding week in 1931.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week of December 9 totaled 194,424 cars, an increase of 12,984 cars above the preceding week and 26,990 cars above the corresponding week in 1932, but 6,017 cars below the corresponding week in 1931.

Merchandise Loads Rise.

Loading of merchandise less than carload lot freight totaled 162,107 cars, an increase of 20,911 cars above the preceding week, but 3,653 cars below the corresponding week last year, and 35,447 cars below the same week two years ago.

Grain and grain products loading for the week totaled 28,539 cars, an increase of 2,178 cars above the preceding week, and 784 cars above the corresponding week last year, but 1,642 cars below the same week in 1931. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week ended December 9 totaled 18,363 cars, an increase of 1,268 cars above the same week last year.

Ore Loadings Drop.

Ore loadings amounted to 2,564 cars, a decrease of 271 cars below the preceding week, but 724 cars above the corresponding week in 1932. It was, however, a decrease of 1,440 cars below the same week in 1931.

Coal loading amounted to 106,369 cars, an increase of 3,682 cars above the preceding week, but 13,016 cars below the corresponding week in 1932, and 24,699 cars below the same week in 1931.

Coke loading amounted to 6,265 cars, an increase of 487 cars above the preceding week and 1,286 cars above the same week last year, but 392 cars below the same week two years ago.

Live Stock Increases.

Live stock loading amounted to 16,883 cars, an increase of 2,507 cars above the preceding week, but 1,217 cars below the same week last year and 7,768 cars below the same week two years ago. In the Western districts alone, loading of live stock for the week ended December 9 totaled 12,510 cars, a decrease of 1,693 cars compared with the same week last year.

Four of the seven districts reported increases for the week of December 9, compared with the corresponding week in 1932, those four being the Eastern, Allegheny, Northwestern and Central Western. All districts, however, reported reductions compared with the corresponding week in 1931.

	1933	1932
4 weeks in January	1,910,496	2,266,771
4 weeks in February	1,957,981	2,243,221

U. S. Soft Coal Yield Declines During Week

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended December 9 as approximately 6,600,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week: 1932, 6,828,000 tons; 1931, 7,367,000 tons.

The report of the Bureau of Mines shows production of 7,320,000 tons for the week ended November 25, and 6,187,000 tons for the week ended December 2, 1933.

In the table below appear the quantity and average cost of coal used by Class I railroads in locomotives in yard switching and transportation train service during the month of October, 1933. These figures were compiled by the National Coal Association from the reports from those railroads to the Interstate Commerce Commission:

Corn-Hog Plan Is Attacked in West Virginia

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 15 (Spl.).—Local application of the Federal corn-hog adjustment program is raising wide protest from farmers.

The protests are against the application as worked out of the processing tax, under which farmers here butchering must pay the stiff tax, $1 per hundred pounds, live weight, on all hogs killed, of which any parts are sold.

The market for hogs has failed to advance in keeping with the stiff tax, say the farmers, so that out of the slender prices they receive for pork, they must pay the cent-per-pound tax to the Government.

Farmer Pays Tax.

Instead of coming off the hog processors and the consuming public in general spread, they note, the whole tax must be paid by the farmer, as it is working out. The tax increases each month until February, stepping to $1.50 January 1 and to $2 per hundredweight, or 2 cents a pound, February 1, where it is to remain stationary for a time.

The processing tax is to pay farmers who join the corn-hog reduction campaign which will get under way locally shortly.

County Agent W. N. McClung notes that the tax plan as set up seems to have been built primarily for the main corn-hog section, the Middle West States, where local butchering is not a factor.

Payment to Farmers.

The national plan involves a maximum of $350,000,000 in benefit payments to farmers who cooperate in the programs by reducing their corn acreage by 20 per cent and sows to farrow and hogs marketed by 25 per cent.

While the two programs go in hand, a farmer may sign up for either corn or hogs, or for both, depending on the nature of his farming operations.

Of the $350,000,000, approximately $200,000,000 will go to hog raisers and $150,000,000 to corn growers for reductions in 1934, based on the preceding two-year base period for corn and for hogs, December, 1931, to December, 1933.

Wholesale Commodity Prices Resume Higher Level Drive

Wholesale commodity prices resumed their upward trend during the past week according to an announcement made by Isador Lubin, Commissioner of Labor Statistics of the U. S. Department of Labor. The increase, which amounted to three-tenths of 1 per cent, placed the wholesale index number of 70.9 per cent of the 1926 average for the week ended December 9 as compared with 70.7 for the week ended December 2 and with 71.7, the high point reached during the present year for the week ended November 18. The advance placed the index within about 1 per cent of the high point of the year.

Present prices are at the level of the general average for the week ended November 4 and within a fractional point of the index for the week ended November 25. They are 12½ per cent above the level for the corresponding week of a year ago when the index number registered 63.1 and 19 per cent over the low of the year when the index number stood at 59.6.

The rise in prices was due to a well scattered general strengthening of market quotations. Six of the ten major groups comprising the index showed increases, and four groups registered fractional decreas from the level of the week before.

A sharp advance in Western refinery prices of gasoline together with fractional increases for bituminous coal and electricity caused the index for the fuel and lighting materials group to show the greatest increase during the week. It advanced by nearly 1 per cent.

A general strengthening of market prices of clothing, raw silk and rayon and materials caused the textile products group to rise by nearly three-fourths of 1 per cent.

Crude rubber, which showed a decided recovery in prices, and cylinder oils, which rose slightly, caused the miscellaneous commodity group to rise more than one-half of 1 per cent.

Other groups showing fractional increases due to a general strengthening of prices were farm products, manufactured food items and the building materials group.

Declining prices for certain hides and leather items and a minor reduction in shoe prices caused the hides and leather group to react fractionally. The metals and metal products group also showed a slight decrease, due to weakening market prices for lead, ingot copper and other nonferrous metals. The chemicals and drugs group and the housefurnishing goods group both showed minor price decreases.

The index number of the Bureau of Labor statistics is composed of 784 separate price series weighted according to their relative importance in the country's markets and is based on average prices for the year 1926 as 100.0. The accompanying statement shows the index numbers of the major groups of commodities for one year ago, for the low and high points of 1933 and for the past two weeks.

Richmond Markets.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 15 (A.P.).—BUTTER—Receipts moderate, market slightly easy; Virginia creamery in pound carton packs, jobbing lots (30-pound cases) at 22@23. Packing stock easy at 7c per pound. Very little country butter offered.

POULTRY—Turkey receipts more liberal; market shows a wide range in prices at which turkeys sold yesterday and this morning, dealers and commission merchants giving the price range from 13c to 17c as to quality and size of sale. Other poultry fairly steady and unchanged.

CATTLE—Receipts moderate and market steady.

SHEEP—Receipts light and market steady.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—(Prices quoted are for small jobbing lots sold to retail merchants at or near 10 a. m. Friday, December 15, 1933 (carlot wholesale prices are not quoted)—POTATOES—In 100-pound sack packs, jobbing lots, 1.75@1.85 for N. Y. State whites; cobblers from Maine, graded stock, 2.00@2.15; Virginia sweet potatoes in bushel basket packs, 65@75 per bushel. Cabbage, in 90-pound sack packs at 3.00 on choice stock. Virginia apples, graded stock, No. 1s, 1.40@1.65 per bushel. Few fancy at 1.75; unclassified as to quality, 75@1.35 per bushel. Lettuce, 4.00 per crate. Celery, 2.75@3.00 per crate. Oranges, mostly 2.50 per box. Grapefruits, 2.35@2.50 per box. Grapes, 2.00 per lug. Tomatoes, $2.50 per 30 pound lug. String beans, 1.25@1.50 per bushel. Cranberries, 2.50 per quarter barrel box.

Baltimore Grain Prices.

Baltimore, Dec. 15.—WHEAT—Shipments from elevators, 15,962 bushels. Stock in elevators, 1,386,351 bushels. Opening prices were: No. 2, red, winter, garlicky, spot, domestic, 87½; December delivery, domestic, 87½; January delivery, domestic, 88½. Receipts of wheat running light and demand is fairly good here for No. 2, red, winter, garlicky. Off grades hard to dispose of.

CORN—Receipts, 2,830 bushels by vessel. Shipments from elevators, 610 bushels. Stock in elevators, 17,160 bushels. Receipts of corn from the nearby territory are running light and trading is moderate. For yellow and high-colored mixed there is a fair demand.

COB CORN—Quoted at 2.50@2.75 per barrel for carloads prime nearby yellow on spot. Offerings fair and increasing. No. 2, yellow corn (old), arriving here by car quoted at 64@65 per bushel with transit billing.

OATS—Receipts, 1,380 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 2,124 bushels. Stock in elevators, 62,802 bushels. Receipts of oats show considerable variation in weight, being mostly light. Demand fair in a jobbing way. Good, heavyweight oats are relatively scarce and such command a good premium. No. 2, white oats, 47@51 per bushel, as to weight and position.

Note—On all sales of oats to the local trade excepting those on track, there is an additional charge of 1¼ cents per bushel for storage and elevation, which is paid by the buyer.

RYE—Receipts, 1,640 bushels by car. Stock in elevators, 77,604 bushels.

HAY—General hay market is quiet. No surplus of good timothy. Price range from 12 to 14 per ton, as to grade and kind. The poorer grades of hay are hard to sell at any price. Market irregular on everything below 3 timothy.

Stock Mart To Tell Public Of Operations

New York Exchange Plans Publicity Campaign on Business.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange is going to tell the public more about itself.

In what brokers described as the most radical step enacted in many years, the law committee of the exchange approved yesterday an extensive publicity and advertising program designed to inform the public of the many phases of the stock exchange's operations.

This program will embrace a more liberal attitude toward press representatives, increased use of direct mail advertising, the lecture platform, motion pictures and other publicity media. Although not yet included, it is understood that officials have under consideration the use of paid newspaper advertising of the institutional type which is now used by banks and clearing houses.

The Herald Tribune says that with Congressional regulation considered a certainty by the brokers, the plan is not designed to swerve public opinion immediately. Rather, it is said, the exchange proposes a long-run change in policy for the protection of its business, threatened, brokers say, by a confusion between financial malpractices and legitimate trading.

Approval Is Denied.

Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, today said that the exchange had not approved or "even considered" an extensive publicity campaign "for the alleged purpose of enlisting public support against Federal regulation."

The statement was prompted by reports that such a program was being drawn up.

Whitney said "a plan for a series of talks over the radio of an historical nature purely descriptive of the functions of the exchange" had been submitted to the law committee yesterday, but that it was "not adopted or approved, though subject, of course, to further consideration."

Auto Sales to Dealers In November Increase

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 15 (AP).—Sales of automobiles to dealers during November were 13 per cent greater, the Studebaker Sales Corporation reported today, than the combined business of November, 1929, 1930, 1931 and 1932.

Studebaker shipped 8,105 cars to dealers during the month, the report specified. In 1932 the figure was 1,084; 1931, 1,583; in 1930, 2,499, and in 1929, 1,975.

Heavy Supply Of Butter Cuts Market Price

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Heavy arrivals of new butter daily, adding to the already large oversupply, has caused a severe decline in prices on the New York market, notwithstanding operations of the National Dairy Marketing Corporation, a Government agency.

Dealers in the commodity said today that the outlook was for still lower prices until the supply more evenly met demand unless the Government agency changed its policy and took all the butter offered.

Some dealers said they believed the agent of the dairy marketing organization was working on a quota basis, pointing out that more than 700 tubs of butter were untaken yesterday, although offered at 1 cent a pound less than the price he paid for 2,500 tubs several hours earlier.

For several months the Government agency paid 24 cents a pound and was able to maintain the market at this figure until large supplies began to arrive from all the dairy sections of the country and created large surpluses. Then the price was progressively lowered a cent a pound until the figure reached 20 cents.

More than 700 tubs were offered, first at 19½ cents and then at 19 cents, without being taken.

(Associated Press.)

Buying to Stop.

Secretary Wallace yesterday ordered the Dairy Marketing Corporation to cease buying butter on primary markets of the country.

This order does not affect the purchase of butter by the Federal Emergency Relief Corporation, which announced today plans which would bring butter purchases to 61,071,626 pounds.

Wallace sent notice to the Dairy Marketing Corporation at Chicago that the agreement in effect with it since October 17, 1933, would be terminated at midnight December 16, 1933.

This decision concludes the series of butter purchases made by the Dairy Marketing Corporation for resale and distribution to the needy and the unemployed.

The 61,071,626 pounds of butter will be distributed through the Surplus Relief Corporation under a plan worked out by dairy cooperative leaders with Secretary Wallace to relieve the market from a huge surplus.

Chicago Interprets Order.

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—Butter dealers here interpreted Secretary Wallace's announcement regarding Government butter purchases today as meaning that the Government has retired from the market.

The announcement that 43,060,626 pounds had been purchased previously with 3,011,000 pounds ordered purchased today, plus the proposed 15,000,000 pounds which will be purchased on bids December 28, accounts for the entire amount of 61,071,626 pounds which Wallace said the Government would purchase.

The announcement came long after the basic Chicago market had closed, but traders had been quietly confident for several days that Government support for the butter market would be withdrawn before next week.

The market had apparently discounted the situation in advance, as prices were unrevised to ⅜ cent a pound higher today. Yesterday, prices declined 3 cents a pound, to 16 cents.

Consumption Of Cotton Cut In November

Stocks Held in Factories Increase; Imports Up; Exports Drop.

(Associated Press.)

Cotton consumed during November was reported yesterday by the Census Bureau to have totaled 475,368 bales of lint and 59,111 bales of linters, compared with 503,873 and 66,838 in October this year, and 502,434 and 56,963 in November last year.

Cotton on hand November 30 was reported as follows:

Held in consuming establishments, 1,573,744 bales of lint and 265,620 of linters, compared with 1,361,190 and 257,880 on October 31 this year, and 1,454,305 and 295,677 on November 30 last year.

In public storage and at compresses, 10,411,491 bales of lint and 37,706 of linters, compared with 9,474,342 and 36,018 on October 31 this year, and 10,693,717 and 66,595 on November 30 last year.

November exports totaled 915,304 bales of lint and 17,908 bales of linters, compared with 1,046,524 and 6,723 for October this year, and 1,012,411 and 7,057 for November last year.

Road Takes 697,703 To Chicago World Fair

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—The New York Central Railroad system announced yesterday that during the five and one-half months the world's fair was open it transported into Chicago 697,703 passengers.

These figures show an increase for every month beginning in July, and the company said that the impetus given to its business by the fair trade has carried on and indications are that it will continue to grow.

Rum Bill Gives District Heads Final Control

New Draft Will Not Grant Alcohol Board Full Power Here.

Vesting final liquor sale control in the Commissioners, rather than in any board to be set up, is a cardinal principle of liquor legislation being drafted for presentation by the Corporation's Counsel's Office.

The Commissioners have decided, it was learned yesterday, to adhere to centralization rather than give the Alcohol Control Board full power, with an appeal only to the courts.

As the draft of the legislation began to take shape, it became clear that the Commissioners intend to rely most strongly on revocation of licenses, and not on long jail sentences or stiff fines, in cases of violation by dispensers.

The new measure will carry no prohibition against "treating," nor any rule compelling buyers to pay cash for their drinks. Drinking liquor in any public place except an establishment with a liquor license is to be forbidden, however.

Another ban, which appeared in the original bill of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, but which will be eliminated in the redraft, would have forbidden the mixing of drinks in the same room in which the thirsty customer was sitting.

A study of revenues which may be expected to flow from the legalization of liquor sales was started yesterday by District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan. His starting point was the revenues in nearby Maryland counties where liquor sales have been legalized.

District officials are trimming their license and tax sales to the reported minds of the House and Senate tax committees.

Center to Conduct YuleDance Tonight

Southeast Group Will Gather at School.

A Christmas dance entertainment by children of the Southeast Community Center, including boys and girls from Congress Heights branch, will be held tonight in the auditorium of Hines Junior High School.

"Dances by television in the United States and in other countries will be presented, under supervision of Mrs. M. W. Davis, community secretary, and Miss Evelyn Davis, Miss Sara Bergling, and Mrs. Margaret Reed Kincannon.

More than 60 children will participate in the dance numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Laurette Marks Hullings, and Miss Emily Kendrick, pianists. Stage effects will be under supervision of Harold Snyder. Christmas carols will be sung by the entire group.

HOLIDAY HINTS — appearing every morning in The Washington Post, will make a greatly improved Christmas for many men—their wives now read the "Gift for Him" ads before selecting any presents.

Gasoline Alley — All Quiet on the Beat

OF COURSE YOU DIDN'T TELL ON CLARENCE, TRIXIE. WE FOUND OUT ABOUT HIM HAVIN' A BLACKJACK OURSELVES.
HE HURT MY ARM.
12-16
HERE COMES A COP. WE CAN TELL HIM, GOOTCH.
HE'D SURE TAKE IT OUT ON CLARENCE.
BOY.—WOULD THAT BE RICH!
WELL, WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL HIM?
WHY DIDN'T YOU?

WARM on the COLDEST NIGHT

A CUSTOMER WRITES:

"I used to dread winter driving. My hands and feet would always freeze and long drives were a nightmare. Then I installed an inexpensive EA Hot Water Heater. Boy, what a change.

"My car is simply another home on wheels and the Motorola Radio keeps me company when I ride alone. Incidentally, the girl friend prefers my 'new' car to the movies or a dance, and the money I've saved is more than the cost of the equipment."

ANOTHER SAYS:

"Thanks again for suggesting an EA Hot Water Heater. I take the wife and kiddies out regularly now and never worry about catching colds . . . Since I may charge the accessories I need, I will see you soon about a radio and a set of Goodrich tires."

..and RADIO WHEREVER YOU GO

NEW BUDGET PLAN

You no longer need all cash to equip and condition your car the way you would like. Buy a heater, a radio or anything you want when you want it. Pay a little down and make small weekly payments that you will hardly miss at all.

Select exactly what you need and as much as you need. Our shelves are filled with quality merchandise—nationally-known brands—at reasonable prices and all purchases will be budgeted under our new single payments plan in amounts to suit your convenience.

PAY A LITTLE DOWN Balance AS LOW AS $1.00 Per Week

EA Hot Water Heater

No matter how cold it is, no matter how bitter the wind howls, you can drive in solid comfort if you car is equipped with this wonderful little heater finished in chrome with multi-speed heat control switch and adjustable heat deflector.

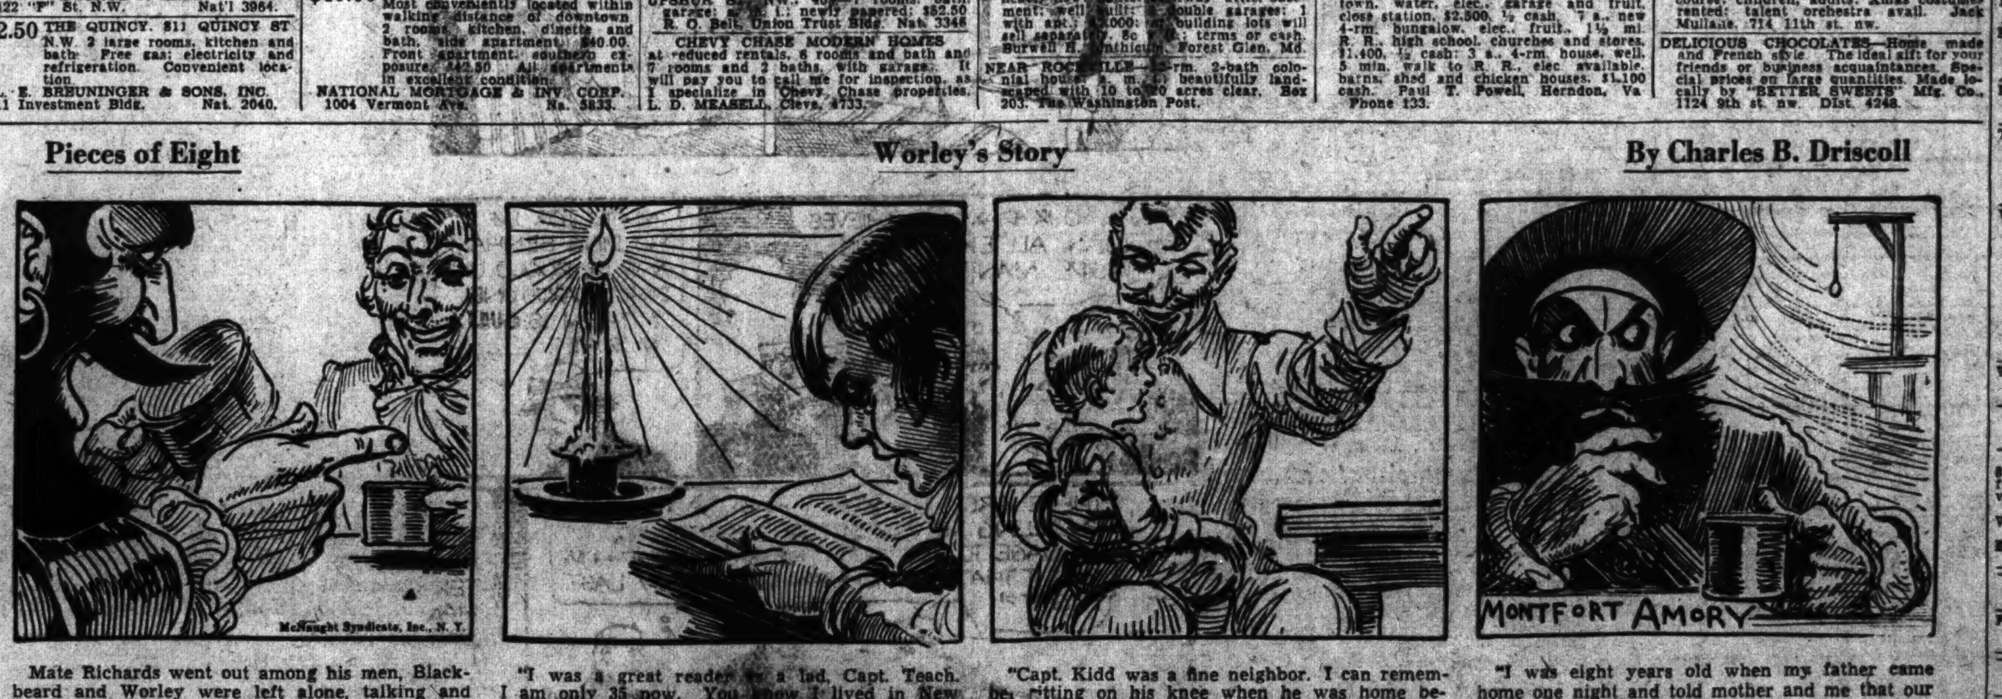
Pieces of Eight
Worley's Story
By Charles B. Driscoll



McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.

Mate Richards went out among his men, Blackbeard and Worley were left alone, talking and drinking wine, while the rout of a pirate holiday surged through the ship Eagle: "How did you come to call yourself a pirate?" asked Teach.

"I was a great reader as a lad, Capt. Teach. I am only 35 now. You know I lived in New York, in Hanover street, near the home of Capt. Kidd. My father sailed mate to Kidd in many voyages.

"Capt. Kidd was a fine neighbor. I can remember sitting on his knee when he was home between voyages, while he told of encounters with pirates. He cursed them for heartless robbers, but I thought they must be great fellows.

"I was eight years old when my father came home one night and told mother and me that our neighbor, Capt. Kidd, had been hanged for piracy in England. That was in 1701, as you will remember, Capt. Teach."

D. C. Dog Pound Can't Supply Demand for Pets as Yule Gifts

Stray Animals Are Scarce, Official in Charge Tells Holiday Trade.

Hounds, pups, mongrels, dogs with black noses, dogs with fuzzy coats, dogs with luminous brown eyes and just dogs, are being sought daily as Christmas gifts at the District Pound, South Capitol and I streets southwest. And the demand is more than can be filled.

Their paws scratch and their noses reach up to the wire mesh of their pens as more than 60 individual yelps and barks of protest or surprise greet the visitor at the pound.

Poundmaster W. R. Smith said Cabinet officers, senators, socially prominent women and troops of boys and girls are among those demanding dogs for Christmas gifts to the number of 25 a day. Handicapped by the weather, not many dogs are being picked up in the streets these days, Smith explained.

"Licensed dogs are increasing, and while we should be bringing in 20 stray dogs a day we are only bringing about 6," he said. "We would like to accumulate as many as possible to meet the Christmas demand. But dogs without licenses, and those are the only ones we can pick up, are scarce these days.

Speaking of the merits of dogs, Smith said: "The more breeds you get mixed into a dog, the heartier the dog will be. The American people are a vigorous race because they are a mixture of breeds. So it is with dogs."

He explained that no dogs, except very old ones, are killed. The rest are kept at the pound if they are of any value and many are placed in comfortable homes. Pups are sold for $1, while older dogs bring $2.

Smith realizes the public looks upon his job as obnoxious, but in reality he is a genial man and gives both the dog and owner the benefit of the doubt when any one accuses him of unrightfully holding a dog.

Plans Offered To Limit News Items on Radio

Length, Time, and Nature of Bulletins Specified in Proposed Policy.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—A 10-point program for the "control and limitation of news broadcasting" was evolved today by a committee of newspaper publishers, press association, radio chain, and broadcasting association representatives.

The committee recommended the program to publishers and broadcasters for their approval. It follows:

"1. That a committee consisting of one representative of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, one representative each from the United Press, the Associated Press, and the International News Service; one representative from the National Association of Broadcasters, and one representative each from the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System, totaling seven members, with one vote each, should constitute a committee to set up with proper editorial control and supervision an organization designed to furnish to the radio broadcasters limited daily news bulletins for broadcasting purposes. The chairman of the above committee will be the representative of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and a member of the Publishers National Radio Committee. All actions of this committee will be subject to the Publishers National Radio Committee.

Bulletins to Be Short.

"2. The newspaper and press association members of this committee are authorized and empowered to select such editor, or editors, as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this agreement, to wit: To receive from each of the principal three press associations copies of their respective day and night press reports, from which shall be selected bulletins of not more than 30 words each sufficient to fill two broadcast periods daily of not more than five minutes each.

"3. It is proposed that a broadcast to be based upon bulletins taken from the morning newspaper report will be put on the air by broadcasters not earlier than 9:30 a. m., local station time, and the broadcast based upon the afternoon newspaper report will not be put on the air by broadcasters prior to 9 p. m., local station time.

"4. It is agreed that these news broadcasts will not be sold for commercial purposes.

Asks C. B. S. to Quit Field.

"5. The Columbia Broadcasting System agrees to withdraw from the news agency field and dissolve its present Columbia News Service Corporation. The National Broadcasting Company agrees not to enter the news collection field.

"6. All expense incident to the functioning of this committee will be borne by the broadcasters. Independent stations may have access to these broadcast reports upon their request and agreement to pay their proportionate share of the expense involved, as well as to observe the letter and spirit of this plan.

"7. Occasional news bulletins of transcendental importance, as a matter of public service, will be furnished to broadcasters, as they may occur at times other than the stated periods above. These bulletins will be written and broadcast in such a manner as to stimulate public interest in the reading of newspapers.

News Background Stressed.

"8. The broadcasters agreed to regulate the broadcast by their commentators in such a manner that these periods will be devoted to a generalization and background of general news situations and elminate the present practice of the recital of spot news.

"9. The newspapers and the broadcasters will cooperate to limit the broadcasting of news by newspaper-owned stations and independently owned stations on a basis comparable to the schedule set up above for radio chains.

"10. The Publishers' National Radio committee will recommend to all newspaper publishers the above plan for their approval and acquiescence, and will urge upon the members of the Associated Press and the managements of the International News Service and the United Press the adoption of this plan."

Montgomery High School Junior Republic Officers

Women Factor In Siever Case

Singer to Be Questioned on Shooting, With Other Attractive Friends.

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 15 (AP). Among the attractive women who figured in the life of Dr. Leonard Siever, the artistic, music-loving bachelor, investigators hoped today to obtain clews to solve the mystery of his death by shooting Tuesday night.

One of the women, it was disclosed, is Zarhui Elmassian, lyric soprano, who played the leading role in a comic opera, "Master Thief," at the exclusive Community Playhouse here last week.

Dr. Siever, it was learned, attended five performances of the opera and several times went back stage. Who he saw there was not known and authorities said they hoped to learn this from Miss Elmassian.

The actress won a scholarship to a music school, given by an organization of which Dr. Siever was president.

A Los Angeles attorney, Aaron Levinson, conferred with police. He was classmate of Dr. Siever at Michigan University.

"He came to see me a month ago to discuss a personal problem," Levinsol told police. What the problem was, the police would not disclose.

Farley, in London, Studies Postoffice

Wants to Discover Why System Pays Profit.

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—James A. Farley was interested during his brief visit here today in finding out how the British postoffice made annual profits of more than $50,000,000 in the last two years.

The Postmaster General of the United States pointed out that the United States Postoffice in those years showed deficits of two to three times that amount.

Mr. Farley dined at the embassy, where he planned to remain overnight.

Teacher Appeals To Missing Youth

Urges He End Anxiety of Parents.

Hanover, N. H., Dec. 15 (U.P.).—An appeal to Clarence L. Marks, jr., of Philadelphia, scholarly Dartmouth College senior who disappeared Sunday, to let his parents know he is alive was made today by a professor who had been his confidant.

Marks' disappearance was believed due to his theory that young men of wealth should "rub elbows" with the working class. He had written an essay on the subject and had spoken of joining a Civilian Conservation Camp.
